Carter wins; Ford, Reagan deadlock

RONALD REAGAN

From Herald News services

Democrat Jimmy Carter won a comfortable victory in the New Hampshire Primary that he said could boost him to a first ballot Presidential nomination. Ronald Reagan and President Ford, meantime, were locked in a dead heat Wednesday morning in the GOP race.

Reagan told supporters his showing "far exceeded our expectations." In Washington, Ford was reported confident he would pull out the cliff-hanger. All night, fewer than 1,000 votes separated the two Republicans.

With 49 per cent of votes counted, the totals were: Reagan 30,710 — 50 per cent; Ford 30, 627 — 50 per cent. On the Democratic side, with 51 per cent counted, the former Georgia governor led Udall, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma and Sargent Shriver. The vote was Carter 14,162, 31 per cent; Udall 10,581, 23 per cent; Bayh 7,505, 16 per cent; Harris 5, 245, 12 per cent; and Shriver, 4,093, 9 per cent.

Ronald Reagan, according to officials at his campaign headquarters in Des Plaines, is tentatively scheduled to appear at a rally at Hersey High School, Arlington Heights, March 11.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who insists he is not a candidate, got 2,123 — 5 per cent — in a write-in campaign.

At Reagan's Illinois headquarters, volunteers spent much of the evening making phone calls and stuffing envelops with ears cocked toward radio and television reports of the New Hampshire results.

A "larger than normal crowd" packed the Des Plaines office making for crowded working conditions and temperatures in the high 80s.

U.S. Rep. Phillip M. Crane, R-12th, Reagans' Illinois campaign director, said the preliminary results from New Hampshire were "vastly beyond what had been indicated."

WHILE CRANE SAID the results would have an impact on the Florida primary March 9 and Illinois' March 16 primary, he was not willing to upgrade projections of a 40 to 45 per cent of the vote for Reagan here.

In Washington, officials of Ford's election suggested former President Richard Nixon's China trip cost Ford votes. Deputy campaign director Stuart Spencer said: "If President Ford loses . . . Richard Nixon will be the reason."

Crane discounted the China speculation. He said "Mr. Nixon's trip had little political significance."

Carter, with his strong New Hampshire showing, became the man to beat. He accepted victory as an indication "that being from the south was not the handicap than many people thought it would be in New England's.

Chief wins vote of confidence

by BILL HILL

The Arlington Heights Village Board Tuesday night gave Police Chief L.W. Calderwood a unanimous vote of confidence at the end of a special meeting called to investigate charges of mismanagement in the police department.

Former Capt. Jack Aldrich, who wrote a report Feb. 10 criticizing various operating procedures in the department and charged that morale in the department is "at the lowest ebb in 24 years," appeared before the board. He again said that he had sent a report on departmental problems to Village Mgr. L.A. Hanson in December. Aldrich said that he sent the report to village trustees because of the "disappearance" of a management study of the department conducted by the village administration from April to August last year.

Hanson said the report was never put in final form and released because the 72-year-old Calderwood is near retirement.

"WE FELT IT SHOULD be held in abeyance because it is a long-range development report and so his (Calderwood's) successor could have some input into it first," Hanson said.

The 53-page report recommending short-range and long-range reorganization of the police department was released to village trustees Friday in preparation for Tuesday's meeting.

More than 150 persons attended the meeting, including most of the 82-member Arlington Heights police force. The department's Fraternal Order of Police, as well as several individual officers, made statements in support of Calderwood and the village administration.

Robert Gerth, president of the FOP, also said that "morale is good" in the department.

GENE DECK, REPRESENTING patrolmen, who are not members of the FOP, said "we see our administration trying to identify and rectify our problems as they arise."

Aldrich's only comment at the end of the meeting was "Grin and bear it. You can't argue with the democratic process."

Alrich retired from the Arlington Heights Police Department in September to become police chief in Barrington Hills.

"I intend to continue living here and

Passolt's problem — not having right image

"I don't think the best method is to walk away because there's some hard work involved. As the man said, 'I asked for hard work when I came here.' " — George Passolt, a man who has spent many restless nights at the reins of village government.

No great pride can be sensed in Wheeling, even though highway signs welcome visitors to a "village with feeling."

Two years ago, the community was jolted by a zoning scandal which featured huge payoffs to political boss James Stavros, a strong-armed former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who purportedly "ran" the community.

Federal investigators uncovered no reason to indict George Passolt, the hard working and sometimes misunderstood village manager who had served Wheeling in many capacities since 1965.

Passolt's unlucky day came later.

He fell victim of that scandal, too, a victim of ensuing community anger which really has not subsided, only diminished somewhat.

THERE WAS no crime. He just did not project the correct "image."

George Passolt represented scandal ridden days in Wheeling government not because he had been involved, only because he was there, occupying a desk, drawing a paycheck.

That meant he had become excess baggage.

The village board fired Passolt last October.

He robably saw it coming and might have left before the purge. Instead, Passolt refused to sway under the pressure of tremendous workloads, too few staff members and criticism that he did not manage well.

Passolt also battled the entire aura of "Wheeling, the village with feeling." As in wheeling and dealing.

"Anybody who worked for the Village of Wheeling, even to this day, bears the brunt of shame,

SLA drove Patty neurotic, doctor testifies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A psychiatrist testified Tuesday that Patricia Hearst became mentally ill out of fear of her kidnapers and joined a bank robberty and shot up a store like a child trying to please its parents.

Dr. Louis J. West, head of the psychiatry department at UCLA, said Miss Hearst still has a "traumatic neurosis" which eventually may be cured with treatment and friendly surroundings and that she has shown considerable improvement in the past few weeks.

West was the first of three psychiatrists to be called by the defense to bolster its claim that the Hibernia bank robbery was not a voluntary act and that the 22-year-old heiress therefore should be acquitted on the bank holdup charge.

AFTER COMPLETING his direct testimony, West was put under cross examination by prosecution lawyer David Bancroft, who brought out that the psychiatrist wrote Miss Hearst's mother and father while she was still in SLA captivity.

"You wrote expressing sympathy and told them they should not despair because if she was returned to them alive it might turn out she is in such condition that she could be helped and subsequently restored to health, is that not correct?" asked Bancroft.

"Yes," said West. "I wrote to them as one parent to another. I got no reply and I expected none."

The psychiatrist also said that during 23 hours of questioning Miss Hearst in jail, for a period beginning

Bicentennial panel wins 3 grants

The Arlington Heights Bicentennial Commission has received three state grants totaling $2,800.

The commission's budget requests for $7,400 also were approved Monday by the village board's finance committee.

The commission will give the Arlington Heights Historical Society $4,500 to be put towards the purchase of 10 historical models depicting the history and growth of the village. A state grant worth $2,000 is included in that gift.

The other state grants are $500 for the staging of two plays, "Huckleberry Finn" on April 30 and "Dandelion Wine" on May 7, and $300 for a Town Meeting '76, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Jaycees.

Village funds will be used to partially fund five Bicentennial projects: The Historical Society's display, $2,500; Fourth of July fireworks show, $1,500; a three-site mini-park project, $2,000; Town Meeting '76, $600; and the two plays $800.

3 pupils confess to Field vandalism

Three 12-year-old students at Field School in Wheeling have been suspended from school for five days after the trio confessed to vandalism at the school Sunday which resulted in an estimated $4,000 to $6,000 in damage. The vandals used hammers to break wire-reinforced windows in at least 25 of the school's 36 classrooms and ransacked desks and cabinets. An official of the school, 51 Armand Ln., Wheeling, said police determined who the vandals were after getting tips from youngsters at the school, and "one thing led to another." "The three kids really gave no reason for it," an official said, "except they decided they would do it." Dist. 21 officials will consider additional disciplinary action next week.

Mother of 3 evicted from home

A Des Plaines woman was aided by volunteer workers Tuesday after she and her three children were evicted from their apartment, 960 Beau Dr. Sheriff's deputies evicted the woman, Janice Hill, along with her three children, ages 7, 9 and 12. The woman reportedly had not paid her rent for two months. But a group of volunteer workers later arrived and helped move her furniture to a house down the street. The family will stay with friends temporarily. Donald Hageman, chairman of the Red Cross disaster service who helped summon the volunteers, said he would have a Red Cross caseworker contact the woman. Volunteers aided the family in December 1974, when fire gutted the apartment and displaced them. Mrs. Hill said she was collecting unemployment but had not received a check in three months.

MRS. JANICE HILL, 960 Beau Dr., Des Plaines, checks some of her belongings after she and her three children were evicted from their apartment Tuesday.

To stay open

Scouts defer sale of camp

The proposed sale of Boy Scout Camp Napowan was deferred Tuesday by the executive board of the Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts of America.

The camp will stay open for the 1976 camping season as previously planned, said scouting officials.

The possible sale of Camp Napowan drew more than 250 persons to a council meeting earlier this month, urging Scout officials not to sell the camp. Camp Napowan contains 313 acres near Wild Rose, Wis., and has been the subject of reevaluation and possible sale for the past 15 years. It was purchased by the Scouts in 1945.

Last July the council authorized that the property be placed on the market to seek an "offer to purchase." In January, an offer was received and was considered by the council, and later discussed at a meeting Feb. 5 with Scout officials from throughout the Northwest suburbs objecting to the sale.

NORTHWEST suburban council Pres. Roger H. Klich said Tuesday that although the board acted to delay the sale of Camp Napowan, it also approved the following recommendations:

- The long-range plan of the council be reviewed and updated by September.
- Both Camp Napowan and the Namekagon Scout Reservation, also in Wisconsin, be operated in 1976.
- Money received in the event of the sale of any properties be deposited in a trust fund for the specific acquisition and development of a camp facility in keeping with the long-range plan.
- The executive committee continue negotiations to sell Camp Napowan with the final decision to be brought before the executive board.

Klich said, "There is very little likelihood that Camp Napowan will be sold without a better alternative camping solution."

3 pupils confess to Field vandalism

Three 12-year-old students at Field School in Wheeling have been suspended from school for five days after the trio confessed to vandalism at the school Sunday which resulted in an estimated $4,000 to $6,000 in damage. The vandals used hammers to break wire-reinforced windows in at least 25 of the school's 36 classrooms and ransacked desks and cabinets. An official of the school, 51 Armand Ln., Wheeling, said police determined who the vandals were after getting tips from youngsters at the school, and "one thing led to another." "The three kids really gave no reason for it," an official said, "except they decided they would do it." Dist. 21 officials will consider additional disciplinary action next week.

Mother of 3 evicted from home

A Des Plaines woman was aided by volunteer workers Tuesday after she and her three children were evicted from their apartment, 960 Beau Dr. Sheriff's deputies evicted the woman, Janice Hill, along with her three children, ages 7, 9 and 12. The woman reportedly had not paid her rent for two months. But a group of volunteer workers later arrived and helped move her furniture to a house down the street. The family will stay with friends temporarily. Donald Hageman, chairman of the Red Cross disaster service who helped summon the volunteers, said he would have a Red Cross caseworker contact the woman. Volunteers aided the family in December 1974, when fire gutted the apartment and displaced them. Mrs. Hill said she was collecting unemployment but had not received a check in three months.

The proposed sale of Boy Scout Camp Napowan was deferred Tuesday by the executive board of the Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts of America.

The camp will stay open for the 1976 camping season as previously planned, said scouting officials.

The possible sale of Camp Napowan drew more than 250 persons to a council meeting earlier this month, urging Scout officials not to sell the camp. Camp Napowan contains 313 acres near Wild Rose, Wis., and has been the subject of reevaluation and possible sale for the past 15 years. It was purchased by the Scouts in 1945.

Last July the council authorized that the property be placed on the market to seek an "offer to purchase." In January, an offer was received and was considered by the council, and later discussed at a meeting Feb. 5 with Scout officials from throughout the Northwest suburbs objecting to the sale.

NORTHWEST suburban council Pres. Roger H. Klich said Tuesday that although the board acted to delay the sale of Camp Napowan, it also approved the following recommendations:

- The long-range plan of the council be reviewed and updated by September.
- Both Camp Napowan and the Namekagon Scout Reservation, also in Wisconsin, be operated in 1976.
- Money received in the event of the sale of any properties be deposited in a trust fund for the specific acquisition and development of a camp facility in keeping with the long-range plan.
- The executive committee continue negotiations to sell Camp Napowan with the final decision to be brought before the executive board.

Klich said, "There is very little likelihood that Camp Napowan will be sold without a better alternative camping solution."

SLA drove Patty neurotic: psychiatrist

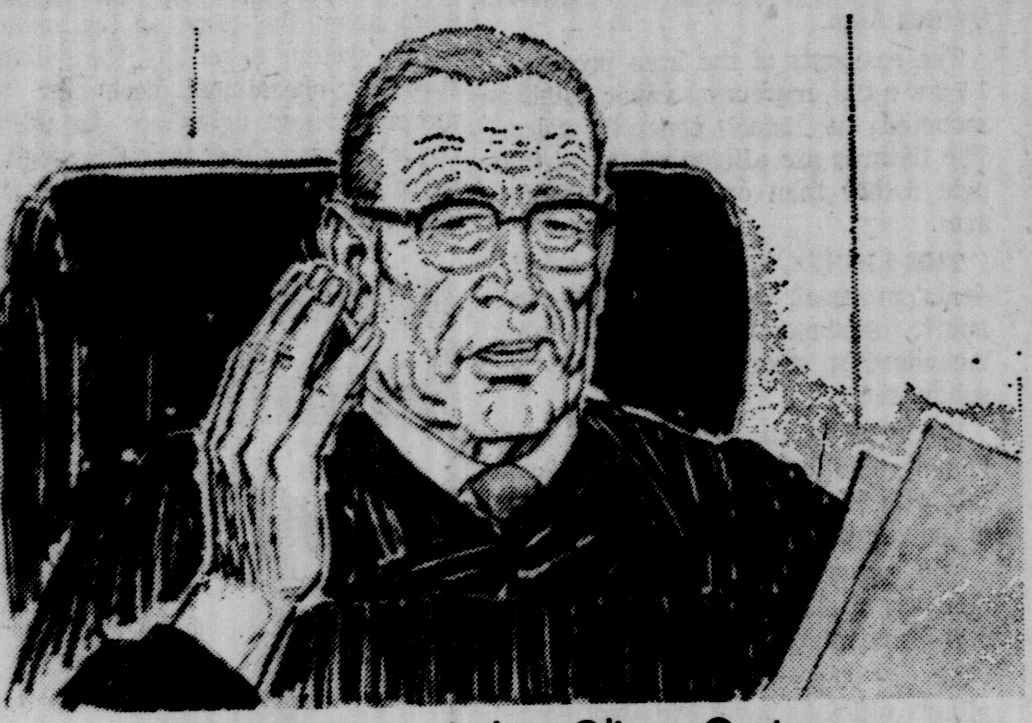
12 days after her arrest, she had given him virtually no information about her whereabouts or activities during the last year of her captivity.

She has claimed the Fifth Amendment guarantee against self incrimination on events of that period, but she also kept it secret from the doctors who talked with her.

The tiny defendant sat motionless at the defense counsel table as West told the jury of her symptoms and her "survivor syndrome." She blinked frequently, her eyes reddened, and she sipped from a cup of water.

The psychiatrist said she regressed into a childlike state of dependence on her captors and particularly on Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze.



U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter

West recalled the Los Angeles incident when she fired a machinegun at Mel's Sporting Goods store to rescue William and Emily Harris.

Her first words when the Harrises got in the van were, "Did I do it right?" West said.

"She was like a child performing for parents."

In his cross examination, Bancroft asked whether West had not shortly after her arrest and his examination said that she was sane and competent to stand trial and that later he had reversed himself and said she was not competent to stand trial.

The psychiatrist said his first statement had been a legal one and the second a medical finding after further tests.

"Do you know of any case where by virtue of brainwashing or coercive persuasion any one went out and committed acts of violence against their own kind?" Bancroft asked.

"Yes, tens of thousands of Chinese," West replied. "After being subjected to the techniques of Mao Tse-tung they went back and fought against their own people and even against their own families."

Bancroft had sought to have all of West's testimony stricken from the record on grounds that psychiatric findings were not admissible in this case because the bank robbery indictment does not go into intent.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter overruled the motion. When the trial ended for the day, Bancroft was still questioning West and was expected to continue for several hours Wednesday.

During the direct examination by defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey, West was asked what Miss Hearst's reaction had been when he first asked her about the bank robbery.

"After the usual tears and sulking, her first words were that it was 'like a dream' and she couldn't believe she had done it — it was as if everything had happened to a different person other than herself," he said.

She told him, he said, that, when Nancy Ling Perry opened fire and shot two customers at the bank, her first reaction was that her SLA captors were shooting at her.

West was asked about the occasion when Miss Hearst wet her pants as she was arrested and heard the words: "This is the FBI, freeze."

The psychiatrist said her reaction was very similar to that of a soldier who experiences his first artillery barrage — "shock, followed by overwhelming terror."

The psychiatrist said that in his extensive study of American prisoners of war held in Korea and China he had never found any significant attempts to escape by the captive officer pilots of the Air Force, Navy or Marines.

West said when DeFreeze told her she had a choice of going back to her old life or staying with the SLA she understood he was testing her.

"She did not have a decision between staying or leaving," he said. "She had a decision between living or dying."

West said he examined her again nine days ago. Earlier she had expressed fear about being put in a hospital and about being regarded as a mental case, he said. At their last meeting she told him her "greatest worry now is staying alive."

She takes the threats against her life and that of her parents very seriously, he said, but her fear is mixed with "some healthy anger" at those who threaten her.

Kissinger lashes Cuba intervention

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday warned Cuba the United States "will not tolerate" any intervention in the Western hemisphere.

Speaking at the end of his first mission to Latin America at a luncheon hosted by Costa Rican President Daniel Oduber, Kissinger lashes out at Cuba, without mentioning it by name by saying, "recent events have shown that foreign adventurism is not dead."

"Expeditionary forces may still be sent across the oceans to intervene in and impose their will upon, the domestic affairs of other countries," Kissinger said in a clear reference to Cuba's military intervention in Angola.

"The United States will not tolerate a challenge to the solemn treaty principle of nonintervention in this hemisphere," he said.

The luncheon followed a series of joint and separate meetings with foreign ministers from the Central American nations. The secretary was scheduled to hold a summit of Central American presidents but the meeting fell apart when half the presidents said they could not or would not attend.

Kissinger's talks with Juan Antonio Tack, former foreign minister of Panama, dealt mainly with the current U.S.-Panamanian Canal negotiations.

"My country is determined to continue these negotiations in good faith to our ultimate objective of a new relationship which respects the national interests of both the United States and Panama," Kissinger said.

Before returning to Washington, Kissinger was scheduled to make a brief stop in Guatemala to get a personal view of the damage caused by the earthquakes that have killed more than 22,000 persons.

Kissinger pledged U.S. assistance for the reconstruction of Guatemala and said that "today our hearts are pained by the terrible calamity which has struck our friends in Guatemala."

Treaties may override Concorde ban move

International treaties may override a New York state legislative effort to ban the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic transport, Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. said Tuesday. Coleman said New York must admit the SST if no paying passengers are aboard. And he expressed doubt that the state can legally pass and enforce a noise pollution law so strict it would keep the Concorde from landing at John F. Kennedy Airport. The New York legislature Monday passed and sent to Gov. Hugh Carey a bill which would direct the New York-New Jersey Port Authority to issue noise restrictions the Concorde could not possibly meet.

Crews for space shuttle tests announced

The space agency in Houston Tuesday announced the first two astronaut crews for space shuttle approach and landing tests in 1977. Astronauts Fred Haise Jr., who flew on the near-disastrous Apollo 13, and rookies Charles G. Fullerton, Joe H. Engle and Richard H. Truly comprise the two, two-man crews. Haise and Engle will be commanders and Fullerton and Truly are designated pilots. The space shuttle is a reusable craft which will be launched like a rocket and land like an airplane. The approach and landing tests will only use the second stage of the shuttle, called the orbiter.

Agents raid Lockheed's Tokyo office

Hundreds of government agents Tuesday raided Lockheed Aircraft International's Tokyo office and 27 private homes and businesses and seized tons of papers in connection with the Lockheed payoff scandal. Some 380 officials of Tokyo Metropolitan Police, the Tokyo District Public Prosecutor's office and the Tokyo Tax Administration bureau carried out the joint search. Officials said they will examine the papers to investigate the flow of payoffs allegedly made by Lockheed in connection with the sale of its aircraft in Japan.

Brezhnev praises spirit of detente

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev Tuesday praised the spirit of detente with the United States but warned Communists would never "reconcile themselves with capitliast exploitation." Brezhnev, keynoting the 25th Community party congress, also deplored U.S. policies on the arms race and regarding Third World nations and said the Soviet Union had "not the slightest intention of attacking anyone."

He also called for four-power guarantees to secure the borders of Middle East nations and proposed a treaty banning force in solving world disputes.

Nixon gives Chinese 'campaign trail' greeting

Crowds yell welcome and swarm Nixon

PEKING (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon stumped like a politician on the campaign trail in Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace Square Tuesday, chatting, laughing and shaking hands with crowds of curious Chinese.

Nixon strolled in the square where mass rallies used to be held to cheer party leader Mao Tse-tung and was immediately surrounded by crowds of Chinese shouting "welcome to China!" and grabbing at his hand.

Residents of the capital said it was the first time they could remember such an event.

Earlier Nixon quipped with his Chinese hosts about Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the 1969 Sino-Soviet border clash, a sore subject between the feuding Communist giants.

In the square he told the crowd to come visit the United States and that he would greet them.

He asked one man, holding a young boy in his arms, if he wanted to have more children. "Only one more," the man replied. "We must answer the call of our government to practice birth control."

"What do you want him to be when he grows up?" Nixon asked.

"Whatever our government decides," the father replied. "To answer the call of Chairman Mao."

Nixon stopped to talk with one man who had welcomed him in English and said, "I hope you will come to the United States some day. I will greet you then."

Then, moving his arms in a sweeping movement, he said: "You're all young. You all have time to visit the United States. I'm sure you will some day."

Doctor views disease control

Hospital incurred infections probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 1.5 million patients spend an extra week in hospitals each year, at a cost of $1 billion, recovering from infections they incurred in the hospital, a top government health official told Congress Tuesday.

"Hospital acquired infections continue to be a major problem," said Dr. David Sencer, director of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The government has begun a major study to determine which hospital infection control procedures are most adequate, Sencer told a House appropriations subcommittee.

Testifying for President Ford's $143.3 billion disease control budget request for fiscal year 1977 — down from an estimated $153.5 million this year — Sencer also said:

- Venereal disease continues to increase "at unacceptable high levels," particularly in California and Florida; gonnorrhea still is the most frequently reported infectious disease in the country; VD rates are rising among men and declining among women.
- Fewer than two-thirds of the nation's preschool children have adequate immunization protection against polio, measles and German measles or rubella.
- Scientists are considering a vaccine against mosquito-borne encephalitis, which reached an all-time high 2,000 cases in the United States last year, with 100 deaths reported. Sencer testified he sees little hope for developing such a vaccine.
- Disease detectives are investigating a cluster of birth defects among infants in the Charleston, W.Va., area. He did not specify the defect or provide other details.

Sencer said influenza scientists "are concerned" about the possibility of a worldwide epidemic caused by a virus similar to one that claimed 20 million lives in the 1918-19 pandemic.

"Do you feel the action being taken now is adequate to protect the country?" asked Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

"Yes sir, this is not only my position but that of the National Institutes of Health and the (Food and Drug Administration's) bureau of biologics," replied Sencer.

Vaccine makers were given a tentative go-ahead by government health agencies last Friday to develop a vaccine against the suspect strain.

Sencer said scientists should know within two or three weeks whether the suspected virus has potential for an pandemic.

Karen Quinlan's bruises go unexplained

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey's attorney general, his mind "not yet at rest," Tuesday closed his investigation into the last conscious days of comatose Karen Quinlan, whose parents want to end her life by turning off her respirator.

He left unanswered questions of possible foul play in the girl's 10-month-long existence as a "vegetable."

In a short, carefully worded statement, Atty. Gen. William F. Hyland said he had virtually reconstructed all of Karen's activities during her last three conscious days but he still could not explain how she received several bruises and "a bump" on her body.

He said he could find no evidence 21-year-old Karen, who has been in a coma since last April, was the victim of a criminal assault.

"The investigation has turned up no evidence of foul play leading to those bruises and the bump, nor any indication that they may have led to the coma," Hyland said.

"There is no witness known to us who can explain when and how the injury was received," he said.

"While my mind is not yet at rest on the issue of whether there was foul play involved in these injuries, we have to conclude for present purposes that further investigation would not be fruitful."

The Quinlan case drew nationwide attention last fall when Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked a Superior Court judge to allow them to halt use of a life-sustaining respirator so their daughter could "die with grace and dignity.

They lost the plea, but an appeal in the case is now before the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Hyland quietly began pursuing his investigation last October after he said he was disturbed about the lack of medical information in the "right to die" trial about the bruises.

House OKs cheap handgun ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee Tuesday for the first time approved a ban on the sale, manufacture and importation of cheap, easily concealable handguns such as "Saturday Night Specials."

The committee, working on legislation to tighten up federal gun control laws, voted 18 to 14 in favor of a provision aimed at cutting down on the quantity and availability of small, inexpensive handguns.

Up until now, the committee has repeatedly defeated proposals to ban handguns. The Rep. Martin Russo amendment was almost identical to one he had offered last week.

The amendment would ban the importation, manufacture and sale of any revolver with a frame of less than 5¾ inches or a barrel of less than 4 inches and any pistol with an overall length of less than 8½ inches.

West was asked about the occasion when Miss Hearst wet her pants as she was arrested and heard the words: "This is the FBI, freeze."

The psychiatrist said her reaction was very similar to that of a soldier who experiences his first artillery barrage — "shock, followed by overwhelming terror."

The psychiatrist said that in his extensive study of American prisoners of war held in Korea and China he had never found any significant attempts to escape by the captive officer pilots of the Air Force, Navy or Marines.

West said when DeFreeze told her she had a choice of going back to her old life or staying with the SLA she understood he was testing her.

"She did not have a decision between staying or leaving," he said. "She had a decision between living or dying."

West said he examined her again nine days ago. Earlier she had expressed fear about being put in a hospital and about being regarded as a mental case, he said. At their last meeting she told him her "greatest worry now is staying alive."

She takes the threats against her life and that of her parents very seriously, he said, but her fear is mixed with "some healthy anger" at those who threaten her.

Kissinger lashes Cuba intervention

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday warned Cuba the United States "will not tolerate" any intervention in the Western hemisphere.

Speaking at the end of his first mission to Latin America at a luncheon hosted by Costa Rican President Daniel Oduber, Kissinger lashes out at Cuba, without mentioning it by name by saying, "recent events have shown that foreign adventurism is not dead."

"Expeditionary forces may still be sent across the oceans to intervene in and impose their will upon, the domestic affairs of other countries," Kissinger said in a clear reference to Cuba's military intervention in Angola.

"The United States will not tolerate a challenge to the solemn treaty principle of nonintervention in this hemisphere," he said.

The luncheon followed a series of joint and separate meetings with foreign ministers from the Central American nations. The secretary was scheduled to hold a summit of Central American presidents but the meeting fell apart when half the presidents said they could not or would not attend.

Kissinger's talks with Juan Antonio Tack, former foreign minister of Panama, dealt mainly with the current U.S.-Panamanian Canal negotiations.

"My country is determined to continue these negotiations in good faith to our ultimate objective of a new relationship which respects the national interests of both the United States and Panama," Kissinger said.

Before returning to Washington, Kissinger was scheduled to make a brief stop in Guatemala to get a personal view of the damage caused by the earthquakes that have killed more than 22,000 persons.

Kissinger pledged U.S. assistance for the reconstruction of Guatemala and said that "today our hearts are pained by the terrible calamity which has struck our friends in Guatemala."

Treaties may override Concorde ban move

International treaties may override a New York state legislative effort to ban the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic transport, Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. said Tuesday. Coleman said New York must admit the SST if no paying passengers are aboard. And he expressed doubt that the state can legally pass and enforce a noise pollution law so strict it would keep the Concorde from landing at John F. Kennedy Airport. The New York legislature Monday passed and sent to Gov. Hugh Carey a bill which would direct the New York-New Jersey Port Authority to issue noise restrictions the Concorde could not possibly meet.

Crews for space shuttle tests announced

The space agency in Houston Tuesday announced the first two astronaut crews for space shuttle approach and landing tests in 1977. Astronauts Fred Haise Jr., who flew on the near-disastrous Apollo 13, and rookies Charles G. Fullerton, Joe H. Engle and Richard H. Truly comprise the two, two-man crews. Haise and Engle will be commanders and Fullerton and Truly are designated pilots. The space shuttle is a reusable craft which will be launched like a rocket and land like an airplane. The approach and landing tests will only use the second stage of the shuttle, called the orbiter.

Agents raid Lockheed's Tokyo office

Hundreds of government agents Tuesday raided Lockheed Aircraft International's Tokyo office and 27 private homes and businesses and seized tons of papers in connection with the Lockheed payoff scandal. Some 380 officials of Tokyo Metropolitan Police, the Tokyo District Public Prosecutor's office and the Tokyo Tax Administration bureau carried out the joint search. Officials said they will examine the papers to investigate the flow of payoffs allegedly made by Lockheed in connection with the sale of its aircraft in Japan.

Brezhnev praises spirit of detente

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev Tuesday praised the spirit of detente with the United States but warned Communists would never "reconcile themselves with capitliast exploitation." Brezhnev, keynoting the 25th Community party congress, also deplored U.S. policies on the arms race and regarding Third World nations and said the Soviet Union had "not the slightest intention of attacking anyone."

He also called for four-power guarantees to secure the borders of Middle East nations and proposed a treaty banning force in solving world disputes.

Crowds yell welcome and swarm Nixon

Nixon gives Chinese 'campaign trail' greeting

PEKING (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon stumped like a politician on the campaign trail in Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace Square Tuesday, chatting, laughing and shaking hands with crowds of curious Chinese.

Nixon strolled in the square where mass rallies used to be held to cheer party leader Mao Tse-tung and was immediately surrounded by crowds of Chinese shouting "welcome to China!" and grabbing at his hand.

Residents of the capital said it was the first time they could remember such an event.

Earlier Nixon quipped with his Chinese hosts about Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the 1969 Sino-Soviet border clash, a sore subject between the feuding Communist giants.

In the square he told the crowd to come visit the United States and that he would greet them.

He asked one man, holding a young boy in his arms, if he wanted to have more children. "Only one more," the man replied. "We must answer the call of our government to practice birth control."

"What do you want him to be when he grows up?" Nixon asked.

"Whatever our government decides," the father replied. "To answer the call of Chairman Mao."

Nixon stopped to talk with one man who had welcomed him in English and said, "I hope you will come to the United States some day. I will greet you then."

Then, moving his arms in a sweeping movement, he said: "You're all young. You all have time to visit the United States. I'm sure you will some day."

Doctor views disease control

Hospital incurred infections probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 1.5 million patients spend an extra week in hospitals each year, at a cost of $1 billion, recovering from infections they incurred in the hospital, a top government health official told Congress Tuesday.

"Hospital acquired infections continue to be a major problem," said Dr. David Sencer, director of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The government has begun a major study to determine which hospital infection control procedures are most adequate, Sencer told a House appropriations subcommittee.

Testifying for President Ford's $143.3 billion disease control budget request for fiscal year 1977 — down from an estimated $153.5 million this year — Sencer also said:

- Venereal disease continues to increase "at unacceptable high levels," particularly in California and Florida; gonnorrhea still is the most frequently reported infectious disease in the country; VD rates are rising among men and declining among women.
- Fewer than two-thirds of the nation's preschool children have adequate immunization protection against polio, measles and German measles or rubella.
- Scientists are considering a vaccine against mosquito-borne encephalitis, which reached an all-time high 2,000 cases in the United States last year, with 100 deaths reported. Sencer testified he sees little hope for developing such a vaccine.
- Disease detectives are investigating a cluster of birth defects among infants in the Charleston, W.Va., area. He did not specify the defect or provide other details.

Sencer said influenza scientists "are concerned" about the possibility of a worldwide epidemic caused by a virus similar to one that claimed 20 million lives in the 1918-19 pandemic.

"Do you feel the action being taken now is adequate to protect the country?" asked Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

"Yes sir, this is not only my position but that of the National Institutes of Health and the (Food and Drug Administration's) bureau of biologics," replied Sencer.

Vaccine makers were given a tentative go-ahead by government health agencies last Friday to develop a vaccine against the suspect strain.

Sencer said scientists should know within two or three weeks whether the suspected virus has potential for an pandemic.

Karen Quinlan's bruises go unexplained

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey's attorney general, his mind "not yet at rest," Tuesday closed his investigation into the last conscious days of comatose Karen Quinlan, whose parents want to end her life by turning off her respirator.

He left unanswered questions of possible foul play in the girl's 10-month-long existence as a "vegetable."

In a short, carefully worded statement, Atty. Gen. William F. Hyland said he had virtually reconstructed all of Karen's activities during her last three conscious days but he still could not explain how she received several bruises and "a bump" on her body.

He said he could find no evidence 21-year-old Karen, who has been in a coma since last April, was the victim of a criminal assault.

"The investigation has turned up no evidence of foul play leading to those bruises and the bump, nor any indication that they may have led to the coma," Hyland said.

"There is no witness known to us who can explain when and how the injury was received," he said.

"While my mind is not yet at rest on the issue of whether there was foul play involved in these injuries, we have to conclude for present purposes that further investigation would not be fruitful."

The Quinlan case drew nationwide attention last fall when Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked a Superior Court judge to allow them to halt use of a life-sustaining respirator so their daughter could "die with grace and dignity.

They lost the plea, but an appeal in the case is now before the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Hyland quietly began pursuing his investigation last October after he said he was disturbed about the lack of medical information in the "right to die" trial about the bruises.

House OKs cheap handgun ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee Tuesday for the first time approved a ban on the sale, manufacture and importation of cheap, easily concealable handguns such as "Saturday Night Specials."

The committee, working on legislation to tighten up federal gun control laws, voted 18 to 14 in favor of a provision aimed at cutting down on the quantity and availability of small, inexpensive handguns.

Up until now, the committee has repeatedly defeated proposals to ban handguns. The Rep. Martin Russo amendment was almost identical to one he had offered last week.

The amendment would ban the importation, manufacture and sale of any revolver with a frame of less than 5¾ inches or a barrel of less than 4 inches and any pistol with an overall length of less than 8½ inches.

Scarsdale subdivision to get 'test' street lights

Five streetlights will be installed in the Scarsdale subdivision to test residents's reactions to concrete pole-mounted mercury vapor lamps.

The installation, recommended by the Arlington Heights Village Board's community services committee, will take place as soon as poles and fixtures are available, said Trustee Robert Miller, committee chairman.

The streetlight style is one recommended by the Scarsdale Property Owners Assn.

The residents of the area proposed 175-watt mercury vapor lights mounted on 15-foot concrete poles. The fixtures are affixed on top of the pole rather than on an overhanging arm.

THE LIGHTS, according to the residents' proposal, would be set 220 feet apart, the same spacing used for the incandescent streetlights now in the subdivision.

Raymond Funk, president of the homeowners' group, said the light system also could be used in other parts of the village.

Still unresolved, however, is the question of state funding for the proposed streetlight system.

At the suggested 220-foot spacing, village officials have said they doubt the lights would meet the brightness requirements necessary for the use of state motor fuel tax funds.

Miller said he is uncertain how rigid the standards are for a residential area such as Scarsdale. He said the proposed plan will have to be submitted to the state for a ruling.

RESIDENTS FROM the area have volunteered to help get legislative support for the lighting system to get the motor fuel tax money.

Miller said the test should be completed within 120 days of installation. He said the results will be given to the village plan commission now considering a revised streetlight policy for the entire village.

The resident-proposed light system costs about the same as the sodium vapor system urged by the village. However, operational costs for the mercury vapor lights are higher because mercury vapor bulbs require more electricity to equal the brightness of sodium vapor lights.

Dist. 59 mulls residents' question:

'What is an alternative school?'

by PAM BIGFORD

There's a lot of talk in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 about developing an alternative school, but many district residents have one question: Just what is an alternative school?

Some residents told the board of education this week that many district parents were confused about what an alternative school would offer.

A questionnaire asking parents if they would send their children to an alternative school which stressed basic academic subjects and firm behavior standards was confusing, parents said.

Board members originally intended to make a final decision at their board meeting March 1 on whether an alternative school would be offered this fall, but instead agreed to consider a resolution to hold public hearings to provide the community with more information.

ASSOCIATE SUPT. Robert Brower said he is drawing up a resolution for board consideration which would schedule the public hearings for four nights beginning March 8 throughout the district. Brower said the board could meet March 12 to make the final decision on the school.

Brower said the public hearings would probably involve a formal presentation on what the school would offer and a question-and-answer period.

Brower said alternative schools have been created throughout the country, but most are in the liberal vein. Residents of Dist. 59, however, have expressed a need for a more conservative alternative school "of a competitive academic type," he said.

A broad description of the school that the board and administration have in mind is one which will "emphasize a teaching method which is large group, lecture-oriented and competitive," Brower said.

"IT IS MEANT to be an alternate to our current schools which rely upon a teaching method which is small-group oriented, individually paced and utilizes carefully controlled competitive pressures," Brower said.

Suggestions in the profile are:

- Emphasis would be placed on reading, grammar, spelling, handwriting, composition, foreign language, math, history, geography and science.
- Art, music and physical education would be considered secondary subjects taught only when time permits. Industrial arts and home economics would not be taught.
- The school will eventually be offeed to students in grades 1 to 8.
- Adult standards of behavior will be required, and dress codes will be maintained. There will be punishments for infraction of rules.

A CONTROVERSIAL point at the meeting was whether the school should be offered at one centrally-located school or at as many schools as possible.

Brower said one factor in favor of a central location is money. He estimated that it would cost the district about $10,000 to establish the school in one location, but more locations would require more resources, primarily secretarial.

Brower said the school would be open to all students whose parents and teachers thought they could function better in a more directed school.

Bleak years predicted for Dist. 59 finances

Financial projections for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 for the next several years continue to look bleak, according to figures presented to the board Tuesday night.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services, presented figures Tuesday showing a slowdown in the district's assessed valuation, a steady drop in state aid funding to the district and a continued increase in expenses — all factors that will push the district into spending more money than it will receive in revenue.

The equalized assessed valuation in the district jumped from about $377 million in the 1972-73 school year to about $523 million in 1975-76, a 38 per cent increase. Projection for the 1976-77 school year show an assessed valuation of about $537 million increasing to about $590 million by 1979-80, only a 13 per cent jump.

AT THE SAME time, Perry's figures show state aid to the district peak ed in 1973-74, with $3.43 million coming in under the then new state aid formula. Projections show that by the 1978-79 school year the district will only receive $991,308 or about $48 a student.

"State aid is dropping to such a point (for Dist. 59) that no matter what the state does they can't hurt us," Perry said.

Because of the state aid drop the district will have to depend on local money raised through property taxes. The district received a 25 cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase last fall and that money will begin coming in to the district during the 1976-77 school year.

Even with the tax increase, revenue will not meet projected expenses, Perry said.

WITH A 6 per cent increase per year in expenses, brought about by increases in salaries and inflation, expenses will exceed revenue by about $3 million by the 1978-79 school year, the projections show.

"The task before the board is to close that gap as much as possible," Perry said.

Board Pres. Judy Zanca said the district will have to reduce expenditures "this year, next year and each and every year."

The Dist. 59 board is in the midst of studying what effect a balanced budget will have on the current educational program. Perry's report was one of a series of projections board members have requested to determine ways of increasing revenue and cutting expenses.

Funding drain may sink drug unit

The Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an undercover drug enforcement agency faces financial uncertainty, and its director, John Hinchy, says he does not know how much longer it will function.

Hinchy said MEG "couldn't go it" for the full 1976-77 fiscal year on the $175,000 in federal money alloted recently by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. He said he had asked for $350,000 for the year from July 1 to June 30 — about $150,000 less than the agency received the last fiscal year.

John Fahnestock, an ILEC police specialist, said the drug unit should have money to function through Dec. 31, but "beyond Dec. 31, any extra is highly unlikely."

Hinchy questioned ILEC priorities, saying they needed reevalutation.

Fahnestock said the amount of money channeled into the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration system has been cut substantially and there had been many cutbacks, including elimination of programs.

"THAT'S EXACTLY what we're going to do — collapse — unless something drastic happens," Hinchy said.

The funding would not affect manpower. There are 25 Cook County Sheriff's policemen in the agency, along with 20 policemen from the participating suburban communities, including many Northwest suburban towns.

The cuts would affect office and auto leasing, along with "buy" money, office staff and monthly bills. "Money is the name of the narcotics game," Hinchy said. "If we don't have the money to make the buys, we can't arrest anyone."

Although only 10 per cent of the budget goes for buy money, telephone bills run as high as $25,000 a year for the agency, Hinchy said. "We cut costs considerably from last year," he said, noting satellite offices had to be shut down.

HINCHY SAID he will consult with the council of police chiefs that governs the agency to see if money can be found to fund MEG. "Obviously, the county does not have the funds to do it," he said. "And each town is faced with this same predicament."

Since MEG's inception in Dec. 1, 1971, the unit has arrested 2,968 drug dealers, seized $9.5 million worth of drugs and is responsible for funneling information about $2.4 million of unreported dealers' income to the Internal Revenue Service, Hinchy said.

"The need for a MEG unit has increased out here," he said. "We used to find when we made a connection out here, it took us to Chicago for heroin. But now, we make a connection out here, and we don't go to Chicago hardly anymore.

"This will make the dealers very happy," Hinchy added.

Aldrich 'grins and bears it,' Calderwood remains mum

by JOE SWICKARD

"Grin and bear it. You can't argue with the democratic process," Jack Aldrich said with the appropriate facial expression.

Aldrich, the village policeman who retired with honors after more than 20 years on the force to become chief in Barrington Hills, had evolved in just two weeks to that "disgruntled former employe."

With his conscience prompting him, he caused a letter to be delivered to the village board. In it, he said he thought the police department under Chief L. W. Calderwood was mismanaged and was suffering from low morale.

HIS MOTIVATION, this honored yet disgruntled former police captain said, was his desire to get a management study of the department released 11 months after it was called for, and four months after its completion.

The ensuing ruckus swirled around the 72-year-old Calderwood, who maintained his "no comment" position through two hearings of the village board. He sat silently through both sessions, his arms crossed.

He watched closely as two of his former captains were called upon to comment on his command. There was an equal lack of reaction to either Aldrich or Irvin McDougall, who is now chief in Downstate Mendota.

There was no emotional giveaway in either attack or when McDougall said, "Our department was one of the best in the state."

He sat impassively as Robert Gerth, president of the local Fraternal Order of Police, read a statement of confidence in the chief and his administration.

CALDERWOOD HAD A front-row seat to watch Gene Deck say the non-FOP policemen had confidence and good morale, too.

Aldrich sat in the rear, occasionally making notes on his yellow legal pad. He had spoken and now he, too, was sitting quietly.

The audience, a great number of whom were policemen, and their families, took careful note of what was being said. Observers were reminded of their profession when a walkie-talkie crackled briefly with a police call.

Aldrich and Calderwood maintained their silence when a vote of confidence in the chief was called and passed unanimously. Neither moved as Village Pres. James T. Ryan said, "I just feel very proud as a resident" of the job Calderwood has done in 18 years of command in Arlington Heights.

As the meeting ended, the chief's expression changed.

Aldrich was going to have to grin and bear it, but the chief was smiling.

Calderwood given vote of confidence

therefore am concerned that we have a good police department. That's all I ask," he said.

THE VILLAGE BOARD rejected a suggestion from Trustees Frank Palmatier and Madeline Schroeder, as well as former Trustee Russell Colvin, that an outside consultant be hired to study the police department.

"It's obvious the time has come to engage a competent professional from the outside to conduct a normal review of our police department," Colvin said. "It is obvious there is a cloud over the department."

Trustee August Bettman disagreed, saying "I don't want to spend the village's money on a consultant if it's just a personality clash of an ex-employe."

BEDRIDDEN WITH a broken ankle, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, announced Tuesday she is appointing a "surrogate" committee to represent her at various events. Mrs. Chapman said the group will include Illinois House Speaker Willian Redmond, D-Bensenville, State Representatives Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine; Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie and Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, and other Democratic officials in the area.

Young's attitude 'suicide': Nimrod

State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, called Tuesday for one of his opponents in the Republican primary race for the 10th Congressional District to withdraw.

Nimrod charged former Congressman Samuel H. Young revealed a "suicidal attitude" in a recent newspaper interview.

Young was quoted in a news story as saying, "I really have no burning desire to serve in Congress."

Young has told The Herald he stands by the quote but insists he is running a serious campaign for Congress.

"Nimrod's comments do not even warrant a reply," Young added.

Nimrod contended, "If this is how Sam (Young) feels about the office he is seeking, then he cannot put on the kind of vigorous campaign the Republican Party needs to defeat Abner Mikva. He has destroyed any ability he might have to win in November.

Young is generally seen as the current frontrunner in the three-man primary race, which includes Daniel Hales of Winnetka.

Young missed getting the Evanston Township Republican Organization's support by a slim margin on Saturday.

The group failed to endorse any candidate. A 60 per cent vote of the membership is needed to get the group's backing, and both Nimrod and Hales finished behind Young.

Static Electricity

by Ed Landwehr

That sudden shock you get when you touch the knob of your television set after walking across the living room carpet is caused by static electricity. Your clothing and body pick up the charge from the carpet, and touching an object releases it. Now there are encouraging experiments going on at Columbia University that show this phenomenon can quicken the healing of bone fractures. In some cases it succeeded on fractures that otherwise wouldn't heal.

Sometimes we get calls at Landwehr's TV & Appliances about shocks. Customers think there's a short in their set. You can imagine how many shocks we get in the routine of servicing from day to day. We must have strong bones. At least now you know that this phenomenon might do some good. BEDRIDDEN WITH a broken ankle, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, announced Tuesday she is appointing a "surrogate" committee to represent her at various events. Mrs. Chapman said the group will include Illinois House Speaker Willian Redmond, D-Bensenville, State Representatives Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine; Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie and Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, and other Democratic officials in the area.

Young's attitude 'suicide': Nimrod

State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, called Tuesday for one of his opponents in the Republican primary race for the 10th Congressional District to withdraw.

Nimrod charged former Congressman Samuel H. Young revealed a "suicidal attitude" in a recent newspaper interview.

Young was quoted in a news story as saying, "I really have no burning desire to serve in Congress."

Young has told The Herald he stands by the quote but insists he is running a serious campaign for Congress.

"Nimrod's comments do not even warrant a reply," Young added.

Nimrod contended, "If this is how Sam (Young) feels about the office he is seeking, then he cannot put on the kind of vigorous campaign the Republican Party needs to defeat Abner Mikva. He has destroyed any ability he might have to win in November.

Young is generally seen as the current frontrunner in the three-man primary race, which includes Daniel Hales of Winnetka.

Young missed getting the Evanston Township Republican Organization's support by a slim margin on Saturday.

The group failed to endorse any candidate. A 60 per cent vote of the membership is needed to get the group's backing, and both Nimrod and Hales finished behind Young.

The way we see it

We support Meadows vote

Rolling Meadows voters finally will be able to decide for themselves what their elected officials have been arguing about for months — how many aldermen should represent the city and whether a strong city manager system of government should be formed.

The people of Rolling Meadows are the best ones to decide how they will be governed, and despite the political infighting between Mayor Roland J. Meyer and several aldermen, the controversy appears to be near resolution.

Meyer and the council fought over the specifics of the referendum with Meyer eventually emerging as the victor. He vetoed an aldermanic-sponsored referendum in favor of one of his own which proposes cutting the size of the council from 10 to five members. He filed petitions calling for a three-pronged referendum in which voters will decide:

- Whether a strong manager form of government should be established. The strong manager system gives the city manager the power to hire and fire his employes and generally strengthens the role of the manager in determining the day-to-day operation of city government.
- Whether aldermen should continue to be elected by wards. There currently are five wards with two aldermen elected from each district.
- Whether the number of aldermen should be reduced from 10 to five.

The court will decide the date of the referendum.

We believe there is a definite need for a strong municipal manager.

We also believe there simply is too much politics being played on all fronts in the city, and that Meyer — for the first time faced with an earnest challenge to his dominance — wants the size of the council reduced for the wrong reasons.

The people of Rolling Meadows must see through the guise and ultimately decide whether having an alderman living down the street is important to them. Meanwhile, the electorate, during the next few months, will be faced with wading through the rhetoric from Meyer and from the aldermen who obviously do not want their jobs weakened or eliminated.

What is encouraging is that a series of public hearings will be held, and in a public referendum the people finally will be able to say how they want things run in Rolling Meadows.

Vote 'yes' on library

If Rolling Meadows residents want to maintain their excellent library, they should vote "yes" on Saturday's tax rate referendum.

Like other institutions, the 12-year-old library is suffering from inflation and the cost squeeze. So, library officials are asking voters to increase taxes to what seems to us to be still a modest level.

Officials are seeking a hike of 14 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; that increase could eventually raise the present rate to 29 cents. However, those officials have promised to levy only 4 cents of that increase next year, or $2.80 per average property owner. When the full increase is used, it would still cost a property owner only $9.80 per year over the present rate.

Unless voters approve the increase, library hours and staff will probably have to be cut back — and for the thousands of Rolling Meadows residents who depend on the library for pleasure reading and research, this would be bad news.

This is a bare-bones increase, for the city council last month rejected an $880,000 expansion plan as part of the vote. Unless Rolling Meadows residents approve this reasonable request on Saturday, they'll be less able to take advantage of the books and worthwhile services provided by the library.

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 25, the 56th day of 1976 with 310 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and the new phase.

The morninig stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

French painter Pierre Renoir was born Feb. 25, 1841.

On this day in history:

- In 1901, J. P. Morgan formed the United States Steel Corporation in New Jersey, to become the nation's first "billion-dollar" enterprise.
- In 1919, Oregon became the first state to put a tax on gasoline — one per cent.
- In 1967, American warships began shelling Vietnam.
- In 1975, President Ford warned that Cambodia would soon fall to the Communists unless Congress approved his request for $222 million dollars in new aid.

A thought for the day: American philosopher William James said, "There is no more miserable human being than one in whom nothing is habitual but indecision."

She's concerned by caucus' acts

I can fully understand Pam Bigford's concern in the Feb. 13 Education Today column about what happened at the Dist. 62 School Board Caucus meeting on Feb. 9, especially as it was her first. As chairman of the 62 Caucus I was also concerned.

I was concerned about several things. First of all, I was concerned that only five people, including the incumbent, Mr. Birchfield, showed an interest in running for the two openings on the Dist. 62 school board. I was concerned that of the 51 voting delegates of the caucus, nine did not have enough interest to attend the meeting or even send an alternate which they may do. I was concerned that not even one question was asked of the nominees by the delegates, as in past years, especially with the lack of information from the nominees. (By the way, every year 50 per cent or more of the delegates are new to the caucus). I was concerned that the delegates waited until after the vote was taken to say they did not have enough information concerning the nominees' views. I was concerned that even when they were given an opportunity to ask questions (twice) the delegates voted not to do so.

I am also concerned about what Pam Bigford's interpretation of "democracy at work" is! She claimed that "democracy was shoved aside at Dist. 62 Caucus meeting." I believe the meeting was as democratic as a meeting of this kind can be. The nominees were given the opportunity to speak about anything they wished, the delegates were asked a couple of times after each nominee spoke if they had any questions, the delegates were allowed to speak openly about their concern on the lack of information and twice had the opportunity to have the nominees return for questioning but voted against doing so, (11 delegates voted to have them return, not one-third, as Ms. Bigford stated), suggestions were asked for to improve communication between the member organizations, delegates and the caucus and also to help alleviate the lack of concern in finding good candidates for the school boards. As a result, a motion was passed to have a committee appointed to bring suggestions to the caucus' next meeting in October. I really do not know how much more democratic than this we could have been. If Ms. Bigford knows, I wish she would tell me.

P.S. It will be interesting to see how many concerned citizens vote in the school board election on April 10!

Coroner's views draw fire

We're appreciative of the stories in your newspapers concerning our exciting new family entertainment center, Marriott's Great America. The story written by Tim Moran on Jan. 28 was well done. Unfortunately, it contained one quote from a misguided public official for which a comment is in order.

Lake County Coroner Oscar Lind stated that he has a new employe in training, and that he expects a large case load increase because of deaths at Marriott's Great America. This is clearly the most asinine excuse for empire-building that I have ever seen.

The record at other comparable parks indicates that deaths simply don't occur, though obviously in any crowd the law of averages may single out an individual. But to imply that this park will cause people to keel over regularly is absurd and unfair. Mr. Lind should check his facts more thoroughly, and those who must approve his budgets should certainly require him to substantiate his requests.

I might also note that, contrary to the thoughts of Chief Deputy Corder of the Sheriff's office, we're certain that our park will create no noticeable increase in general crime in the community. We have letters from the police or sheriff's department in every community having a regional park. To the very last one, all state there has been no significant crime increase attributable to the theme park in their areas.

In general, we have found the state, county, and village officials to be both professional and responsible, and we're sure that this one bit of commentary by the coroner was more officious than official.

Her mission: save the wild horses

I have a problem.

My class is studying endangered species, and one is the wild horse. I really love horses, and I take horseback riding lessons. I love horses more than any other animal.

So I want to help save wild horses, so that's why I sent this letter. I might get a horse. And I'm planning on living on a farm.

There are no adequate words to express appreciation to them for their efficient, knowledgeable and compassionate efforts. We are deeply grateful to Art Christenson, Bob Lockhart, Bill Dressel and Robert Dumay for the emergency care they gave Frank Hogan on Jan. 15, helping to save his life.

Backs restraint

Every day the news media, TV and radio programs harp on abortion control, birth control, energy control, minority and ethnic controls (i.e., blacks vs. Latinos vs. whites), ecology control, etc., but never do we read or hear one word relating to self-control. It seems to me, judging from the news I read and hear as well as the people I come in contact with from day to day, that what this poor world, especially the good old United States, needs most is kindness and more kindness — less selfishness and more consideration for others. The thing is that so many people are blunt, almost crude in their way; they shove and push and step on other's toes as well as getting on other people's nerves. An attitude of "I got mine how did you make out" is becoming more and more prevalent and the sad thing is that the temptation to make mean remarks, damage another's reputation, shove shopping carts into the sides of other's autos, damage another's property, is almost irresistible in such an emotional state.

Our anger and hatred today will make some lives darker — but chiefly our own life. Our tolerance and kindness each day may affect the outlook and conditions of persons we are hardly aware of, and certainly will affect our own condition incalculably for good. Isn't it time we all practiced self control and most certainly many of the social and other controls that plague us will disappear, thereby giving the courts more time to deliberate on and carry out man-made laws that are for the good of all Americans and not for just a few individuals.

Howlett and Walker exchange low blows

Mudslinging marks Democratic governor's race

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Gov. Daniel Walker and Sec. of State Michael Howlett are not letting interest wane in their campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

In fact, the campaign seems to have become so heated that the pair has put aside, at least temporarily, what they had been calling main issues and picked up new ones.

A few weeks ago, Walker was shouting that his defeat to Howlett would mean an extension of Chicago political bossism throughout the state. And that was the main issue of the campaign.

Howlett hollered the "main issue" was Walker's reckless mismanagement of the state.

That was pretty clear, bossism versus mismanagement. But now after a few days have slipped by, it appears the main issues have changed.

"Walker to reveal 1972 campaign contributors," the headlines blared and a top aide to the governor said Walker will release the long-sought contributors' names "to prevent Daley and Howlett from obscuring a central issue in the campaign — Howlett's personal integrity and honesty in public office."

Howlett bobs, weaves and announces he is quitting his $15,000-a-year side job, because he does not wish to permit the campaign for governor to be diverted from the real issues. He says one of those real issues was Walker's practice of hunting for campaign contributions in the wallets of state contractors.

In the Walker camp, it appears bossism is out as an issue and Howlett's personal integrity is in.

At Howlett headquarters, Walker mismanagement has taken a back seat to Walker's fund-raising techniques.

It's funny how the "main issues" seem to change. Just as the poor guy on the block learns what the "main issues" are, the candidates change it.

The latest flip-flop can be viewed as the mudslinging phase of the campaign. Therefore, voters should not forget the early "main issues" because Daley bossism and Walker mismanagement will pop up later.

Apparently it is too hard for any candidate to stick to the same issues or, for that matter, even the same main issues for the entire campaign.

Hopefully, this phase of the campaign will run its course in a few more days and the candidates will return to the issues.

But then who knows, rolling around in the mud may prove to be such an amusing diversion Howlett and Walker will forget about government altogether. They may keep slinging the mud until the end of the ballot battle.

If that proves to be the case, maybe the ballot should be changed and the two candidates should be vying for election as oven tender at the mud pie factory instead of governor.

The way we see it

We support Meadows vote

Rolling Meadows voters finally will be able to decide for themselves what their elected officials have been arguing about for months — how many aldermen should represent the city and whether a strong city manager system of government should be formed.

The people of Rolling Meadows are the best ones to decide how they will be governed, and despite the political infighting between Mayor Roland J. Meyer and several aldermen, the controversy appears to be near resolution.

Meyer and the council fought over the specifics of the referendum with Meyer eventually emerging as the victor. He vetoed an aldermanic-sponsored referendum in favor of one of his own which proposes cutting the size of the council from 10 to five members. He filed petitions calling for a three-pronged referendum in which voters will decide:

- Whether a strong manager form of government should be established. The strong manager system gives the city manager the power to hire and fire his employes and generally strengthens the role of the manager in determining the day-to-day operation of city government.
- Whether aldermen should continue to be elected by wards. There currently are five wards with two aldermen elected from each district.
- Whether the number of aldermen should be reduced from 10 to five.

The court will decide the date of the referendum.

We believe there is a definite need for a strong municipal manager.

We also believe there simply is too much politics being played on all fronts in the city, and that Meyer — for the first time faced with an earnest challenge to his dominance — wants the size of the council reduced for the wrong reasons.

The people of Rolling Meadows must see through the guise and ultimately decide whether having an alderman living down the street is important to them. Meanwhile, the electorate, during the next few months, will be faced with wading through the rhetoric from Meyer and from the aldermen who obviously do not want their jobs weakened or eliminated.

What is encouraging is that a series of public hearings will be held, and in a public referendum the people finally will be able to say how they want things run in Rolling Meadows.

Vote 'yes' on library

If Rolling Meadows residents want to maintain their excellent library, they should vote "yes" on Saturday's tax rate referendum.

Like other institutions, the 12-year-old library is suffering from inflation and the cost squeeze. So, library officials are asking voters to increase taxes to what seems to us to be still a modest level.

Officials are seeking a hike of 14 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; that increase could eventually raise the present rate to 29 cents. However, those officials have promised to levy only 4 cents of that increase next year, or $2.80 per average property owner. When the full increase is used, it would still cost a property owner only $9.80 per year over the present rate.

Unless voters approve the increase, library hours and staff will probably have to be cut back — and for the thousands of Rolling Meadows residents who depend on the library for pleasure reading and research, this would be bad news.

This is a bare-bones increase, for the city council last month rejected an $880,000 expansion plan as part of the vote. Unless Rolling Meadows residents approve this reasonable request on Saturday, they'll be less able to take advantage of the books and worthwhile services provided by the library.

She's concerned by caucus' acts

I can fully understand Pam Bigford's concern in the Feb. 13 Education Today column about what happened at the Dist. 62 School Board Caucus meeting on Feb. 9, especially as it was her first. As chairman of the 62 Caucus I was also concerned.

I was concerned about several things. First of all, I was concerned that only five people, including the incumbent, Mr. Birchfield, showed an interest in running for the two openings on the Dist. 62 school board. I was concerned that of the 51 voting delegates of the caucus, nine did not have enough interest to attend the meeting or even send an alternate which they may do. I was concerned that not even one question was asked of the nominees by the delegates, as in past years, especially with the lack of information from the nominees. (By the way, every year 50 per cent or more of the delegates are new to the caucus). I was concerned that the delegates waited until after the vote was taken to say they did not have enough information concerning the nominees' views. I was concerned that even when they were given an opportunity to ask questions (twice) the delegates voted not to do so.

I am also concerned about what Pam Bigford's interpretation of "democracy at work" is! She claimed that "democracy was shoved aside at Dist. 62 Caucus meeting." I believe the meeting was as democratic as a meeting of this kind can be. The nominees were given the opportunity to speak about anything they wished, the delegates were asked a couple of times after each nominee spoke if they had any questions, the delegates were allowed to speak openly about their concern on the lack of information and twice had the opportunity to have the nominees return for questioning but voted against doing so, (11 delegates voted to have them return, not one-third, as Ms. Bigford stated), suggestions were asked for to improve communication between the member organizations, delegates and the caucus and also to help alleviate the lack of concern in finding good candidates for the school boards. As a result, a motion was passed to have a committee appointed to bring suggestions to the caucus' next meeting in October. I really do not know how much more democratic than this we could have been. If Ms. Bigford knows, I wish she would tell me.

P.S. It will be interesting to see how many concerned citizens vote in the school board election on April 10!

Coroner's views draw fire

We're appreciative of the stories in your newspapers concerning our exciting new family entertainment center, Marriott's Great America. The story written by Tim Moran on Jan. 28 was well done. Unfortunately, it contained one quote from a misguided public official for which a comment is in order.

Lake County Coroner Oscar Lind stated that he has a new employe in training, and that he expects a large case load increase because of deaths at Marriott's Great America. This is clearly the most asinine excuse for empire-building that I have ever seen.

The record at other comparable parks indicates that deaths simply don't occur, though obviously in any crowd the law of averages may single out an individual. But to imply that this park will cause people to keel over regularly is absurd and unfair. Mr. Lind should check his facts more thoroughly, and those who must approve his budgets should certainly require him to substantiate his requests.

I might also note that, contrary to the thoughts of Chief Deputy Corder of the Sheriff's office, we're certain that our park will create no noticeable increase in general crime in the community. We have letters from the police or sheriff's department in every community having a regional park. To the very last one, all state there has been no significant crime increase attributable to the theme park in their areas.

In general, we have found the state, county, and village officials to be both professional and responsible, and we're sure that this one bit of commentary by the coroner was more officious than official.

Her mission: save the wild horses

I have a problem.

My class is studying endangered species, and one is the wild horse. I really love horses, and I take horseback riding lessons. I love horses more than any other animal.

So I want to help save wild horses, so that's why I sent this letter. I might get a horse. And I'm planning on living on a farm.

There are no adequate words to express appreciation to them for their efficient, knowledgeable and compassionate efforts. We are deeply grateful to Art Christenson, Bob Lockhart, Bill Dressel and Robert Dumay for the emergency care they gave Frank Hogan on Jan. 15, helping to save his life.

Backs restraint

Every day the news media, TV and radio programs harp on abortion control, birth control, energy control, minority and ethnic controls (i.e., blacks vs. Latinos vs. whites), ecology control, etc., but never do we read or hear one word relating to self-control. It seems to me, judging from the news I read and hear as well as the people I come in contact with from day to day, that what this poor world, especially the good old United States, needs most is kindness and more kindness — less selfishness and more consideration for others. The thing is that so many people are blunt, almost crude in their way; they shove and push and step on other's toes as well as getting on other people's nerves. An attitude of "I got mine how did you make out" is becoming more and more prevalent and the sad thing is that the temptation to make mean remarks, damage another's reputation, shove shopping carts into the sides of other's autos, damage another's property, is almost irresistible in such an emotional state.

Our anger and hatred today will make some lives darker — but chiefly our own life. Our tolerance and kindness each day may affect the outlook and conditions of persons we are hardly aware of, and certainly will affect our own condition incalculably for good. Isn't it time we all practiced self control and most certainly many of the social and other controls that plague us will disappear, thereby giving the courts more time to deliberate on and carry out man-made laws that are for the good of all Americans and not for just a few individuals.

even though we weren't involved," George said. "All you've got to do is have someone who's unhappy and they'll bring it up.

"It's very difficult to control your temper when you've been honest all your life and someone says, 'I think I'd get a different answer if I greased your palm.'

"I NEVER HAD anyone put it quite that way," George said. "But people will say they understand, that they've been reading the newspapers. All our employes are subject to that. It's too bad."

The village board which dismissed Passolt is heavy with members (5-of-7) from the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP). They wanted him gone by Feb. 1.

But then Wheeling could not locate a replacement. Passolt agreed to remain temporarily.

WHIP came into its strongest power after the Stavros scandal, although it had been around in earlier form as the Wheeling Independent Party.

It did not campaign for George Passolt's head on a butcher block during last spring's elections. All WHIP ever said was the village needed to leave behind improper management.

Fur months after his dismissal, George Passolt still chooses not to discuss the ouster. "I've told every paper the same thing," George said. "I'm not commenting on being asked to leave."

HIS LIFE IS quieting down now, or so it seems. Passolt's desk was not cluttered with the trappings of village government the afternoon we visited, except for a few letters.

Some correspondence had arrived from villages or counties where George Passolt seeks his next paycheck. That next job is not certain. It is a long process of writing and waiting.

Mostly, that desk was clean, orderly and awaiting its next village manager. There was a sense that it did not even belong to George Passolt any longer. A sense that he only keeps the chair warm.

GEORGE PASSOLT

The Stavros scandal might have taken place in any town. There would have been other men caught between the vises of justice, the vises of anger, allegation and reprisal.

It just worked out that the scandal occurred in Wheeling. And that a man named George Passolt, who claims to have taken great pride in his work, was village manager.

Had there been no federal investigation exposing Stavros, perhaps Passolt's job never would have fallen into jeopardy. Other problems might have been straightened out with much less fuss.

But that was not the case.

GEORGE PASSOLT said he will leave office with no regrets. "I've learned a lot. I think I've accomplished a lot," he stated.

His record, Passolt says, will speak for itself. He rattles off a new traffic court in Wheeling, expansion of the fire department staff to include fulltimers and improvement in flood control.

The plan commission recently completed updating its general land use map. "It's very essential when you're controlling the growth of a community to have a land usage plan, which our village did not," Passolt said. "Now we do; it's in existence."

It does not stop there. Passolt pointed to new controls on the zoning commission, tax levys which were lower in 1974 than in 1969 and plans to raise new fire department funds.

You do not get the impression that George Passolt agrees he has been a bad village manager.

George likes to think that his actions might have been partially responsible for Stavros and his gang falling under federal investigation.

"I really believe some of my actions might have made people go out of their way to do the things they wanted with me in here," Passolt said.

"That might have had some effect on them getting caught. I don't know for sure," he said. "I'd like to think so."

THE JOB WAS never easy for George Passolt. It won't be easy for the next man. George did not look at the work as a vendetta being run against him.

"Sure, I had some problems," he said. "I didn't see them from the standpoint of people trying to get rid of me."

And today, with his days in Wheeling government nearly completed, Passolt insists he never once considered running away.

"I don't operate that way. I'm a longtime resident of this community. I wanted to do my best," Passolt said.

"Besides, you see progress, too. As long as you can hold out hope for improvement, you want to stick it out," Passolt said. "You don't want to be here during just the bad times."

Four-year auto loans available; interest rates higher

by LEA TONKIN

The four-year auto loan, billed as a means for relieving the strain on consumers' monthly budgets, has a toehold in the Northwest suburbs.

A survey of 21 area banks shows only four will consider auto loans for terms longer than 36 months. Before a buyer signs on the dotted line for credit, a check of interest rates and the added cost of longer-term loans should be consideed, the lenders said. The tab for interest on a 48-month loan can amount to hundreds of dollars more than 36-month financing.

Buyer acceptance of 42 month and 48 month terms, newly offered by the First Arlington National Bank in Arlington Heights, "hasn't caught on like we thought it would," said Robert Lawler, executive vice president. The extended term offers consumers "a way of adjusting to the price of a car, to meet the payment," he said.

Jack Horowitz, a loan officer at the bank, said customers can compare rates to cut costs. "The sad thing is that they can save money on the car, then blow it on financing," he said.

"QUITE A FEW people" are using the 42 and 48 month financing terms offered through Ford Motor Credit Co., said John Rutkowski, credit manager at the Schmerler Ford dealership in Elk Grove Village. He declined to offer interest rate information. Preferred rates are given to buyers who have good credit standings, he said.

Rising new car costs prompt consumers to look for 48-month financing to cut monthly payments, said Dick Fowler of the United Airlines Employes Credit Union, Elk Grove Township. The credit union charges a 10.5 annual percentage rate for auto loans, regardless of the collateral. Fowler said he encourages auto buyers to compare loan terms. "Money is a commodity. You should shop as carefully for a new loan as a suit or dress," he said.

The Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heightis is "just starting to offer 42 month loans," said Dan Quinn, loan officer. The annual percentage rate for a three year loan is 9.76 per cent compared to the 9.72 per cent rate for a 42 month contract. The bank considers an applicant's credit record before it grants the auto loans. "On the 42 month applications we're a little more selective," Quinn said.

Hannah Harner, an employe of the AAEC Credit Union in Arlington Heights, said the four year loans are "disservice. If you finance a car for 48 months and it falls apart in two years, you're stuck for two more years," she said.

An increasing demand for 42 and 48 month car loans is reported by a General Motors Acceptence Corp. spokesman, Arlington Heights. "We don't encourage the longer term loan because you don't build up an equity until much later," he said.

AUTO BUYERS decide to seek 48 month financing when they can't afford an extra $10 to $20 a month for shorter term loans, said Joel Wiesneske, business manager at the Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth Sales, Inc., Des Plaines. He cautions that consumers will shell out additional money for interest payments on long term loans. "If it was my money, I wouldn't recommend it," he said.

A sampling of loan rates for new 1976 cars, based on Feb. 24 telephone inquiries, shows the following rates. The rates may vary according to credit standing, preference given to bank customers and other factors. The annual percentage rate and maximum loan period are listed. Several area banks were not included in the Herald list because spokesmen did not want to quote loan rates by telephone or because loan officers were busy.

- Bank of Elk Grove, 10.2 per cent, maximum 36 months.
- Bank of Palatine, 10.2 per cent, maximum 36 months.
- Bank of Rolling Meadows, 11.08 per cent, maximum 36 months. The rate for a 1975 new car is 12 per cent for 30 months.
- Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, 9.76 per cent up to 36 months, selective 42 month loans.
- Buffalo Grove National Bank, 10.2 per cent for customers, 11.08 per cent for noncustomers, maximum 36 months.
- Countryside Bank, Mount Prospect, 10.2 per cent for 36 months, some financing for 48 months at 10.11 per cent.
- Des Plaines National Bank, 10.2 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- First Arlington National Bank, Arlington Heights, 9.75 per cent for 36 months, 10.2 per cent for 42 months, and 10.54 for 48 months.
- First Bank and Trust Co., Palatine, has 9.31 per cent financing for a maximum 36 months.
- First National Bank of Des Plaines, 9.76 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- First National Bank of Mount Prospect, 10.2 per cent, up to 36 months. There are some exceptions to the percentage rate, the bank official said.

Dow closes at 993.55

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rose to their highest level in three years Tuesday in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange in a rally sparked by Chrysler's strong fourth quarter showing.

The Dow Jones industrials, a 2.52 — point loser Monday, climbed 8.27 points to 993.55, the best finish since it closed at 996.76 on Feb. 13, 1973. It had been ahead nearly 11 points to around 996 before profit taking became a factor.

The last time the Dow closed over 1,000 was Jan. 26, 1973, when it finished at 1,003.54. Many analysts believe the blue-chip average of 30 industrial stocks will top that soon and then challenge its all-time high of 1,051.70 set Jen. 11, 1973 later in the year.

THE BROAD-BASED rally saw Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gain 0.42 to 102.03, the NYSE common stock index 0.23 to 54.62 and the average price of an NYSE common share 15 cents.

Advances topped declines, 961 to 580, among the 1,911 issues crossing the tape. The 370 unchanged issues showed there was some investor uncertainty.

Volume swelled to 34,380,000 shares from the 31,460,000 traded Monday. The NYSE high-speed transaction tape ran six minutes late at the outset.

Prices closed higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by seven cents. Volume totaled 6,360,000 shares, compared with 5,940,000 traded Monday.

Four-year auto loans available; interest rates higher

by LEA TONKIN

The four-year auto loan, billed as a means for relieving the strain on consumers' monthly budgets, has a toehold in the Northwest suburbs.

A survey of 21 area banks shows only four will consider auto loans for terms longer than 36 months. Before a buyer signs on the dotted line for credit, a check of interest rates and the added cost of longer-term loans should be consideed, the lenders said. The tab for interest on a 48-month loan can amount to hundreds of dollars more than 36-month financing.

Buyer acceptance of 42 month and 48 month terms, newly offered by the First Arlington National Bank in Arlington Heights, "hasn't caught on like we thought it would," said Robert Lawler, executive vice president. The extended term offers consumers "a way of adjusting to the price of a car, to meet the payment," he said.

Jack Horowitz, a loan officer at the bank, said customers can compare rates to cut costs. "The sad thing is that they can save money on the car, then blow it on financing," he said.

"QUITE A FEW people" are using the 42 and 48 month financing terms offered through Ford Motor Credit Co., said John Rutkowski, credit manager at the Schmerler Ford dealership in Elk Grove Village. He declined to offer interest rate information. Preferred rates are given to buyers who have good credit standings, he said.

Rising new car costs prompt consumers to look for 48-month financing to cut monthly payments, said Dick Fowler of the United Airlines Employes Credit Union, Elk Grove Township. The credit union charges a 10.5 annual percentage rate for auto loans, regardless of the collateral. Fowler said he encourages auto buyers to compare loan terms. "Money is a commodity. You should shop as carefully for a new loan as a suit or dress," he said.

The Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heightis is "just starting to offer 42 month loans," said Dan Quinn, loan officer. The annual percentage rate for a three year loan is 9.76 per cent compared to the 9.72 per cent rate for a 42 month contract. The bank considers an applicant's credit record before it grants the auto loans. "On the 42 month applications we're a little more selective," Quinn said.

Hannah Harner, an employe of the AAEC Credit Union in Arlington Heights, said the four year loans are "disservice. If you finance a car for 48 months and it falls apart in two years, you're stuck for two more years," she said.

An increasing demand for 42 and 48 month car loans is reported by a General Motors Acceptence Corp. spokesman, Arlington Heights. "We don't encourage the longer term loan because you don't build up an equity until much later," he said.

AUTO BUYERS decide to seek 48 month financing when they can't afford an extra $10 to $20 a month for shorter term loans, said Joel Wiesneske, business manager at the Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth Sales, Inc., Des Plaines. He cautions that consumers will shell out additional money for interest payments on long term loans. "If it was my money, I wouldn't recommend it," he said.

A sampling of loan rates for new 1976 cars, based on Feb. 24 telephone inquiries, shows the following rates. The rates may vary according to credit standing, preference given to bank customers and other factors. The annual percentage rate and maximum loan period are listed. Several area banks were not included in the Herald list because spokesmen did not want to quote loan rates by telephone or because loan officers were busy.

- Bank of Elk Grove, 10.2 per cent, maximum 36 months.
- Bank of Palatine, 10.2 per cent, maximum 36 months.

- Buffalo Grove National Bank, 10.2 per cent for customers, 11.08 per cent for noncustomers, maximum 36 months.

Dow closes at 993.55

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rose to their highest level in three years Tuesday in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange in a rally sparked by Chrysler's strong fourth quarter showing.

The Dow Jones industrials, a 2.52 — point loser Monday, climbed 8.27 points to 993.55, the best finish since it closed at 996.76 on Feb. 13, 1973. It had been ahead nearly 11 points to around 996 before profit taking became a factor.

The last time the Dow closed over 1,000 was Jan. 26, 1973, when it finished at 1,003.54. Many analysts believe the blue-chip average of 30 industrial stocks will top that soon and then challenge its all-time high of 1,051.70 set Jen. 11, 1973 later in the year.

THE BROAD-BASED rally saw Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gain 0.42 to 102.03, the NYSE common stock index 0.23 to 54.62 and the average price of an NYSE common share 15 cents.

Advances topped declines, 961 to 580, among the 1,911 issues crossing the tape. The 370 unchanged issues showed there was some investor uncertainty.

Volume swelled to 34,380,000 shares from the 31,460,000 traded Monday. The NYSE high-speed transaction tape ran six minutes late at the outset.

Prices closed higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by seven cents. Volume totaled 6,360,000 shares, compared with 5,940,000 traded Monday.

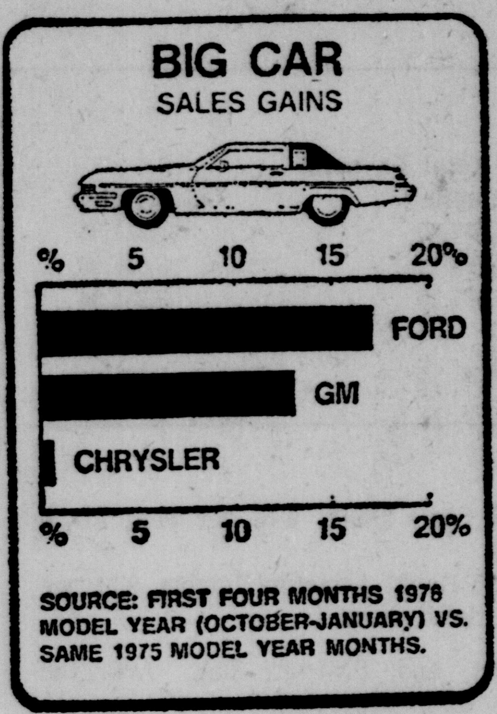
Chrysler tells $27.7 million loss



SOURCE: FIRST FOUR MONTHS 1976 MODEL YEAR (OCTOBER-JANUARY) VS. SAME 1975 MODEL YEAR MONTHS.

Chrysler Corp. Tuesday reported a record $27.7 million loss during the fourth quarter of 1975, but mid-February new car sales reported by the "Big Three" auto manufacturers increased 11 to 30 per cent from year-earlier levels.

The No. 3 auto firm, hardest hit by an industrywide two-year slump, said it lost a record $259.5 million in 1975 and $341 million in the past 18 months.

But top executives said stringent cost-cutting measures, including the sale of money-losing operations and massive layoffs, would return the 50-year-old auto firm to the black this year.

IN SHARP CONTRAST to Chrysler's losses, General Motors reported earlier this month that a fourth quarter profit of $618 million was the second highest for the period in history. Ford's $170 million profit ed $11.6 billion, compared with $10.9 billion in 1974.

While Chrysler sold fewer than 1 million cars last year, off 17 per cent from anemic 1974 levels, its sales so far this year are up 20 per cent. Along with its 1975 annual financial report, Chrysler said its mid-February new car sales jumped 14 per cent.

Chrysler would have been able to report a $35 million profit in the October-December quarter, but it took a $55 million loss on the sale of its nonautomotive Airtemp Divison operations to the Fedders Corp. In the final quarter of 1974, Chrysler lost a record $73.5 million.

CHRYSLER SALES in the quarter totaled $3.2 billion, a 28 per cent jump from last year but still $200 million below record 1973 levels. Its 1975 sales totaled $11.6 biolion, compred with $10.9 billion in 1974.

The $259.5 million loss compares with a $52 million deficit in 1974 and a $255 million profit in 1973 just as the Arab oil embargo was triggering the industry depression. In its best year, 1968, Chrysler turned in a $303 million profit.

Domestic automakers reported that mid-February crumbled under the weight of the recession.

It was the 14th consecutive 10-day period in which sales have topped a year-earlier period.

FOLLOWING THE pattern of the last month, gains were recorded in the mid-size and large car segments while small car sales continued to slump after last year's big spurts.

General Motors recorded the strongest gain — 30 per cent — and accounted for a higher-than-normal 55 per cent share of the market. Chrysler jumped 14 per cent and Ford was up 11 per cent. American Motors, hit hard by a slowdown in small car sales, topped last year's mid-February by just 14 cars.

Sales of the full-sized Ford were up 49 per cent while the big Chevrolet jumped 30 per cent. On the other hand, the subcompact Pinto slipped 41 per cent from a year ago and the small Chevrolet Vega was off 67 per cent.

Preventive medicine one reason

Top execs found in good health

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's executives are smoking less, drinking less and are generally healthier than their predecessors, says Dr. Donald C. Kent, medical director of Life Extension Institute.

Top executives are healthier than lower echelon executives and much healthier than the general run of workers, he said.

Life Extension Institute was founded in 1913 by William Howard Taft soon after he left the White House. Now owned by Dun & Bradstreet Inc., the institute provides for 1,300 corporate and professional clients regular physical checkup, medical screening and some therapeutic services.

Its goal, and that of several similar regional groups, is to whittle down some of the estimated $15 billion-a-year sick pay burden borne by industry.

THE INSTITUTE believes the Gross National Product could be boosted $10 billion a year if the average employe's sick leave could be cut by only one day from the present 5.8 days a year.

More than half the nation's businessmen will die from heart disease—many between 45 and 54 when they're most valuable to their companies. One out of every four men will get cancer, one out of 14 will be crippled by emphysema. One out of 10 already suffers some mental or emotional problem. Alcoholism will affect over 3 million men this year and cost industry $4 billion in lost time and poor work, according to institute figures.

When considering the better health of executives, the question of course is: Are they healthier because they're executives or are they executives because they're healthier?

Kent concedes, "You could answer it either way. Men and women in good condition with stamina move to the top. But the top executive does enjoy a higher standard of living, he is less inclined to bad diet and undue dissipation than underlings and, above all, his company has so much invested in him that it insists on regular checkups and adherence to preventive medicine." Most Americans, according to the institute, spend more on car upkeep than their personal health.

CUTTING DOWN on smoking, Kent said, is not as universal among today's executives — more than half still smoke — as the noticeable reduction in drinking. He said about 90 per cent of upper executives no longer have cocktails regularly at lunch.

A big factor in the comparative good health of top executives, he said, is that 75 per cent of them say they like their work and the demands it makes on them. In contrast with many ordinary folk, they have fewer anxieties, don't worry about their health, sleep well and get plenty of exercise. They agree they neither work nor live under conditions favorable to excessive tension.

THE INSTITUTE studies confirm traditional views that some types of executives experience much more tension than others, and these tensions create health problems.

"We found that 22 per cent of advertising executives and technicians experienced constant tension and only 7 per cent of research workers," he said. "Lawyers, personnel and financial executives also experience constant tension and, contrary to what you might expect, sales promotion people experience hardly any more tension than research workers."

However, from the replies of executives who reported constant tension, the institute concluded tension seems not caused by age, occupation or job demands, but is clearly identified with the personality of the individual and stems from within the individual rather than from the outer forces of his living or working environment.

Businessmen not afraid to speak out: survey

Herbert Rozoff

Chicago area business leaders are aware of the need to speak out on public issues, said Herbert Rozoff, president of the Herbert H. Rozoff Associates, Inc., a public relations firm.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the Arlington Heights Kiwanis Club, Rozoff discussed the results of his firm's survey of area business leaders.

Given a choice of 12 alternative actions to counter public misunderstanding of business, the executives rated, "speaking out," in the top third of priorities for 78 per cent of the responses.

The executives' second choice was "taking the lead in introducing changes to business practices that are subject to valid criticism before consumer groups or government agencies force the issues."

The "America, love it or leave it" attitude was shown in only 5 per cent of the responses, Rozoff said. Attempting to discredit as unAmerican the individuals who oppose the free enterprise system also was low in the ratings.

"THERE IS no question that there still are a very few chief executives lurking around with 19th century mentalities," he said. "But the fact that these two choices were ranked in the top one-third of alternatives only 5 and 7 percent of the time, respectively, would seem to indicate that such views are quite unpopular with today's chief executive."

The survey response shows that business executives realize they must take the initiative to bring about change in public attitudes, Roszoff said. The creation of consumer education programs, lobbies to require public education on the free enterprise system and support of public office holders who understand the system rated high in the survey results.

A new era in home climate control begins

About forty-five years ago, scientists began developing a revolutionary heating device that uses the heat of the earth's atmosphere. They called it a heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of fuel oil and gas.

How the heat pump works.
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. Using electricity to run the device, it extracts heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat. And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity—like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. The heat pump produces more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system.

It's ready.
It's ideal for new homes because it won't be obsolete in ten years. It's not dependent on the fossil fuels that may not be available in the future. To the homeowner, that means significant long-term savings on heating costs.

The heat pump is a big step in the conservation of scarce fuels. And here in northern Illinois, the electricity you would use to capture the heat comes mainly from coal and nuclear energy, rather than scarce oil and gas.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer (Westinghouse Distrs.), (312) 374-4411, or General Electric Co., (312) 496-6356. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to our marketing engineer.

One out of every four men will get cancer, one out of 14 will be crippled by emphysema. One out of 10 already suffers some mental or emotional problem. Alcoholism will affect over 3 million men this year and cost industry $4 billion in lost time and poor work, according to institute figures.

When considering the better health of executives, the question of course is: Are they healthier because they're executives or are they executives because they're healthier?

Kent concedes, "You could answer it either way. Men and women in good condition with stamina move to the top. But the top executive does enjoy a higher standard of living, he is less inclined to bad diet and undue dissipation than underlings and, above all, his company has so much invested in him that it insists on regular checkups and adherence to preventive medicine." Most Americans, according to the institute, spend more on car upkeep than their personal health.

CUTTING DOWN on smoking, Kent said, is not as universal among today's executives — more than half still smoke — as the noticeable reduction in drinking. He said about 90 per cent of upper executives no longer have cocktails regularly at lunch.

A big factor in the comparative good health of top executives, he said, is that 75 per cent of them say they like their work and the demands it makes on them. In contrast with many ordinary folk, they have fewer anxieties, don't worry about their health, sleep well and get plenty of exercise. They agree they neither work nor live under conditions favorable to excessive tension.

THE INSTITUTE studies confirm traditional views that some types of executives experience much more tension than others, and these tensions create health problems.

"We found that 22 per cent of advertising executives and technicians experienced constant tension and only 7 per cent of research workers," he said. "Lawyers, personnel and financial executives also experience constant tension and, contrary to what you might expect, sales promotion people experience hardly any more tension than research workers."

However, from the replies of executives who reported constant tension, the institute concluded tension seems not caused by age, occupation or job demands, but is clearly identified with the personality of the individual and stems from within the individual rather than from the outer forces of his living or working environment.

Setting public straight

Herbert Rozoff

Chicago area business leaders are aware of the need to speak out on public issues, said Herbert Rozoff, president of the Herbert H. Rozoff Associates, Inc., a public relations firm.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the Arlington Heights Kiwanis Club, Rozoff discussed the results of his firm's survey of area business leaders.

Given a choice of 12 alternative actions to counter public misunderstanding of business, the executives rated, "speaking out," in the top third of priorities for 78 per cent of the responses.

The executives' second choice was "taking the lead in introducing changes to business practices that are subject to valid criticism before consumer groups or government agencies force the issues."

The "America, love it or leave it" attitude was shown in only 5 per cent of the responses, Rozoff said. Attempting to discredit as unAmerican the individuals who oppose the free enterprise system also was low in the ratings.

"THERE IS no question that there still are a very few chief executives lurking around with 19th century mentalities," he said. "But the fact that these two choices were ranked in the top one-third of alternatives only 5 and 7 percent of the time, respectively, would seem to indicate that such views are quite unpopular with today's chief executive."

The survey response shows that business executives realize they must take the initiative to bring about change in public attitudes, Roszoff said. The creation of consumer education programs, lobbies to require public education on the free enterprise system and support of public office holders who understand the system rated high in the survey results.

A new era in home climate control begins

About forty-five years ago, scientists began developing a revolutionary heating device that uses the heat of the earth's atmosphere. They called it a heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of fuel oil and gas.

How the heat pump works.
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. Using electricity to run the device, it extracts heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat. And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity—like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. The heat pump produces more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system.

It's ready.
It's ideal for new homes because it won't be obsolete in ten years. It's not dependent on the fossil fuels that may not be available in the future. To the homeowner, that means significant long-term savings on heating costs.

The heat pump is a big step in the conservation of scarce fuels. And here in northern Illinois, the electricity you would use to capture the heat comes mainly from coal and nuclear energy, rather than scarce oil and gas.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer (Westinghouse Distrs.), (312) 374-4411, or General Electric Co., (312) 496-6356. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to our marketing engineer.

A BIG HUG for Aunt Ok Ja from Sonya Jo, 2, as uncles, from left, Tag Kyu, Hyung Kyu and Richard U. wait their turn. The Jo brothers and Hyung's wife are four of the Korean immigrants who entered the U.S. in 1975. Sonya's father, Hong Kyu Jo, an American citizen, has helped each of them adapt to his new life, so different from that in the town of Ulsan, South Korea.

More Asians among newcomers

by ELEANOR RIVES
(Third of four parts)

Of all immigrants who came to the United States during the first half of the 20th century, only four per cent came from Asian countries. Just a decade ago, seven per cent came from Asia.

In 1974, a full one-third of all immigrants to this country were Asians.

"In 1965, the Philippines didn't even make 15th in the list of countries sending the highest number of immigrants," said John P. Wentling, deputy district director of the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "In 1974, it was second only to Mexico."

Korea was third with 28,028 of its people entering the United States for permanent residence.

HONG KYU JO of Des Plaines made his contribution to the Korean total for 1975. He brought all three of his brothers here, under the "Fifth Preference" (brothers and sisters of a U. S. citizen) of the Eastern Hemisphere numerical limitation.

But let's backtrack to his own admission to this country 10 years ago.

Hong Kyu Jo began learning English in Korea in seventh grade. His first American friends were Pen Pal correspondents. When he was a college student, he decided to continue his education in America, so he entered the U. S. as a student.

After attaining his bachelor's degree at Washington State University, he decided to stay permanently. He earned his master's degree at Illinois Institute of Technology and now works as a chemical engineer for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

HONG BECAME A citizen. He married a Korean girl who was here as an exchange nurse, and who recently completed training in anesthesiology. They have a 2-year-old daughter, Sonya, and, maternal grandmother included, all live happily in their suburban home where the vibrant gold carpeting has never been sullied by the soles of shoes. Shoes stay at the door.

Hong spends a good deal of his time helping newcomers from Korea get adjusted to life in the U. S. His brother, Hyung Kyu Jo, with his wife, Ok Ja Jo, arrived early in 1975. Tag Kyu Jo arrived five months ago, and Richard U. Jo, the youngest ("He has an American name," they giggled), has been here two months.

Hong also helps another Korean family, unrelated, simply because they are new to this land.

WHAT ARE their problems?

First, language. Laubach English classes at the Des Plaines Public Library have helped. Tag also takes English for New Americans at Maine West High School two nights a week. Richard, who has adapted in record time, attends Forest View High School, where, aside from mathematics, most of his time is spent studying English. He has made many friends.

Another problem was finding a place to live. The newcomers now share an older type condominium unit in Des Plaines.

Finding a job was no easy task. But with brother Hong along on the interview, employers found it hard to say no. "Koreans are capable people, eager to work," he said. "Even without speaking the language, they catch on to routine work very easily. I convince the employer that he should give them a chance. All are reluctant to give them jobs — but I strongly push them."

TAG IS NOW an electroplater, Hyung makes transformer coils, and his wife works nights wiring and soldering. "She is the best worker there," says Hong. "Language is not everything. Ability is important."

Transportation is still another baffling problem for newcomers. There is very little local bus service in the suburbs; it is a necessity to learn to drive. And the "Rules of the Road" are not written in Korean ("only in California," says Hong).

So one by one, Hong patiently prepares his relatives for their driving test, and until they get licenses, he chauffeurs them to and from work.

"They settled in this area because I live here," said Hong. "I orient them, I help them get started. Once they are on their own, they can move any place they like. For now, they just stay near me."

MEMBERS OF another Asian family in Des Plaines had no relative waiting to facilitate their absorption into American life. Yet their anxiety to get here was intense, for they were eight of the 130,000 Vietnamese refugees evacuated last spring.

"We were willing to accept anything America had to offer," said Huyen Vu, patriarch of the family, whose smooth skin and proud carriage belie his almost 60 years. "We would have walked here if necessary."

The Vus — father, mother, three grown sons, one with his wife and their two boys, age 6 and 8 — had much trouble getting out of Vietnam. The family originally lived in Hanoi, but after the Geneva Treaty moved to

Destination U.S.A.

ONE OF 130,000 Vietnamese refugees, Khue Vu, mother of two boys, landed a job in the housekeeping department of Holy Family Hospital. Khue learned basic English in Laubach Literacy classes at the Des Plaines Library and recently passed grade school tests in English, mathematics and the Constitution. She plans to enter beauty culture school soon.

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

Why and who are minors?

Q. Why are those under legal age referred to as "minors"? Where did the word come from and why, if there is a reason? Why do we always have to be in a kind of "protective custody?" — Seventeen.

A. I take it, Seventeen, that the word offends you. If "minor" is offensive, how do you feel about a 17-year-old being referred to as an "infant" in legal documents and statutes?

Both terms were used in the English common law where they had their beginning about 150 years ago and are still used in this country. (U.S. follows common law, statutes and judicial decisions.)

The general dictionary meaning of the word "minor" is "lesser, as in size, extent or importance, or being the lesser of two."

A person has only to study what has happened to those with under-age status through the years to determine how well the definition fits.

BUT THE REASONING behind the use of the term, while amusing, contains a great deal of truth. It was said that when a child enters the world, he is immediately subject to "imbecility and inexperience" and for that reason the legislature must protect him by providing "disabilities" as well as "privileges" for a given period of time.

The legislative body may have gone a little overboard in insulting the public with its appraisal, but it certainly was warranted when you stop to think of the plight of children through the ages.

In England, young children worked in factories and mines under hazardous and appalling conditions.

AT ONE TIME, they were hired to crawl through mining tunnels to dig for coal. Since the passages were small, tiny children, often under 10, were subjected to the rigors of the occupation to say nothing of the dreadful conditions. Some of them never saw the light of day, having to work from sun-up to sunset, and were plagued with weak eyes and bodies wracked with disease.

In this country, too, children were unprotected by the law in many areas, particularly in the labor market. Exploitation was the rule rather than the exception. Here again, children under 10 were permitted to work in factories for as many as 12 hours with no effective regulations to protect them.

Before compulsory education laws were passed, millions of children 9 and under worked on farms and did not attend schools.

AS LATE AS World War II, again millions of children between the ages of 14-17 were working in factories, many under conditions that were less than ideal.

It wasn't until 1950 that Federal regulations were passed specifying the minimum age of 16 for certain types of work.

Each state, by the way, has the right to determine the status of persons within its confines, and thus the legal age may differ.

Legislatures throughout the country are aware that changes must be made regarding the age of majority, since when, for instance, they pass one law

Tricks to perform when the party's a bore

Speaking of...

by Kay Marsh

How do you tell a person's age?

Simple. Have him (or her) write down the number of the month he was born in (1 for January, 2 for February, etc.). Then ask him to multiply that number by 2, add 5, then multiply by 50, then add his age. He now subtracts 365 from that total and afterwards adds 115.

When you see the answer, the two figures to the left will be the birthday month. The two figures to the right will be the person's age. Thus if the answer is 1239 you know the person was born in December and is 39 years old.

PERSONS 39, 99 or 9 enjoy a bit of parlor trickery. And this old tell-your-age trick is included in a book that appeals to gradesters everywhere: Bell's "Magic Book," "full of fun and surprises . . . a bag full of tricks for everyone."

While the emphasis is primarily on magic, there are also simple tricks in it, plus some horribly corny jokes to tell when a trick doesn't work. And that, alas, can happen to us all.

A book I like even better is "Sneaky Feats" by Tom Ferrell and Lee Eisenberg.

As the authors ask somewhat rhetorically, "When the party's a bore, when no one's paying attention to you, when friends no longer call, what do you do?"

Their suggestion is that you "add a bit of elan to your otherwise wilted personality" with a trick from this book. Subtitled "The art of showing off and 53 ways to do it," "Sneaky Feats" contains an amazing collection of attention grabbers, ranging from simple stunts to complicated tricks.

THIS BOOK, I might add, is the current favorite of our 10-year-old. He has practically memorized it, and he and his fellow Webelos have tried most of the 53 stunts.

Some of the tricks, unfortunately, take a bit of practice — such as rolling a coin across your knuckles. Others I can't manage at all. But some of the grabbers are simple enough for all of us.

Part one is called "Playing With Your Food" and describes tricks you can manage at or near the table.

A real grabber here is the "all-wet, insulting tip," which consists of a nickle tip left underneath an inverted glass of water. Yes, it really works! But try it on the kitchen counter so you can scoop water and all into the sink when you're ready to retrieve your wet nickel.

PART TWO, entitled "High, Wide and Handy," provides suggestions for everyone with hands, while "Arts and Crafty" features simple items you can make. The final section, "So You Want to Be a Stuntman," provides an assortment of feats.

Unlike most puzzle and stunt books, this volume cuts across all lines. There are tricks involving cards and coins, but the book isn't limited to these standard favorites. Others require bottles, calculators and other varied props.

Some of the items aren't really stunts per se. But it's nice to have easy instructions on how to eat with chopsticks, whistle with two fingers, whistle through grass, blow smoke rings or play the Jew's harp.

OTHER TRICKS are a bit more dramatic — such as growing a carrot upside down; stepping through a small piece of paper; or crushing a beer can with your bare hand.

But then it doesn't really matter what book you use or which trick you prefer. The important thing is to master a simple parlor trick or two for moments of need. You may not exactly be the life of the party, but as Ferrell and Eisenberg summarize it, "They will come in handy the next time a party reaches the boring stage, i.e. when nobody is listening to what you are saying."

suburban living

A BIG HUG for Aunt Ok Ja from Sonya Jo, 2, as uncles, from left, Tag Kyu, Hyung Kyu and Richard U. wait their turn. The Jo brothers and Hyung's wife are four of the Korean immigrants who entered the U.S. in 1975. Sonya's father, Hong Kyu Jo, an American citizen, has helped each of them adapt to his new life, so different from that in the town of Ulsan, South Korea.

More Asians among newcomers

by ELEANOR RIVES
(Third of four parts)

Of all immigrants who came to the United States during the first half of the 20th century, only four per cent came from Asian countries. Just a decade ago, seven per cent came from Asia.

In 1974, a full one-third of all immigrants to this country were Asians.

"In 1965, the Philippines didn't even make 15th in the list of countries sending the highest number of immigrants," said John P. Wentling, deputy district director of the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "In 1974, it was second only to Mexico."

Korea was third with 28,028 of its people entering the United States for permanent residence.

HONG KYU JO of Des Plaines made his contribution to the Korean total for 1975. He brought all three of his brothers here, under the "Fifth Preference" (brothers and sisters of a U. S. citizen) of the Eastern Hemisphere numerical limitation.

But let's backtrack to his own admission to this country 10 years ago.

Hong Kyu Jo began learning English in Korea in seventh grade. His first American friends were Pen Pal correspondents. When he was a college student, he decided to continue his education in America, so he entered the U. S. as a student.

After attaining his bachelor's degree at Washington State University, he decided to stay permanently. He earned his master's degree at Illinois Institute of Technology and now works as a chemical engineer for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

HONG BECAME A citizen. He married a Korean girl who was here as an exchange nurse, and who recently completed training in anesthesiology. They have a 2-year-old daughter, Sonya, and, maternal grandmother included, all live happily in their suburban home where the vibrant gold carpeting has never been sullied by the soles of shoes. Shoes stay at the door.

Hong spends a good deal of his time helping newcomers from Korea get adjusted to life in the U. S. His brother, Hyung Kyu Jo, with his wife, Ok Ja Jo, arrived early in 1975. Tag Kyu Jo arrived five months ago, and Richard U. Jo, the youngest ("He has an American name," they giggled), has been here two months.

Hong also helps another Korean family, unrelated, simply because they are new to this land.

WHAT ARE their problems?

First, language. Laubach English classes at the Des Plaines Public Library have helped. Tag also takes English for New Americans at Maine West High School two nights a week. Richard, who has adapted in record time, attends Forest View High School, where, aside from mathematics, most of his time is spent studying English. He has made many friends.

Another problem was finding a place to live. The newcomers now share an older type condominium unit in Des Plaines.

Finding a job was no easy task. But with brother Hong along on the interview, employers found it hard to say no. "Koreans are capable people, eager to work," he said. "Even without speaking the language, they catch on to routine work very easily. I convince the employer that he should give them a chance. All are reluctant to give them jobs — but I strongly push them."

TAG IS NOW an electroplater, Hyung makes transformer coils, and his wife works nights wiring and soldering. "She is the best worker there," says Hong. "Language is not everything. Ability is important."

Transportation is still another baffling problem for newcomers. There is very little local bus service in the suburbs; it is a necessity to learn to drive. And the "Rules of the Road" are not written in Korean ("only in California," says Hong).

So one by one, Hong patiently prepares his relatives for their driving test, and until they get licenses, he chauffeurs them to and from work.

"They settled in this area because I live here," said Hong. "I orient them, I help them get started. Once they are on their own, they can move any place they like. For now, they just stay near me."

MEMBERS OF another Asian family in Des Plaines had no relative waiting to facilitate their absorption into American life. Yet their anxiety to get here was intense, for they were eight of the 130,000 Vietnamese refugees evacuated last spring.

"We were willing to accept anything America had to offer," said Huyen Vu, patriarch of the family, whose smooth skin and proud carriage belie his almost 60 years. "We would have walked here if necessary."

The Vus — father, mother, three grown sons, one with his wife and their two boys, age 6 and 8 — had much trouble getting out of Vietnam. The family originally lived in Hanoi, but after the Geneva Treaty moved to

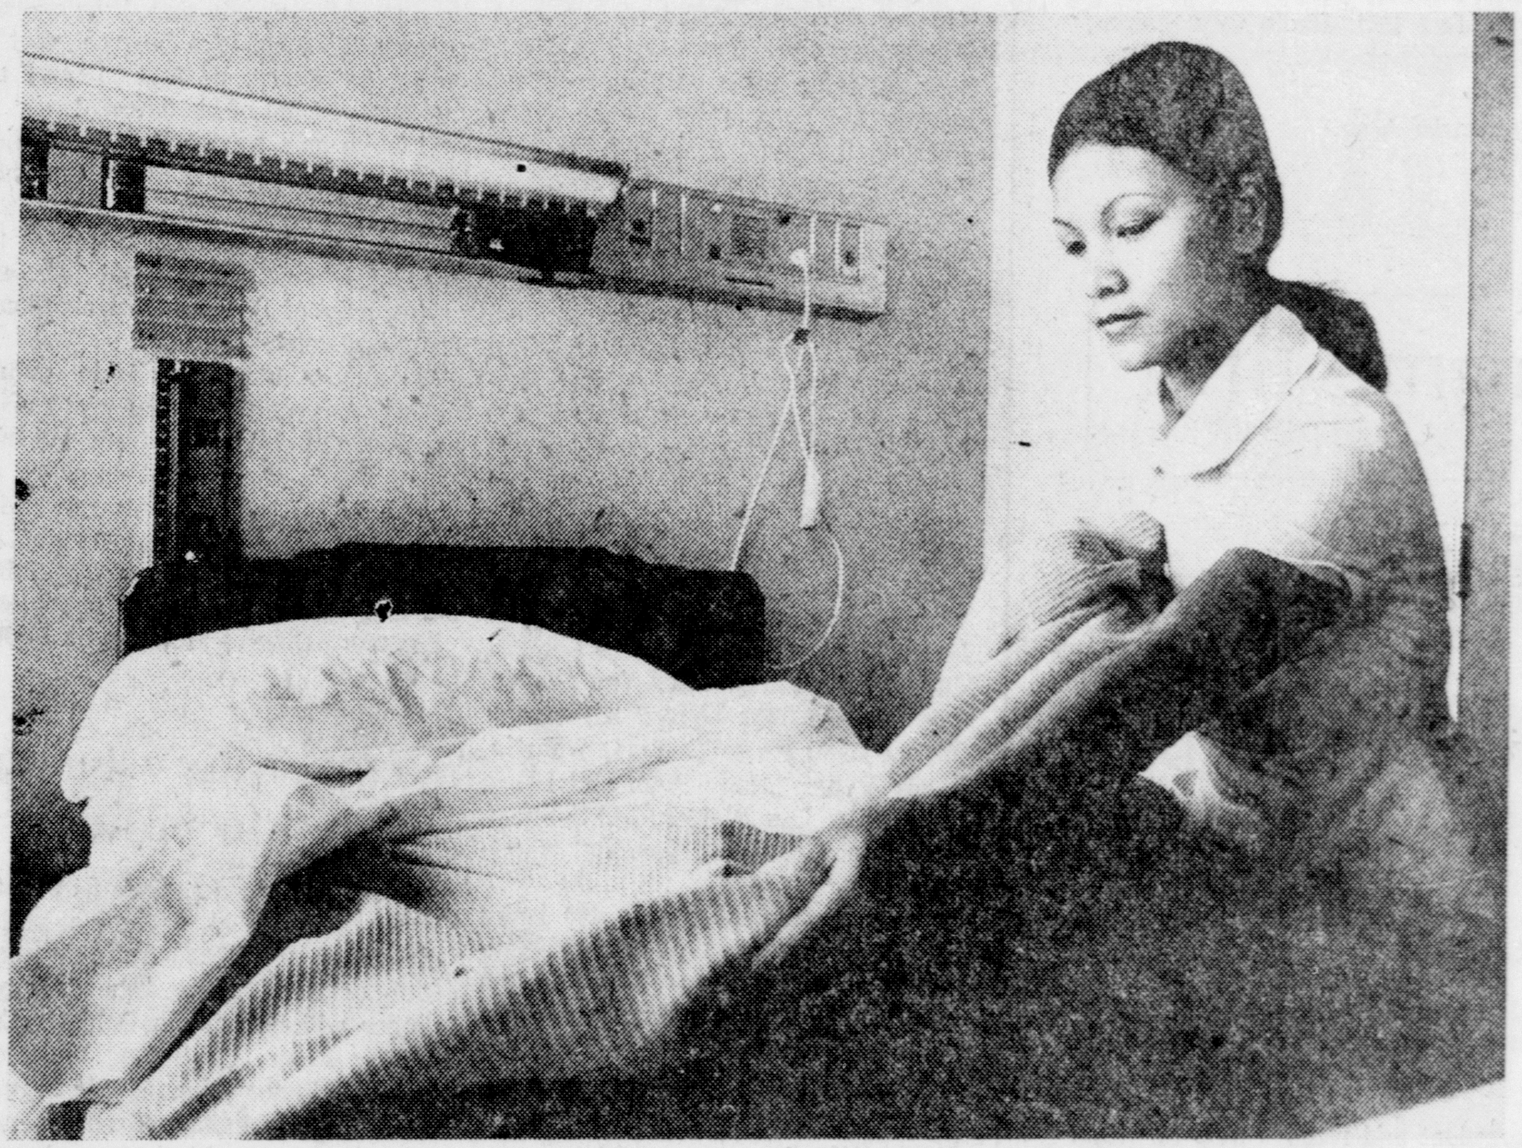
Destination U.S.A.



ONE OF 130,000 Vietnamese refugees, Khue Vu, mother of two boys, landed a job in the housekeeping department of Holy Family Hospital. Khue learned basic English in Laubach Literacy classes at the Des Plaines Library and recently passed grade school tests in English, mathematics and the Constitution. She plans to enter beauty culture school soon.

Why and who are minors?

Q. Why are those under legal age referred to as "minors"? Where did the word come from and why, if there is a reason? Why do we always have to be in a kind of "protective custody?" — Seventeen.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Elephantiasis rare in this country

I have a problem for you to solve. What is elephantiasis and where does it originate? Is there any cure for it or any specialists? What type of doctor would I have to see for results? I need help badly.

You have come up with a rare one in this country. The term elephantiasis refers to swelling and enlargement of the legs to resemble the legs of an elephant. Classically, the condition is caused by an infestation with a thread-like worm. The disease is also called filariasis. The tiny adult worm is from 2 to 4 inches long and tends to invade and block the lymphatics. The inguinal region around the hip and inner aspect of the thigh are commonly involved.

The worms cause inflammation and blockage of the lymphatic system. The blocked lymphatic channels lead to the marked swelling. In men, the lymphatics to the scrotum are often involved. The blockage causes progressive and enormous swelling of the scrotum. In fact, the scrotum may be so large that it hangs below the knees and is equally large in all diameters. Its size may be so huge that the man may have trouble with normal physical activity.

This disease is seen primarily in Africa, tropical coastal areas of Asia and in the northern countries of South America. The disease is spread by mosquitos, and man is the only known intermediate host.

At night the young smaller worms are in the blood stream. A mosquito bites the infected person and draws in the filariae and they remain in the mouth for a couple of weeks. When the mosquito bites the next victim it inoculates him with the microworm.

THE LYMPHATICS become inflamed from the invasion and the process begins. Initially the limb involved may be shiny and swollen, but eventually the skin becomes scaly and cracked and the skin is thickened.

The worms can be killed by various medicines and the enlarged scrotum can be surgically removed. Incidentally, this can be done without damaging the testicles. Similar swollen enlarged tissues can be removed from the legs or even the breast when it is involved. There are medicines for prevention of infestation available to those traveling to areas where the disease is common.

The term elephantiasis has also been applied to any type of swelling that causes marked enlargements similar to those I have mentioned. I suspect that must be the situation in your case.

What kind of doctor should you see? A good place to start would be with hour family doctor. He can refer you to a specialist in internal medicine if you need that if he is not a specialist in that area himself. If you need surgery he can also arrange that.

Eggplant dish contains butter cracker crumbs

Dear Dorothy: Some time ago I tasted an eggplant casserole that had crumbs in it — almost like dressing. Have looked in many cookbooks but can't find one that sounds like this dish. Would you have one like it? — Mrs. Erwin Smutz

One served by the Old Stone Inn at Simpsonville, Ky., is a creation which uses butter cracker crumbs. It might be just what you're looking for.

Slice off one side of a large eggplant and remove pulp to within one-half inch of the skin. Add one-half teaspoon salt to one-half cup water and let come to a boil; then add the eggplant pulp. Cook until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain thoroughly.

Saute one-quarter cup chopped onion in one tablespoon butter or margarine until tender, but not brown. Add eggplant pulp, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one 10¼-ounce can of cream of mushroom soup, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and one cup very fine butter cracker crumbs, reserving two tablespoons of crumbs for the topping. Fill the eggplant shell with mixture and place in a baking dish.

Dot with one more tablespoon butter and sprinkle remaining crumbs over the top. Carefully pour one cup water into the bottom of the dish and bake in a 375-degree oven for one hour or until heated through. Serves four to six.

Dear Dorothy: I can't get the black out of my son's wool athletic socks. I'm embarrassed to take them out of the washer. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. G. H. C.

Soak them in the popular liquid laundry detergent or in one of the oxygen bleaches.

Tip to young mothers: If you've got a little one ready to crawl about and full of curiosity, cover all exposed electrical outlets with safety caps. They are easily removed when you need to use the outlet.

Saigon and lived there 20 years. Huyen was assistant general manager of a Saigon bank.

THEY WERE airlifted to the Philippines, then to Guam, then to Camp Chaffee, Ark., where they lived in tents and barracks. They came then to Park Ridge, where a sponsor had been procured, and the sponsoring family helped them find their present apartment in Des Plaines — small, immaculately clean, spartanly furnished.

"Of necessity, the Vietnamese people must solve the problem of adjusting very quickly," said Huyen. "Nobody wants to be a burden. We don't want to accept assistance, if at all possible. We want to support ourselves and live independently."

Huyen stays home with his wife, taking care of their two grandchildren, partly because she needs him to translate in the simple events of the day, even more so in an emergency. He stays home also because despite his banking experience, his mastery of English and French, his excellent French education with a French degree (majoring in philosophy), he has been unable to find even the most routine job as an inventory clerk, a biller, a filing clerk.

THE CHILDREN ARE in school, making friends and getting along fine. Their father, Khoi, works as an electronics technician. Their mother, Khue, without help, found work in the housekeeping department of Holy Family Hospital. Soon she will enter beauty culture school. Another brother is a chiropractor.

"The Vietnamese are a family-oriented people in the broadest sense," said Huyen. "Yet we desire friendship and understanding. Mostly we are left alone. In Vietnam when you move into a neighborhood, the first thing you do is meet all your neighbors."

"TWO YEARS FROM now, will the Vus obtain their permanent visa and be counted in the Asian immigrant total for 1977? Will they go on to apply for citizenship a few years later? Or do they long to return to their native country?

Huyen Vu pondered this question.

"If we could go back quietly, with no fear of revenge — for us or for our relatives still living there — then yes," he said. "That is the feeling of the older generation. My wife misses her other sons and grandchildren.

"Everything is good here," he added quickly. "The government and the American people are truly an assistance to the refugees. But Americans understand the Vietnamese only superficially.

"Primarily, the Vietnamese people are a people in search of freedom."

pertaining to the age at which one may marry, they might not have covered another area, such as the age at which a person may take public office.

CHANGES ARE being made, however, and in time, there will be uniformity.

An interesting incident that points up the incongruity occurred in Alaska in 1966. At that time, its legislative council discovered that the law permitted a person of 21 to legally qualify for a borough assemblyman, or city councilman. He could even make a will, sell property and, if he wished, donate his eyes to a hospital. But in order to marry, he had to have the written consent of his parents!

I have only touched on the subject of the need for protecting underage persons. Yet wouldn't you say that you have read enough to forget the use of a word you do not like, and think only of how much protection it is giving you?

Among those who will attend are state representatives Ted Leverenz and Jack Williams; Tom Paul, Democratic candidate for state senator, 5th District; Bob Nebgen and Doris Wilson, candidates for delegate to the Democratic National Convention; Roland Burris, candidate for comptroller; and Thomas O'Brien, judicial candidate.

The public is invited to the forum which will begin at 8.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Elephantiasis rare in this country

I have a problem for you to solve. What is elephantiasis and where does it originate? Is there any cure for it or any specialists? What type of doctor would I have to see for results? I need help badly.

You have come up with a rare one in this country. The term elephantiasis refers to swelling and enlargement of the legs to resemble the legs of an elephant. Classically, the condition is caused by an infestation with a thread-like worm. The disease is also called filariasis. The tiny adult worm is from 2 to 4 inches long and tends to invade and block the lymphatics. The inguinal region around the hip and inner aspect of the thigh are commonly involved.

The worms cause inflammation and blockage of the lymphatic system. The blocked lymphatic channels lead to the marked swelling. In men, the lymphatics to the scrotum are often involved. The blockage causes progressive and enormous swelling of the scrotum. In fact, the scrotum may be so large that it hangs below the knees and is equally large in all diameters. Its size may be so huge that the man may have trouble with normal physical activity.

This disease is seen primarily in Africa, tropical coastal areas of Asia and in the northern countries of South America. The disease is spread by mosquitos, and man is the only known intermediate host.

At night the young smaller worms are in the blood stream. A mosquito bites the infected person and draws in the filariae and they remain in the mouth for a couple of weeks. When the mosquito bites the next victim it inoculates him with the microworm.

THE LYMPHATICS become inflamed from the invasion and the process begins. Initially the limb involved may be shiny and swollen, but eventually the skin becomes scaly and cracked and the skin is thickened.

The worms can be killed by various medicines and the enlarged scrotum can be surgically removed. Incidentally, this can be done without damaging the testicles. Similar swollen enlarged tissues can be removed from the legs or even the breast when it is involved. There are medicines for prevention of infestation available to those traveling to areas where the disease is common.

The term elephantiasis has also been applied to any type of swelling that causes marked enlargements similar to those I have mentioned. I suspect that must be the situation in your case.

What kind of doctor should you see? A good place to start would be with hour family doctor. He can refer you to a specialist in internal medicine if you need that if he is not a specialist in that area himself. If you need surgery he can also arrange that.

Eggplant dish contains butter cracker crumbs

Dear Dorothy: Some time ago I tasted an eggplant casserole that had crumbs in it — almost like dressing. Have looked in many cookbooks but can't find one that sounds like this dish. Would you have one like it? — Mrs. Erwin Smutz

One served by the Old Stone Inn at Simpsonville, Ky., is a creation which uses butter cracker crumbs. It might be just what you're looking for.

Slice off one side of a large eggplant and remove pulp to within one-half inch of the skin. Add one-half teaspoon salt to one-half cup water and let come to a boil; then add the eggplant pulp. Cook until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain thoroughly.

Saute one-quarter cup chopped onion in one tablespoon butter or margarine until tender, but not brown. Add eggplant pulp, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one 10¼-ounce can of cream of mushroom soup, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and one cup very fine butter cracker crumbs, reserving two tablespoons of crumbs for the topping. Fill the eggplant shell with mixture and place in a baking dish.

Dot with one more tablespoon butter and sprinkle remaining crumbs over the top. Carefully pour one cup water into the bottom of the dish and bake in a 375-degree oven for one hour or until heated through. Serves four to six.

Dear Dorothy: I can't get the black out of my son's wool athletic socks. I'm embarrassed to take them out of the washer. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. G. H. C.

Soak them in the popular liquid laundry detergent or in one of the oxygen bleaches.

Tip to young mothers: If you've got a little one ready to crawl about and full of curiosity, cover all exposed electrical outlets with safety caps. They are easily removed when you need to use the outlet.

Saigon and lived there 20 years. Huyen was assistant general manager of a Saigon bank.

THEY WERE airlifted to the Philippines, then to Guam, then to Camp Chaffee, Ark., where they lived in tents and barracks. They came then to Park Ridge, where a sponsor had been procured, and the sponsoring family helped them find their present apartment in Des Plaines — small, immaculately clean, spartanly furnished.

''Of necessity, the Vietnamese people must solve the problem of adjusting very quickly,'' said Huyen. "Nobody wants to be a burden. We don't want to accept assistance, if at all possible. We want to support ourselves and live independently."

Huyen stays home with his wife, taking care of their two grandchildren, partly because she needs him to translate in the simple events of the day, even more so in an emergency. He stays home also because despite his banking experience, his mastery of English and French, his excellent French education with a French degree (majoring in philosophy), he has been unable to find even the most routine job as an inventory clerk, a biller, a filing clerk.

THE CHILDREN ARE in school, making friends and getting along fine. Their father, Khoi, works as an electronics technician. Their mother, Khue, without help, found work in the housekeeping department of Holy Family Hospital. Soon she will enter beauty culture school. Another brother is a chiropractor.

"The Vietnamese are a family-oriented people in the broadest sense," said Huyen. "Yet we desire friendship and understanding. Mostly we are left alone. In Vietnam when you move into a neighborhood, the first thing you do is meet all your neighbors."

"TWO YEARS FROM now, will the Vus obtain their permanent visa and be counted in the Asian immigrant total for 1977? Will they go on to apply for citizenship a few years later? Or do they long to return to their native country?

Huyen Vu pondered this question.

"If we could go back quietly, with no fear of revenge — for us or for our relatives still living there — then yes," he said. "That is the feeling of the older generation. My wife misses her other sons and grandchildren.

"Everything is good here," he added quickly. "The government and the American people are truly an assistance to the refugees. But Americans understand the Vietnamese only superficially.

"Primarily, the Vietnamese people are a people in search of freedom."

Next: The process of citizenship.

Why, who are minors

pertaining to the age at which one may marry, they might not have covered another area, such as the age at which a person may take public office.

CHANGES ARE being made, however, and in time, there will be uniformity.

An interesting incident that points up the incongruity occurred in Alaska in 1966. At that time, its legislative council discovered that the law permitted a person of 21 to legally qualify for a borough assemblyman, or city councilman. He could even make a will, sell property and, if he wished, donate his eyes to a hospital. But in order to marry, he had to have the written consent of his parents!

I have only touched on the subject of the need for protecting underage persons. Yet wouldn't you say that you have read enough to forget the use of a word you do not like, and think only of how much protection it is giving you?

Weddings

Ellen Meierhoff—A. Erick Lindblad

A houseboat moored in Newfound Harbor at Big Pine Key, Fla., is the first home of recent newlyweds, Ellen Louise and A. Erick Lindblad. Both are marine biologists at Newfound Harbor Marine Institute.

The groom, son of the Albin E. Lindblads of Arlington Heights, designed and built the 15x32-foot boat when he and Ellen decided this type of living could be intriguing. They admit, however, these arrangements may not be long-range.

Their Jan. 31 wedding took place in St. James Church of Highwood, Ill., where the bride's parents, the Fred Meierhoffs, reside. A buffet luncheon followed for 115 guests at Ft. Sheridan Officers Club.

Ellen chose an ivory georgette crepe wedding gown trimmed in Alencon lace, and instead of a veil she wore a wreath of daisies over her hair. Her bouquet was of miniature roses, daisies and baby's breath.

MARY KACEN of New York City was her maid of honor and JoAnne DeBarr, Richmond, Ky., sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Both girls wore coral veiveteen jumpers with floral blouses and carried nosegays of peach carnations, daisies, roses and baby's breath.

Richard Pelland, Fox River Grove, was best man and Michael Dybitz, Glenview, and Michael Meierhoff, the bride's brother, ushered.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Erick Lindblad

After a short honeymoon in Wisconsin the newlyweds returned to Big Pine Key.

Ellen is a graduate of Southern Illinois University and Erick of Millikin University. He graduated from Arlington High School in 1970.

Frances West— Harold L. Calvert

Winter shades of red and green were worn by the bridal attendants at the Jan. 31 wedding of Frances West of Buffalo Grove and Harold L. Calvert of Streamwood. The evening rites were performed by candlelight in Kingswood United Methodist Church.

Frances is the daughter of the Lewis A. Wests, Buffalo Grove, and Harold the son of the Clarence Havenstrides of Moscow, Pa.

Frances' three attendants were gowned alike in green velvet skirts and blazers with scotch plaid blouses for contrast. Each carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. R. J. Garvin, Mount Prospect, was matron of honor, with Janet Whitaker, Hoffman Estates, and Mrs. William Lester, Burlington, Iowa, as bridesmaids.

HAROLD'S BROTHER, Rick Calvert, was his best man. Groomsmen were Robert Lockhart, Mount Prospect, and William Dressel, Arlington Heights.

The bride chose an antique ivory gown with lace accents and a full-length veil attached to a matching headpiece. She wore her great-grandmother's pin at the neckline of the dress and carried orchids, roses and ivy in her bouquet.

A reception followed for 150 guests at Brookside Clubhouse in Streamwood. The newlyweds then left for a week of skiing at Powderhorn Mountain, Michigan. They are living in Streamwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Calvert

Frances works at Northwest Community Hospital, and Harold is with the Arlington Heights Fire Department.

Weddings

Ellen Meierhoff — A. Erick Lindblad

A houseboat moored in Newfound Harbor at Big Pine Key, Fla., is the first home of recent newlyweds, Ellen Louise and A. Erick Lindblad. Both are marine biologists at Newfound Harbor Marine Institute.

The groom, son of the Albin E. Lindblads of Arlington Heights, designed and built the 15x32-foot boat when he and Ellen decided this type of living could be intriguing. They admit, however, these arrangements may not be long-range.

Their Jan. 31 wedding took place in St. James Church of Highwood, Ill., where the bride's parents, the Fred Meierhoffs, reside. A buffet luncheon followed for 115 guests at Ft. Sheridan Officers Club.

Ellen chose an ivory georgette crepe wedding gown trimmed in Alencon lace, and instead of a veil she wore a wreath of daisies over her hair. Her bouquet was of miniature roses, daisies and baby's breath.

MARY KACEN of New York City was her maid of honor and JoAnne DeBarr, Richmond, Ky., sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Both girls wore coral veiveteen jumpers with floral blouses and carried nosegays of peach carnations, daisies, roses and baby's breath.

Richard Pelland, Fox River Grove, was best man and Michael Dybitz, Glenview, and Michael Meierhoff, the bride's brother, ushered.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Erick Lindblad

After a short honeymoon in Wisconsin the newlyweds returned to Big Pine Key.

Ellen is a graduate of Southern Illinois University and Erick of Millikin University. He graduated from Arlington High School in 1970.

Frances West — Harold L. Calvert

Winter shades of red and green were worn by the bridal attendants at the Jan. 31 wedding of Frances West of Buffalo Grove and Harold L. Calvert of Streamwood. The evening rites were performed by candlelight in Kingswood United Methodist Church.

Frances is the daughter of the Lewis A. Wests, Buffalo Grove, and Harold the son of the Clarence Havenstrides of Moscow, Pa.

Frances' three attendants were gowned alike in green velvet skirts and blazers with scotch plaid blouses for contrast. Each carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. R. J. Garvin, Mount Prospect, was matron of honor, with Janet Whitaker, Hoffman Estates, and Mrs. William Lester, Burlington, Iowa, as bridesmaids.

HAROLD'S BROTHER, Rick Calvert, was his best man. Groomsmen were Robert Lockhart, Mount Prospect, and William Dressel, Arlington Heights.

The bride chose an antique ivory gown with lace accents and a full-length veil attached to a matching headpiece. She wore her great-grandmother's pin at the neckline of the dress and carried orchids, roses and ivy in her bouquet.

A reception followed for 150 guests at Brookside Clubhouse in Streamwood. The newlyweds then left for a week of skiing at Powderhorn Mountain, Michigan. They are living in Streamwood.

Frances works at Northwest Community Hospital, and Harold is with the Arlington Heights Fire Department.

Title time tonight for Mid-Suburban

North champion Buffalo Grove...

by ART MUGALIAN

The team of the future is here.

Buffalo Grove's basketball fortunes have followed a skyrocket's path to the stratosphere, stopping briefly just once or twice as coach Paul Grady checked to see if maybe the rise to the top was too swift.

It wasn't.

The Bison had the potential, everyone said, two years ago — and now that potential has been reached.

Coach Grady's Buffalo Grove cagers are the champions of the Mid-Suburban North with a 9-1 record, and tonight at 7:30 they host Conant for the MSL title in what is only the Bison's third full year of varsity basketball.

Leading Buffalo Grove into action tonight is Brian Allsmiller, the 6-foot-8 junior center with all the moves, all the shots, and a good chance for All-State recognition.

Allsmiller is the core of this squad and Grady knows it. But he stops short of calling his Bison a one-man team.

"Anyone who plays us like we're a one-man gang will pay the price," the Bison coach has said.

And he's right.

There is such a wealth of talent at Buffalo Grove that Grady hadn't made up his mind on a starting lineup as of Tuesday morning.

For much of the season Grady has started a pair of seniors, 6-6 forward Tim Stonerook and 5-11 defensive specialist George Bastable. Tonight Grady may go with 5-11 junior Scott Groot, a deadly outside threat, and 6-3 sophomore Mike Marshall.

The Bison could very well start four juniors and a sophomore in the title game!

Paul Grady

Sure to start, barring late unforeseen developments, are Allsmiller and juniors Fred Heesch and Mike Ledna.

"We'll do whatever it takes to win,'' said Grady, who experimented with several lineups and a number of defensive configurations in the Bison's final league game Friday at Wheeling.

"I was pleased with the way we played Friday," the coach noted. "Marshall started and he looked good. They all played well."

Buffalo Grove opened the Wheeling game in a man-to-man defense, then switched to a zone and eventually slapped on a press. Grady may show Conant a little of everything tonight, perhaps with the hope of bringing the Cougars out of their deliberate style of play.

"The tempo of this game will be important," the coach said. "Whoever controls the pace will go a long way toward winning it. We have to play with patience and wait for our shots.

"The key will be rebounding," Grady added. "Conant does such a good job of boarding out of that zone. We'll really have to go to those offensive boards."

The Bison have lost only twice since Christmas — including a 60-54 crossover loss to Schaumburg in January. Since the defeat at Schaumburg, the Bison have won seven of eight games, losing only to Hersey in a highly emotional game near the end of the season. Their record is 18-4.

"The loss to Schaumburg did the kids a lot of good," Grady said. "It shook them up."

The Bison coach won't have any trouble getting his kids ready for Conant, a school that boasts a 91-47 mark over the past six years. Conant was playing in the Supersectionals when Buffalo Grove High School was just a glimmer in some administrator's eye.

"We're going to have to play well to beat them," Grady said matter-of-factly. "Dick (Redlinger) does a super job of getting his kids to play the kind of game he wants.

"This (Pete) Scaffidi is a good shooter and I'm impressed with (Ron) Sulaski," continued Grady. "He's a complete player and an excellent defensive ballplayer."

So for Grady and his Bison, the future is now. Tomorrow has come — today.

...hosts South champion Conant

by ART MUGALIAN

Conant coach Dick Redlinger leaned back in his office chair and smiled.

What he was going to say might surprise some people, he knew. After all, he and his Cougar basketball team have already pulled off some mild shockers this season.

Not too many cage observers figured Conant would win the Mid-Suburban League South title, for instance.

It was a long road but the Cougars made it. And tonight at 7:30 they meet the North champion Bison at Buffalo Grove for the big trophy.

So Redlinger smiled and said: "This is going to be a close game, I think — a good game. Some people don't think so, but I do."

By now, very few people doubt Redlinger. Least of all his team, which finished with a 10-2 mark in the South (14-7 over-all), including six straight wins in the past month.

"These kids really battled," said the coach. "And we overcame a lot of injuries and illness."

The next test for the Cougars is Buffalo Grove, a team with a bigger front line, a better record (18-4), and 6-foot-8 Brian Allsmiller, one of the best players in the area with a 25-point scoring average.

"It's not a question of how we are going to defend Brian," said Redlinger, "but rather how he's going to score against our zone.

"If he can't get his points inside he'll go outside and if he hits from the outside we'll bring in (Ed) MacDonald and put (Ron) Sulaski and (Brian) O'Donnell on the wings of a 1-3-1 zone," the coach added. "We'll start in the 2-3."

The defensive realignment was what made the difference last week when Conant stopped Schaumburg 51-49 to take over first place in the division. Redlinger replaced 6-1½ forward Mike Frisch with MacDonald, a 6-4 sophomore who doesn't give up a height advantage. With the 6-5 Sulaski and 6-4 O'Donnell, the Cougars aren't quite as small as some people think.

Dick Redlinger

Redlinger's zone not only has to shut down Allsmiller, it must also take away two other Buffalo Grove scoring threats, 6-4 junior Fred Heesch and 6-6 senior Tim Stonerook.

When Schaumburg beat the Bison 60-54 in January, the Saxons shut off everybody but Allsmiller by playing a tight man-to-man defense.

"They put (John) Chmiel on Allsmiller and let him get his 30, then cut off the rest of the guys," said Redlinger. "We can't play man-to-man because we tend to make stupid fouls, and we can't afford to get in foul trouble."

Redlinger hopes to be able to get the big Bison star in foul trouble at the other end of the court.

"Allsmiller has fouled out of several games this year and we're going to take it to him inside," said the Cougar coach. "O'Donnell and Sulaski both have good inside moves so we're not going to shy away."

But Conant's success or failure may ride on the play of its two guards, Pete Scaffidi and junior Rob Totten. Both were instrumental all season for the Cougars, but especially in the last two victories when Scaffidi was uncanny from the perimeters and Totten stood out on defense.

"Totten has improved 500 per cent this year," said Redlinger. "He doesn't shoot much from outside, but as far as handling the ball and taking it to the basket I think he's the best guard in the league.

"And with Allsmiller, Heesch, and Stonerook in the middle, we're going to have to take some good shots," the coach continued. "If Pete is hitting we'll be able to loosen it up inside."

Redlinger was reminded of his 1973-74 team that beat Arlington by a point in the title game — a team that was bigger, perhaps better, than this year's Cougars.

But this year's team is scrappier.

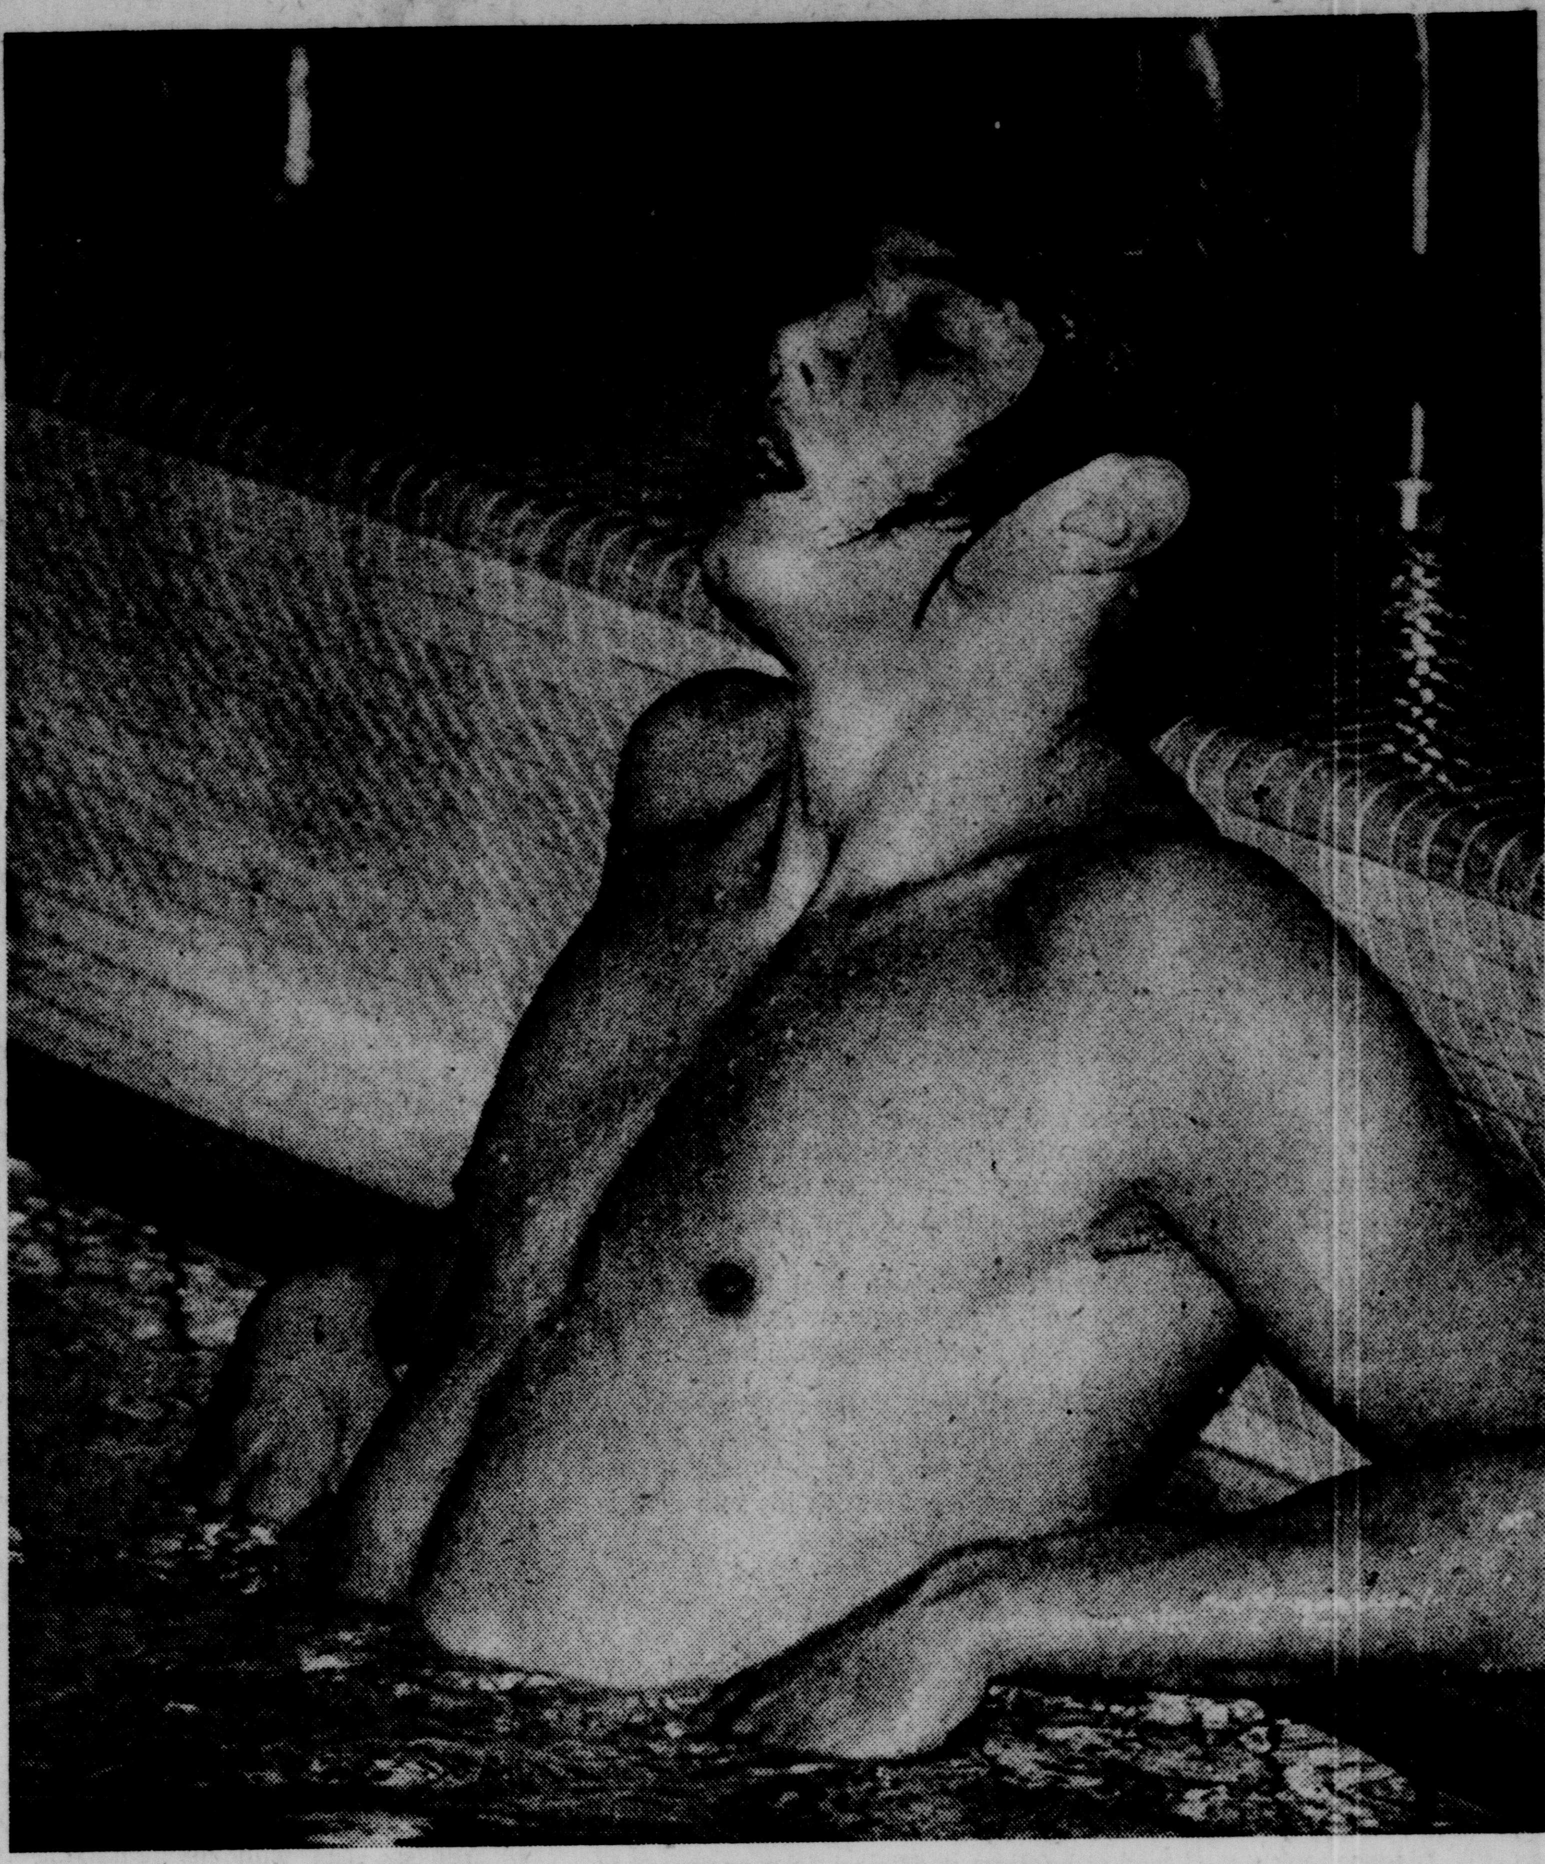
"I think we'll match up pretty well with Buffalo Grove," said the Cougar coach.

No one doubts him.

Radio coverage

WWMM-FM (92.7) will broadcast live the championship basketball game tonight between Buffalo Grove and Conant high schools.

Bob Houghton of WWMM and Bob Frisk of The Herald will be at the microphones for the Mid-Suburban title clash with a pre-game show at 7:25 p.m.



A COOL WINNER. St. Viator's Steve Rogers looks mighty calm following his winning performance in the 200-yard individual medley in the Arlington District Saturday. He had just set a new Arlington District record in the process, turning in a time of 2:07.488, which qualified him for Friday's state meet. Rogers also took second in the breaststroke, in 1:05.978, missing the state qualifying time by .001 of a second.

Ben Crenshaw is straight from a Christmas pageant

Jim Murray

Ben Crenshaw has the biggest feet, the babiest face, and the longest swing ever seen on a golfer 5 feet 9 inches tall. He looks like he should be just learning to ride two-wheelers, not winning golf tournaments. For the rest of golf, it's a little like getting shot at from a baby carriage.

Most golfers' swings are 380 degrees. Ben's is at least 580. It starts somewhere between his knees and navel on the backswing and goes around three or four times before it hits the ball. Sometimes Ben himself seems to spin around twice, like a propeller. When he hits the ball, it goes screaming out of there almost into orbit and comes down glowing. The power of the swing is such that Ben has to screw himself into the ground like a posthole digger to keep himself from flying after the ball. If he ever misses, he won't come down for five minutes.

He looks as if he came direct from a Christmas pageant. The face — cherubic, blue-eyed, pink-cheeked, looks out of place without a halo over it or wings behind. The tour is used to blond hair, but Ben's looks as if it still might have cradlecap. He's 24 years old but looks like someone who just got a new bike for Christmas. But he's already won three tournaments which is, for instance, three more than Arnold Palmer had won at that age and two more than Johnny Miller

Crenshaw takes a crack at the ball the way Dempsey would hit a chin or Larry Csonka a line. They'd call him Belting Ben if they were still into nicknames. Sometimes, of course, the ball curves foul. And when it does, you need two men and a dog to find it. Not since another Ben — Hogan — has anyone 5-9 driven a ball so far.

Despite the fact he looks like someone you'd like to take to a parade and buy a balloon, Ben came into golf under more pressure to succeed than anyone since Jack Nicklaus — or St. Nicholas. So much was expected of him, you'd think he was found under a burning bush. He had absolutely scattered collegiate golf, winning the NCAA title three years in a row. They spoke of him in Texas as if he changed water into wine on the side.

When people saw where his drives landed, they hung around expecting to see King Kong emerging from the woods. Ben won the first pro tournaments he entered. He got his pro card by beating the qualifying school field by 12 strokes.

The way old-timers in Texas talked about him, it seemed unfair to have him wait to go to the Hall of Fame, and unfair to the rest of golf not to have him give shots. Most guys can sort of "feel" their way into the tour. Ben came in on a sedan chair to the sound of trumpets. But the crown came down over his eyes at first.

Ben played golf as if it came wrapped in tinsel. He could have won half-a-dozen tournaments, but he never hit a commercial shot in his life. He went to the flag, the horizon, first place, not the cut or the top 60. He threw roundhouse rights at the course, never clinched with it. Naturally, a few shots got away in this kind of toe-to-toe exchange, but little Ben shrugged, teed up another ball — and hit it just as hard.

He walked up on a green as if he intended to arrest it. Hands on hips, a confident, almost swaggering rolling gait of a Texas Ranger on his size 11½ shoes out roping rustlers.

Ben Crenshaw never crept through a round of golf in his life. He shot an 82 or a 62 with the same boyish enthusiasm. He never ran around tinkering with his swing, or begging for an explanation for a bad round. When the course knocked him down, he got up swinging like Dempsey. He'd come home all beat up — but so would the course.

Ben is the newest rising star of golf. What Palmer was in '55, what Mickey Mantle was in '51, what Dempsey was at Toledo, or O. J. Simpson at his first Rose Bowl, Johnny Bench in his first World Series, Crenshaw is — the hope of an entire sport.

He didn't win his third tournament at the Glen Campbell-L.A. Open. But when someone observed "that kid's got a great future if he keeps his feet on the ground," the answer came back, "With that swing, he's got to keep his feet on the ground. If he ever doesn't, he'll look like the world's biggest divot. And when they say, 'Crenshaw just landed in a trap,' they'll mean it literally."

Palatine parents to meet Thursday

Palatine High School VIP (Very Interested Parents) Club's regular monthly meeting will be held Thursday at 8:00 p.m. in the Palatine High School Cafeteria.

The PHS Variety Club will entertain at this meeting.

You just need a broom for this new sport

If you own a broom or can sneak off with your mother's, there's a new sport in the Northwest suburbs you might like to try.

It's called broom hockey. In order to play, you have to be 18 years or older, have a broom with the bristles taped and be free to play on Tuesday nights from 10:30 until midnight.

Some 40 guys are doing just that every week at the Woodfield Hockey Center. So far there's just one large team that breaks up into groups each night. But Gary Deaton, who's acting as commissioner of the future league, is hoping that enough people will be interested so that a six or eight-team league might be formed.

The sport is big in Canada, but is just catching on in the United States. Hockey rules are played but the players wear tennis shoes instead of skates. A rubber ball, about the size of a 16-inch softball, is used instead of a puck. Old clothes are recommended.

Deaton, whose group is sponsored by Deaton Bros. Landscaping, is hoping that the turnout will be such that playoffs can be established with trophies going to the winners.

For more information, call Deaton at 543-3303.

He walked up on a green as if he intended to arrest it. Hands on hips, a confident, almost swaggering rolling gait of a Texas Ranger on his size 11½ shoes out roping rustlers.

Ben Crenshaw never crept through a round of golf in his life. He shot an 82 or a 62 with the same boyish enthusiasm. He never ran around tinkering with his swing, or begging for an explanation for a bad round. When the course knocked him down, he got up swinging like Dempsey. He'd come home all beat up — but so would the course.

Ben is the newest rising star of golf. What Palmer was in '55, what Mickey Mantle was in '51, what Dempsey was at Toledo, or O. J. Simpson at his first Rose Bowl, Johnny Bench in his first World Series, Crenshaw is — the hope of an entire sport.

He didn't win his third tournament at the Glen Campbell-L.A. Open. But when someone observed "that kid's got a great future if he keeps his feet on the ground," the answer came back, "With that swing, he's got to keep his feet on the ground. If he ever doesn't, he'll look like the world's biggest divot. And when they say, 'Crenshaw just landed in a trap,' they'll mean it literally."

Palatine parents to meet Thursday

Palatine High School VIP (Very Interested Parents) Club's regular monthly meeting will be held Thursday at 8:00 p.m. in the Palatine High School Cafeteria.

The PHS Variety Club will entertain at this meeting.

You just need a broom for this new sport

If you own a broom or can sneak off with your mother's, there's a new sport in the Northwest suburbs you might like to try.

It's called broom hockey. In order to play, you have to be 18 years or older, have a broom with the bristles taped and be free to play on Tuesday nights from 10:30 until midnight.

Some 40 guys are doing just that every week at the Woodfield Hockey Center. So far there's just one large team that breaks up into groups each night. But Gary Deaton, who's acting as commissioner of the future league, is hoping that enough people will be interested so that a six or eight-team league might be formed.

The sport is big in Canada, but is just catching on in the United States. Hockey rules are played but the players wear tennis shoes instead of skates. A rubber ball, about the size of a 16-inch softball, is used instead of a puck. Old clothes are recommended.

Deaton, whose group is sponsored by Deaton Bros. Landscaping, is hoping that the turnout will be such that playoffs can be established with trophies going to the winners.

For more information, call Deaton at 543-3303.

Black Hawks hike lead with win over Vancouver

The Chicago Black Hawks and Vancouver Canucks battled late Tuesday night in a crucial Smythe Division battale in the Campbell conference of the National Hockey League. The first place Black Hawks went into the game with a lead of four points over the Canucks.

Chicago won, 4-1, to increase its division lead to six points. Darcy Rota scored at 16:11 and Alain Daigle at 12:09 for insurance goals in the final period. Tony Esposito worked in the net.

Bulls fall to Washington

Phil Chenier scored 20 second half points on his way to a 32 point performance Tuesday night in leading the Washington Bullets to a 92-83 victory over the Chicago Bulls.

Chicago took a 42-41 lead at halftime as Mickey Johnson scored 14 straight points to put him within one point of the NBA record for consecutive points, held by Wilt Chamberlain.

Chenier went to work in the third quarter with nine points and reserve Len Robinson tallied eight in 3:47 to give the Bullets a 70-61 lead. The Bullets proceeded to build a 13 point lead in the fading minutes of the game and Chicago never threatened in the final quarter.

Hayes had 20 points and Dave Bing 19 for Washington while Bob Love had 21 points for Chicago.

The win was the Bullets' sixth in the last seven games and pulled them within a half a game of Central Division leader Cleveland. It was the Bulls' second straight defeat.

League approves sale of Giants

The National League Tuesday approved the sale of the San Francisco Giants to a group including Robert Lurie and Bob Short subject to conditions which league peesident Chub Feeney believed would be met easily.

"I don't think there's any doubt they can meet these conditions," Feeney said following a league meeting that lasted four hours and 15 minutes.

The owners stipulated the conditions must be "fulfilled by the end of business, Pacific time, March 1."

Feeney said the conditions were "just a matter of things to be written down," and that there were no financial problems or conditions.

He said the group in which Lurie holds a 50 per cent interest and Short and M.E.I. Corp., hold 25 per cent each would present their papers to show they have met their conditions to him in the league's San Francisco office.

Lorn Brown to assist Harry Caray

Lorn Brown, 37, is Harry Caray's new partner in broadcasting the Chicago White Sox games on radio and television, it was announced Tuesday.

Brown and Caray will each broadcast half of a game.

A 15-year broadcasting veteran, Brown currently does the Chicago Bulls' games for Channel 44.

Ed Morris, general manager of Channel 44 who made the announcement, said Sox owner Bill Veeck plans to bring in guest announcers to add to the color. "We'll have guys like Maury Wills and Sachel Paige," Morris said.

Brown was born in Chicago and attended Mount Carmel High School. He broadcast 145 games for the Iowa Oaks last season. He also broadcast Bradley, Drake and Illinois State basketball games over the years.

He was a substitute for Jack Buck, a St. Louis Cardinal broadcaster who succeeded Caray with that club.

North sweeps five playoff games; Hersey whips Schaumburg, 71-64

Hersey guards Tom Frye and Joe Pusatera came off the bench in the second half and helped spark a 30-point fourth quarter as the host Huskies knocked off Schaumburg, 71-64, in the Mid-Suburban League's runnerup game between the second-place teams in the North and South Tuesday.

The Hersey victory, which gives the Huskies a 17-7 mark going into the regionals, was one of five wins for the North division in a sweep of the basketball playoffs.

Frye and Pusatera, the smallest men on a court of giants, combined for 14 points in the final period as Hersey broke open a deadlock. Most of their baskets came on fast breaks or resulted from the Huskies' efficient full-court press.

Hersey's leading scorer, though, was 6-foot-5 senior Tom Burzak, who tossed in 17 points. Clyde Glass had 16 points and 10 rebounds for Hersey.

Schaumburg, now 19-5, trailed early by as many as nine points, but closed the gap in the second quarter on the shooting of Jon McIlraith and Dan Breen. McIlraith then added 1 of his game-high 29 points in the third quarter as the Saxons took a 41-39 lead.

But little 5-8 Pusatera got inside for a pair of rebound baskets and the Huskies were back on top 43-41. Frye popped a 12-footer, Glass hit a jumper from the lane, and Frye scored from the baseline to boost the Hersey lead to 49-41.

Breen scored six of his 15 points in the final moments, but the closest the Saxons got was 57-51.

Frye finished with 12 points and Pusatera had eight for the Huskies, who also got six each from Jay McDermott and Scott Topczewski.

CARDS WIN THRILLER

Jim Zobel, a late-game substitute, dialed the right combination on a 20-foot set shot with :02 remaining to crack Elk Grove's zone and propel Arlington to a heartstopping 45-44 triumph Tuesday night.

Zobel, who entered the teeter-totter contest midway through the final period for his defensive ability, rippled the cords from his right wing slot as Arlington failed to penetrate Elk Grove's rigid zone.

"He's probably our best stationary shooter," Card coach Don Drain admitted while checking Zobel's 22-for-47 success from the floor on the year. "He's tough against a zone defense and I didn't discourage him from shooting, even though it was his first shot of the game."

Zobel's heroics stole the thunder from Elk Grove's rugged 6-5 forward Mark Smith who owned the baselines at both ends of the floor and accounted for nearly one-half his team's total with 20 points on 10 buckets.

The low-scoring affair was a credit to both teams' tenacious defenses. The lead changed hands on no less than 19 different occasions and the biggest margin of the throbber was Arlington's 10-4 cushion in the opening minutes.

The Cardinals relied on balanced scoring as Greg Kloiber paced the attack with 15, Frank DeSimone added 11 and Tom North contributed 10.

Elk Grove, deprived of its 20th triumph of the season and owning a 19-6 mark, got support for Smith's 20 with Dave Hornacek pumping in 11.

LARSON ASSISTS WHEELING

Sparked by the floor play of Dan Larson, Wheeling charged ahead to stay in the third quarter and turned back visiting Rolling Meadows 66-54.

Larson, in addition to bagging a dozen points, tied a school record by serving up 13 assists and helped his Wildcats break open a tight contest early after intermission. The Mustangs trailed by only one at midgame, 30-29.

"Danny was just one of several bright spots for us tonight," smiled 'Cat coach Ted Ecker afterwards. "We had our lowest turnover rate of the season tonight —10 — and did a pretty decent job on the boards against a good physical team . . . I think we may be coming together now as a unit."

Wheeling, keyed by Larson and Doc Schultz, broke away for the first time in the opening stanza. They reeled off a dozen straight points to go from an 8-4 deficit to an eight-point command.

But Meadows charged right back into contention in the second period, led by Bill Wissen, Terry Moran and Dave Bell. A four-point play, capped by Bell's two gratis pitches, pulled the guests into a temporary lead at 25-24.

Wheeling hit for five straight afield in period three with Keith Schildt leading the way and the hosts were only mildly threatened afterwards in upping their over-all record to 11-13. Schildt finished with 15 to lead both sides in scoring while sophomore Larson's assist mark equaled a club record set by Mike Hallstrom last season.

Wissen had 11 for the Mustangs and Moran and Jerry McGill supplied 10 points apiece.

VIKINGS TIP KNIGHTS

The Prospect Knights put on one of the most furious fourth quarter rallies of the year, coming back from a 14-point deficit, but then fell short as the Fremd Vikings escaped with a 68-67 victory Tuesday night.

Down 14 at the onset of the final period, the Knights demolished the Vikings' defense, outshooting Fremd 18-4 in the first six minutes of the quarter to tie the score at 64.

The Knights took their first lead of the night on Tim Kubicki's 15-footer with 22 seconds left, putting Prospect in the lead, 67-66.

But Fremd came right back. Rick Kolze drove down the baseline with just 10 seconds left on the clock to give the Vikings the lead for good, 68-67.

Prospect had one final shot at the basket but missed, as the Vikings' Craig Rawlins pulled down the final rebound.

After bursting out to a 60-44 lead after three periods, the Vikings were limited to just four buckets in the final period. Several times, they had a chance to put the game away from the free throw line, but missed.

Fremd missed six free throws, including two bonus attempts, in the last 1½ minutes of play.

The Vikings built a 44-34 halftime lead, thanks to the sharpshooting of Dale Hallberg woo tossed in 14 first half points. Hallberg cooled down as did the rest of the Vikings in the second half, finishing with 21 for the night to take scoring honors for the host North division club.

Kubicki took scoring honors for Prospect with 21 points.

The win puts Fremd's final season mark at 8-15 over-all. Prospect, meanwhile, falls to 8-17 over-all.

PALATINE VICTORIOUS

The Palatine Pirates erupted for 22 points in the final quarter to defeat the visiting Hoffman Estates Hawks, 64-57.

Thanks to high scoring Kevin McKenna, the Pirates held the lead for three quarters. But the 33-point output by the MSL's leading scorer was overshadowed somewhat in the final period as two little guys and a big guy took over.

Leading 42-40, Palatine jumped out to a 56-44 advantage. Tom Iuorio (5-foot-7), who was scoreless for three quarters, scored seven. His backcourt teammate, Al Knotek (5-11), had two jumpers from outside during that flurry. And underneath, 6-4, 200-pound Ken Reid drove the baseline for four of his 13 points as the Pirates put away only their seventh win in 22 games.

"They know they can shoot the basketball," said Ron Finfrock, Palatine's coach, of his guards. "We just told them to take it to the basket more."

Hoffman Estates, now 10-14, tried to rally as it had done twice earlier to tie the game, but it was too late. Pirate free throw shooting held off the Hawks.

"They showed some composure late in the game," praised Finfrock for his team.

Joe Tully starred for Hoffman, scoring a season high 23 points. John Staback was next with nine.

Finfrock was especially pleased with Reid. He said the strong senior has "been playing a little bit better the last few games."

Duncan girls set swim mark

The quartet of Chris Takata and Sue Cripe from Arlington Heights, Linda Walkowiak of Mount Prospect and Sharon Ratcliffe established a new national age group swimming record while participating for the Camp Duncan Swimming Team.

The four girls chopped one-half second off the year-old record in the 200-yard freestyle event. Swimming two seconds faster than their previous best, the girls combined for a blistering 143.9 clocking to shatter the 1:44.4 set last year by Indian Boundary.

"Danny was just one of several bright spots for us tonight," smiled 'Cat coach Ted Ecker afterwards. "We had our lowest turnover rate of the season tonight —10 — and did a pretty decent job on the boards against a good physical team . . . I think we may be coming together now as a unit."

Wheeling, keyed by Larson and Doc Schultz, broke away for the first time in the opening stanza. They reeled off a dozen straight points to go from an 8-4 deficit to an eight-point command.

But Meadows charged right back into contention in the second period, led by Bill Wissen, Terry Moran and Dave Bell. A four-point play, capped by Bell's two gratis pitches, pulled the guests into a temporary lead at 25-24.

Wheeling hit for five straight afield in period three with Keith Schildt leading the way and the hosts were only mildly threatened afterwards in upping their over-all record to 11-13. Schildt finished with 15 to lead both sides in scoring while sophomore Larson's assist mark equaled a club record set by Mike Hallstrom last season.

Wissen had 11 for the Mustangs and Moran and Jerry McGill supplied 10 points apiece.

VIKINGS TIP KNIGHTS

The Prospect Knights put on one of the most furious fourth quarter rallies of the year, coming back from a 14-point deficit, but then fell short as the Fremd Vikings escaped with a 68-67 victory Tuesday night.

Down 14 at the onset of the final period, the Knights demolished the Vikings' defense, outshooting Fremd 18-4 in the first six minutes of the quarter to tie the score at 64.

The Knights took their first lead of the night on Tim Kubicki's 15-footer with 22 seconds left, putting Prospect in the lead, 67-66.

But Fremd came right back. Rick Kolze drove down the baseline with just 10 seconds left on the clock to give the Vikings the lead for good, 68-67.

Prospect had one final shot at the basket but missed, as the Vikings' Craig Rawlins pulled down the final rebound.

After bursting out to a 60-44 lead after three periods, the Vikings were limited to just four buckets in the final period. Several times, they had a chance to put the game away from the free throw line, but missed.

Fremd missed six free throws, including two bonus attempts, in the last 1½ minutes of play.

The Vikings built a 44-34 halftime lead, thanks to the sharpshooting of Dale Hallberg woo tossed in 14 first half points. Hallberg cooled down as did the rest of the Vikings in the second half, finishing with 21 for the night to take scoring honors for the host North division club.

Kubicki took scoring honors for Prospect with 21 points.

The win puts Fremd's final season mark at 8-15 over-all. Prospect, meanwhile, falls to 8-17 over-all.

PALATINE VICTORIOUS

The Palatine Pirates erupted for 22 points in the final quarter to defeat the visiting Hoffman Estates Hawks, 64-57.

Thanks to high scoring Kevin McKenna, the Pirates held the lead for three quarters. But the 33-point output by the MSL's leading scorer was overshadowed somewhat in the final period as two little guys and a big guy took over.

Leading 42-40, Palatine jumped out to a 56-44 advantage. Tom Iuorio (5-foot-7), who was scoreless for three quarters, scored seven. His backcourt teammate, Al Knotek (5-11), had two jumpers from outside during that flurry. And underneath, 6-4, 200-pound Ken Reid drove the baseline for four of his 13 points as the Pirates put away only their seventh win in 22 games.

"They know they can shoot the basketball," said Ron Finfrock, Palatine's coach, of his guards. "We just told them to take it to the basket more."

Hoffman Estates, now 10-14, tried to rally as it had done twice earlier to tie the game, but it was too late. Pirate free throw shooting held off the Hawks.

"They showed some composure late in the game," praised Finfrock for his team.

Joe Tully starred for Hoffman, scoring a season high 23 points. John Staback was next with nine.

Finfrock was especially pleased with Reid. He said the strong senior has "been playing a little bit better the last few games."

Duncan girls set swim mark

The quartet of Chris Takata and Sue Cripe from Arlington Heights, Linda Walkowiak of Mount Prospect and Sharon Ratcliffe established a new national age group swimming record while participating for the Camp Duncan Swimming Team.

The four girls chopped one-half second off the year-old record in the 200-yard freestyle event. Swimming two seconds faster than their previous best, the girls combined for a blistering 143.9 clocking to shatter the 1:44.4 set last year by Indian Boundary.

Tague 'once in a lifetime swimmer

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

Hersey High School swimming star Chris Tague had but a few words about his performance in Saturday's district swimming meet at Arlington High School.

"I'm discouraged," he said simply.

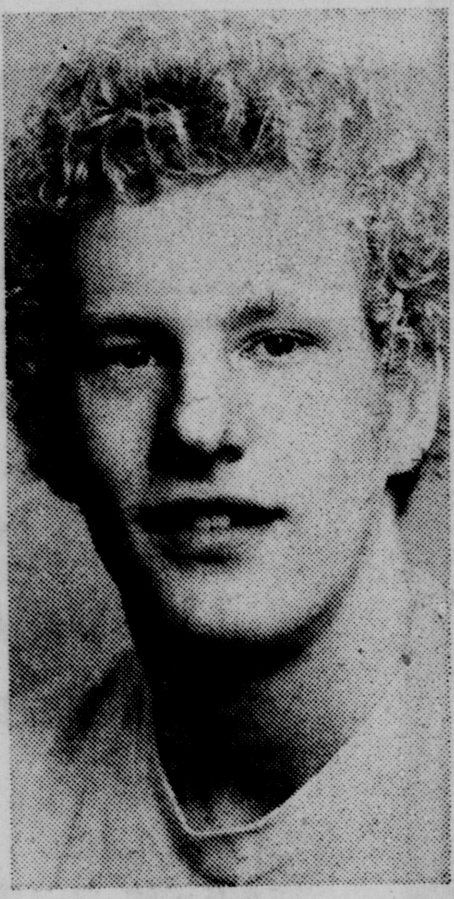
Now a closer look at this performances might make you wonder why, considering Tague had just: (a) qualified for the state meet this Friday in both the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events, (b) won both district titles in those events and (c) set two new district marks in the process.

But those feats are no accurate guages to performance as far as Chris Tague is concerned, for the young man has so far surpassed area competition that he's on his own plan toward possibly two state titles when the state swimming tournament begins Friday afternoon at Hinsdale South.

"I'd hoped to do better," Tague said of his performance Saturday. "In the 500, I just died."

Tague is a state leader right now in both of his events. In the 500, he has a whopping five second lead over his nearest challenger, George Tidmarsh of Hinsdale Central. But Tague still worries.

"A lot of coaches don't send in their times to be listed so swimmers come out of the woodwork at the state meet," said Tague.



Chris Tague

Tague's accomplishments are legion. A swimming magazine has him ranked nationally in three events, seventh in the 100-, ninth in the 200-and sixth in the 500 yard freestyle.

Locally, he's dominated swimming honor rolls and at one time was ranked first in three out of four freestyle events statewide.

For all his natural ability, Tague still works at his swimming with an unbelievable fervor. For 10 to 11 months a year he swims up to 9,000 yards a day, often seven days a week. That's over five miles per day.

Knowing what it takes to be a champion, Tague swims daily before school at a local YMCA, in addition to his after school practices with the Hersey team.

He's in the water so much he carries around a special oil to keep his skin from peeling. Even so, cuts and scratches won't heal completely until he takes his annual month off in the spring.

"Nobody works harder than Chris Tague," said Hersey swimming coach Herb Parsons. "He's a once in a lifetime swimmer for a coach."

Though he's nearing the end of his high school swimming career, Tague says he plans to continue swimming in college, perhaps at Southern Illinois where his brother attends and where teammate and diving standout, Bill Cashmore, plans to go next year.

Right now he's concentrating on the state meet, sticking to a special diet and trying to get enough sleep, something he says is getting harder, as he swims his race over and over in his mind before falling off to sleep.

Other than that he'll be resting up, doing much shorter workouts, as Tague puts it, "no hard stuff.

"Just 6,000 yards a day."

Steak and Enchiladas
$3.95 Wednesday night.

Something very special is happening on Wednesday night at the Boar's Head Restaurant.

Steak and enchiladas.

For only $3.95, you get a juicy steak, two cheese enchiladas, salad and coffee, tea or milk.

The steak is choice top sirloin, and the enchiladas are ground corn tortillas, topped and filled with cheddar cheese and a not-too-mild, not-too-spicy sauce.

Drop into the Boar's Head Restaurant on Wednesday night. We think you'll agree that this is the best dinner deal in town. In fact, we'll stake our enchiladas on it.

Got a minute, Yankee?

John C. Morrissey, American heavyweight champion and later a New York state senator, defeated Yankee Sullivan in 1853 at the end of three dozen rounds in their bare knuckle battle.

Sullivan, who was actually from England, failed to answer the bell at the start of the 37th round because he spent the 30 second rest period outside the ring. Sullivan had jumped through the ropes to beat up on a group of Morrissey fans who had been harassing him the entire fight!

Got a minute, Yankee?

John C. Morrissey, American heavyweight champion and later a New York state senator, defeated Yankee Sullivan in 1853 at the end of three dozen rounds in their bare knuckle battle.

Sullivan, who was actually from England, failed to answer the bell at the start of the 37th round because he spent the 30 second rest period outside the ring. Sullivan had jumped through the ropes to beat up on a group of Morrissey fans who had been harassing him the entire fight!

Fish gills pull oxygen from water

HOW DO FISH SEPARATE OXYGEN FROM WATER?

Fish, like all other creatures, need oxygen to live. If we were to change places with them, we would soon appreciate the special way they obtain this precious gas. Our lungs are just right for us; but if fish had to depend on lungs like ours, the surface of the ocean would be a mighty busy place with fish crowding each other to get a gulp of air.

The watery world of fish provides plenty of bubbly oxygen dissolved in the water he swims in. But in order to use this precious gas he has the ticklish task of separating it from the water. And wouldn't you know, with a flick of his tail and a flap of his fin, he just does it?

To perform his underwater magic he uses a pair of special organs called gills, which are located on each side of his body. If you look inside the throat of a fish you can see four or more slits that open to the outside. These slits are called gill openings. As the fish swims along, he opens his mouth and takes in a gulp of water. Special valves in his mouth then close to prevent the water fom flowing back out. The water passes into a gill chamber and circulates over his gills.

Each gill has a number of parts. And the part that does the job is the gill filament. These filaments look like rows of tiny feathers. As the water passes over the gill filaments an exchange occurs — oxygen that has dissolved in the water is absorbed into the fish bloodstream and carbon dioxide passes out of the bloodstream into the water. Carbon dioxide, as we know, is a waste product produced by the body.

This is the way most fish go about the process of breathing underwater. But, as is often the case, there are a number of exceptions. The torpedo batfish, for example, is a flat fellow. His gill openings are located behind his pectoral fins and look like a pair of exhaust pipes. As he expels the water, he gets a jet-propelled effect.

Some fish can rise to the surface, take a bubble of air and hold it in a special chamber which works somewhat like our lungs. A mudskipper is so adept at this he can even leave the water temporarily, scooting along the land, using his strong pectoral fins.

Most fish take their oxygen directly from the water using their gills. Some fish, however, can come to the surface and grab a gulp of air like any landblubber. Only a few fish, however, can live on atmospheric oxygen for any length of time.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Linda Neth, 12, of Wichita, Kan., for her question:

WHAT IS A CATACOMB?

A catacomb is an intricate system of underground passages used long ago as burial places. Built as far back as the 1st century A. D., these elaborate tunnels form long, twisting passageways extending for many miles. In most places they are about 30 to 40 feet below street level. Inside, the dimly lit corridors are three to four feet wide, with ceilings from 10 to 15 feet high. Narrow shafts to the ground's surface allow barely enough air and light to penetrate into the dark, cavernous halls.

Catacombs were built in many countries, such as Italy, Egypt, North Africa and Palestine. But the most famous ones are in Rome, and thousands of tourists visit them each year. The early Christians built these hidden tombs by cutting through soft volcanic rock. Carved into the walls are tiers of tombs sealed with bricks or marble slabs, Some catacombs contained large chambers which served as family burial vaults as well as places of worship. Decorating the walls and ceilings of many catacombs in Rome are beautiful examples of early christian art.

Pardon still sought for Tokyo Rose

by ROBERT MACKAY

"You're about 30 years too late," the burly Japanese-American said as he dropped the reporter's copy to the floor and walked away.

It's the customary reception given reporters seeking Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, better known during World War II as Tokyo Rose, one of a dozen women who broadcast Japanese propaganda to Allied troops in the South Pacific.

Mrs. D'Aquino has worked at her father's import shop in Chicago since her release from the Women's Reformatory at Anderson, W. Va., in 1956, after serving 6½ years of a 10-year sentence for treason.

She has refused to talk to reporters for 20 years.

THE 30,000-MEMBER Japanese-American Citizens League says she was a victim of "postwar prejudice" and is circulating petitions urging President Ford to grant her a full and unconditional pardon.

"If he is still pardon-shy because of Nixon, we will wait a while before we file a formal request," said Dr. Clifford Uyeda, chairman of the National Committee for Iva Toguri.

Two former presidents have refused to pardon Mrs. D'Aquino.

Mrs. D'Aquino, born in Los Angeles July 4, 1916, went to Japan to care for a sick aunt in 1941 and was told her citizenship was in doubt when she tried to return to the United States.

THEN THE JAPANESE bombed Pearl Harbor and she was stranded in Japan, where she held part-time typing jobs with the Danish Embassy and Tokyo Radio.

Mrs. D'Aquino admitted during her treason trial she was a disc jockey dubbed "Tokyo Rose" by American troops, but said she was a loyal American.

Mrs. D'Aquino said the most damaging Tokyo Rose comments were broadcast by other Roses.

Veterans of the South Pacific campaign still have mixed feelings about the effect of the Tokyo Rose broadcasts.

"Hell, we used to enjoy listening to her," one Chicago veteran said. "She never lowered our morale."

"Don't let anybody kid you, it scares you," said Ross Rumore, another Chicago veteran. "We laughed at the broadcasts too, but it scared the you-know-what out of us."

Freakish new deck slam

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The chances are that almost every one who has played rubber bridge has run across today's extremely freakish hand. The reason is that if you take a new deck of cards, cut it as often as you wish, give it one absolutely perfect shuffle, cut it some more and then deal it out you will produce this monstrosity.

If the dealer happens to hold the spade suit and he and his partner are using the grand slam force, the bidding is likely to proceed along the lines shown in the box.

Then, anything can happen with freak hands. We can imagine tens of thousands of bidding sequences. Some people may even stop short of a slam.

Others will double their opponents somewhere along the way.

The one thing we can be certain of is that irrespective of who gets to bid first the side with the spades is likely to wind up playing the hand and if they get pushed into seven they are likely to be doubled.

Cigarette Market Bombshell.

New 'Enriched Flavor'™ discovery for 9 mg. tar MERIT achieves taste of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

"Low tar, good taste."

Others have made the claim.

Philip Morris just made the cigarette.

MERIT. Only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Yet MERIT delivers astonishing flavor. Flavor verified by smokers all across the country.

If you're looking to become a low tar smoker, or don't particularly enjoy the taste of the low tar brand you smoke now—you'll be interested.

New 'Enriched Flavor' Discovery

By isolating certain "key" flavor ingredients of tobacco in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have developed a way to pack extra flavor into tobacco without the usual increase in tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.'

It's extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through.

We packed 'Enriched Flavor' into MERIT. And began a series of extensive taste tests. The results were amazing.

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, all tested at home.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

RONALD REAGAN

From Herald News services

Democrat Jimmy Carter won a comfortable victory in the New Hampshire Primary that he said could boost him to a first ballot Presidential nomination. Ronald Reagan and President Ford, meantime, were locked in a dead heat Wednesday morning in the GOP race.

Reagan told supporters his showing "far exceeded our expectations." In Washington, Ford was reported confident he would pull out the cliff-hanger. All night, fewer than 1,000 votes separated the two Republicans.

With 49 per cent of votes counted, the totals were: Reagan 30,710 — 50 per cent; Ford 30, 627 — 50 per cent. On the Democratic side, with 51 per cent counted, the former Georgia governor led Udall, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma and Sargent Shriver. The vote was Carter 14,162, 31 per cent; Udall 10,581, 23 per cent; Bayh 7,505, 16 per cent; Harris 5, 245, 12 per cent; and Shriver, 4,093, 9 per cent.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who insists he is not a candidate, got 2,123 — 5 per cent — in a write-in campaign.

At Reagan's Illinois headquarters, volunteers spent much of the evening making phone calls and stuffing envelops with ears cocked toward radio and television reports of the New Hampshire results.

A "larger than normal crowd" packed the Des Plaines office making for crowded working conditions and temperatures in the high 80s.

U.S. Rep. Phillip M. Crane, R-12th, Reagans' Illinois campaign director, said the preliminary results from New Hampshire were "vastly beyond what had been indicated."

WHILE CRANE SAID the results would have an impact on the Florida primary March 9 and Illinois' March 16 primary, he was not willing to upgrade projections of a 40 to 45 per cent of the vote for Reagan here.

In Washington, officials of Ford's election suggested former President Richard Nixon's China trip cost Ford votes. Deputy campaign director Stuart Spencer said: "If President Ford loses . . . Richard Nixon will be the reason."

Crane discounted the China speculation. He said "Mr. Nixon's trip had little political significance."

Carter, with his strong New Hampshire showing, became the man to beat. He accepted victory as an indication "that being from the south was not the handicap than many people thought it would be in New England's.

Ronald Reagan, according to officials at his campaign headquarters in Des Plaines, is tentatively scheduled to appear at a rally at Hersey High School, Arlington Heights, March 11.

Passolt's problem — not having right image

"I don't think the best method is to walk away because there's some hard work involved. As the man said, 'I asked for hard work when I came here.' " — George Passolt, a man who has spent many restless nights at the reins of village government.

No great pride can be sensed in Wheeling, even though highway signs welcome visitors to a "village with feeling."

Two years ago, the community was jolted by a zoning scandal which featured huge payoffs to political boss James Stavros, a strong-armed former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who purportedly "ran" the community.

Federal investigators uncovered no reason to indict George Passolt, the hard working and sometimes misunderstood village manager who had served Wheeling in many capacities since 1965.

Passolt's unlucky day came later.

He fell victim of that scandal, too, a victim of ensuing community anger which really has not subsided, only diminished somewhat.

THERE WAS no crime. He just did not project the correct "image."

George Passolt represented scandal ridden days in Wheeling government not because he had been involved, only because he was there, occupying a desk, drawing a paycheck.

That meant he had become excess baggage.

The village board fired Passolt last October.

He robably saw it coming and might have left before the purge. Instead, Passolt refused to sway under the pressure of tremendous workloads, too few staff members and criticism that he did not manage well.

Passolt also battled the entire aura of "Wheeling, the village with feeling." As in wheeling and dealing.

"Anybody who worked for the Village of Wheeling, even to this day, bears the brunt of shame,

by BILL HILL

The Arlington Heights Village Board Tuesday night gave Police Chief L.W. Calderwood a unanimous vote of confidence at the end of a special meeting called to investigate charges of mismanagement in the police department.

Former Capt. Jack Aldrich, who wrote a report Feb. 10 criticizing various operating procedures in the department and charged that morale in the department is "at the lowest ebb in 24 years," appeared before the board. He again said that he had sent a report on departmental problems to Village Mgr. L.A. Hanson in December. Aldrich said that he sent the report to village trustees because of the "disappearance" of a management study of the department conducted by the village administration from April to August last year.

Hanson said the report was never put in final form and released because the 72-year-old Calderwood is near retirement.

"WE FELT IT SHOULD be held in abeyance because it is a long-range development report and so his (Calderwood's) successor could have some input into it first," Hanson said.

The 53-page report recommending short-range and long-range reorganization of the police department was released to village trustees Friday in preparation for Tuesday's meeting.

More than 150 persons attended the meeting, including most of the 82-member Arlington Heights police force. The department's Fraternal Order of Police, as well as several individual officers, made statements in support of Calderwood and the village administration.

Robert Gerth, president of the FOP, also said that "morale is good" in the department.

GENE DECK, REPRESENTING patrolmen, who are not members of the FOP, said "we see our administration trying to identify and rectify our problems as they arise."

Aldrich's only comment at the end of the meeting was "Grin and bear it. You can't argue with the democratic process."

Alrich retired from the Arlington Heights Police Department in September to become police chief in Barrington Hills.

"I intend to continue living here and

SLA drove Patty neurotic, doctor testifies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A psychiatrist testified Tuesday that Patricia Hearst became mentally ill out of fear of her kidnapers and joined a bank robberty and shot up a store like a child trying to please its parents.

Dr. Louis J. West, head of the psychiatry department at UCLA, said Miss Hearst still has a "traumatic neurosis" which eventually may be cured with treatment and friendly surroundings and that she has shown considerable improvement in the past few weeks.

West was the first of three psychiatrists to be called by the defense to bolster its claim that the Hibernia bank robbery was not a voluntary act and that the 22-year-old heiress therefore should be acquitted on the bank holdup charge.

AFTER COMPLETING his direct testimony, West was put under cross examination by prosecution lawyer David Bancroft, who brought out that the psychiatrist wrote Miss Hearst's mother and father while she was still in SLA captivity.

"You wrote expressing sympathy and told them they should not despair because if she was returned to them alive it might turn out she is in such condition that she could be helped and subsequently restored to health, is that not correct?" asked Bancroft.

"Yes," said West. "I wrote to them as one parent to another. I got no reply and I expected none."

The psychiatrist also said that during 23 hours of questioning Miss Hearst in jail, for a period beginning

Bicentennial panel wins 3 grants

The Arlington Heights Bicentennial Commission has received three state grants totaling $2,800.

The commission's budget requests for $7,400 also were approved Monday by the village board's finance committee.

The commission will give the Arlington Heights Historical Society $4,500 to be put towards the purchase of 10 historical models depicting the history and growth of the village. A state grant worth $2,000 is included in that gift.

The other state grants are $500 for the staging of two plays, "Huckleberry Finn" on April 30 and "Dandelion Wine" on May 7, and $300 for a Town Meeting '76, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Jaycees.

Village funds will be used to partially fund five Bicentennial projects: The Historical Society's display, $2,500; Fourth of July fireworks show, $1,500; a three-site mini-park project, $2,000; Town Meeting '76, $600; and the two plays $800.

3 pupils confess to Field vandalism

Three 12-year-old students at Field School in Wheeling have been suspended from school for five days after the trio confessed to vandalism at the school Sunday which resulted in an estimated $4,000 to $6,000 in damage. The vandals used hammers to break wire-reinforced windows in at least 25 of the school's 36 classrooms and ransacked desks and cabinets. An official of the school, 51 Armand Ln., Wheeling, said police determined who the vandals were after getting tips from youngsters at the school, and "one thing led to another." "The three kids really gave no reason for it," an official said, "except they decided they would do it." Dist. 21 officials will consider additional disciplinary action next week.

Mother of 3 evicted from home

A Des Plaines woman was aided by volunteer workers Tuesday after she and her three children were evicted from their apartment, 960 Beau Dr. Sheriff's deputies evicted the woman, Janice Hill, along with her three children, ages 7, 9 and 12. The woman reportedly had not paid her rent for two months. But a group of volunteer workers later arrived and helped move her furniture to a house down the street. The family will stay with friends temporarily. Donald Hageman, chairman of the Red Cross disaster service who helped summon the volunteers, said he would have a Red Cross caseworker contact the woman. Volunteers aided the family in December 1974, when fire gutted the apartment and displaced them. Mrs. Hill said she was collecting unemployment but had not received a check in three months.

MRS. JANICE HILL, 960 Beau Dr., Des Plaines, checks some of her belongings after she and her three children were evicted from their apartment Tuesday.

To stay open

Scouts defer sale of camp

The proposed sale of Boy Scout Camp Napowan was deferred Tuesday by the executive board of the Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts of America.

The camp will stay open for the 1976 camping season as previously planned, said scouting officials.

The possible sale of Camp Napowan drew more than 250 persons to a council meeting earlier this month, urging Scout officials not to sell the camp. Camp Napowan contains 313 acres near Wild Rose, Wis., and has been the subject of reevaluation and possible sale for the past 15 years. It was purchased by the Scouts in 1945.

Last July the council authorized that the property be placed on the market to seek an "offer to purchase." In January, an offer was received and was considered by the council, and later discussed at a meeting Feb. 5 with Scout officials from throughout the Northwest suburbs objecting to the sale.

NORTHWEST suburban council Pres. Roger H. Klich said Tuesday that although the board acted to delay the sale of Camp Napowan, it also approved the following recommendations:

- The long-range plan of the council be reviewed and updated by September.
- Both Camp Napowan and the Namekagon Scout Reservation, also in Wisconsin, be operated in 1976.
- Money received in the event of the sale of any properties be deposited in a trust fund for the specific acquisition and development of a camp facility in keeping with the long-range plan.
- The executive committee continue negotiations to sell Camp Napowan with the final decision to be brought before the executive board.

Klich said, "There is very little likelihood that Camp Napowan will be sold without a better alternative camping solution."

SLA drove Patty neurotic: psychiatrist

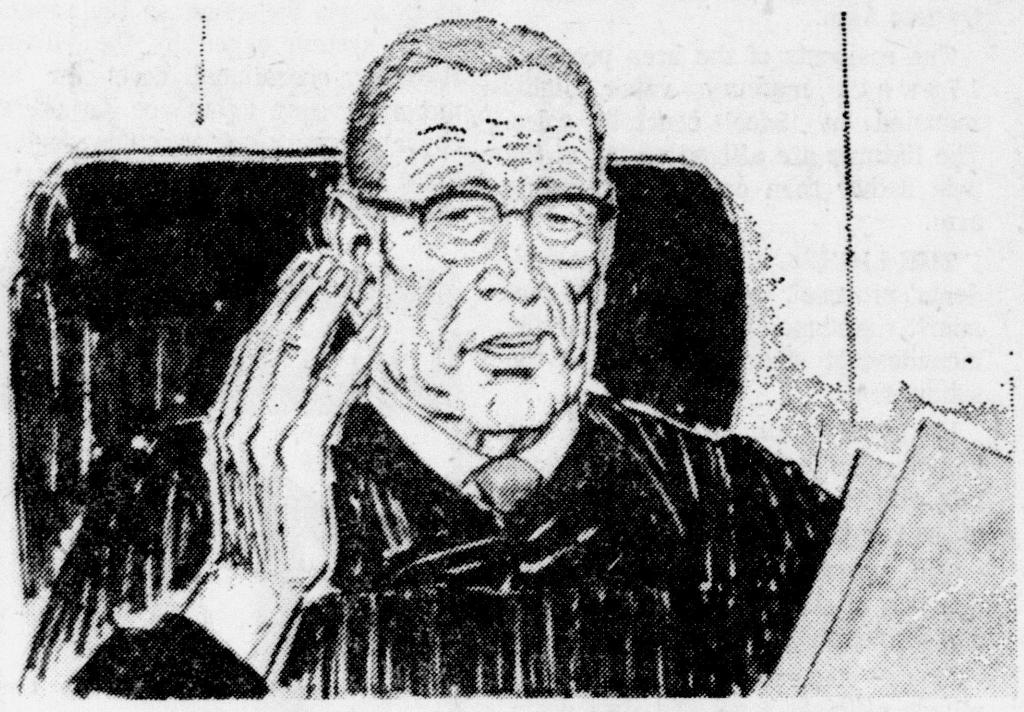
12 days after her arrest, she had given him virtually no information about her whereabouts or activities during the last year of her captivity.

She has claimed the Fifth Amendment guarantee against self incrimination on events of that period, but she also kept it secret from the doctors who talked with her.



U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter

The tiny defendant sat motionless at the defense counsel table as West told the jury of her symptoms and her "survivor syndrome." She blinked frequently, her eyes reddened, and she sipped from a cup of water.

The psychiatrist said she regressed into a childlike state of dependence on her captors and particularly on Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze.

West recalled the Los Angeles incident when she fired a machinegun at Mel's Sporting Goods store to rescue William and Emily Harris.

Her first words when the Harrises got in the van were, "Did I do it right?" West said.

"She was like a child performing for parents."

In his cross examination, Bancroft asked whether West had not shortly after her arrest and his examination said that she was sane and competent to stand trial and that later he had reversed himself and said she was not competent to stand trial.

The psychiatrist said his first statement had been a legal one and the second a medical finding after further tests.

"Do you know of any case where by virtue of brainwashing or coercive persuasion any one went out and committed acts of violence against their own kind?" Bancroft asked.

"Yes, tens of thousands of Chinese," West replied. "After being subjected to the techniques of Mao Tse-tung they went back and fought against their own people and even against their own families."

Bancroft had sought to have all of West's testimony stricken from the record on grounds that psychiatric findings were not admissible in this case because the bank robbery indictment does not go into intent.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter overruled the motion. When the trial ended for the day, Bancroft was still questioning West and was expected to continue for several hours Wednesday.

During the direct examination by defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey, West was asked what Miss Hearst's reaction had been when he first asked her about the bank robbery.

"After the usual tears and sulking, her first words were that it was 'like a dream' and she couldn't believe she had done it — it was as if everything had happened to a different person other than herself," he said.

She told him, he said, that, when Nancy Ling Perry opened fire and shot two customers at the bank, her first reaction was that her SLA captors were shooting at her.

West was asked about the occasion when Miss Hearst wet her pants as she was arrested and heard the words: "This is the FBI, freeze."

The psychiatrist said her reaction was very similar to that of a soldier who experiences his first artillery barrage — "shock, followed by overwhelming terror."

The psychiatrist said that in his extensive study of American prisoners of war held in Korea and China he had never found any significant attempts to escape by the captive officer pilots of the Air Force, Navy or Marines.

West said when DeFreeze told her she had a choice of going back to her old life or staying with the SLA she understood he was testing her.

"She did not have a decision between staying or leaving," he said. "She had a decision between living or dying."

West said he examined her again nine days ago. Earlier she had expressed fear about being put in a hospital and about being regarded as a mental case, he said. At their last meeting she told him her "greatest worry now is staying alive."

She takes the threats against her life and that of her parents very seriously, he said, but her fear is mixed with "some healthy anger" at those who threaten her.

Kissinger lashes Cuba intervention

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday warned Cuba the United States "will not tolerate" any intervention in the Western hemisphere.

Speaking at the end of his first mission to Latin America at a luncheon hosted by Costa Rican President Daniel Oduber, Kissinger lashes out at Cuba, without mentioning it by name by saying, "recent events have shown that foreign adventurism is not dead."

"Expeditionary forces may still be sent across the oceans to intervene in and impose their will upon, the domestic affairs of other countries," Kissinger said in a clear reference to Cuba's military intervention in Angola.

"The United States will not tolerate a challenge to the solemn treaty principle of nonintervention in this hemisphere," he said.

The luncheon followed a series of joint and separate meetings with foreign ministers from the Central American nations. The secretary was scheduled to hold a summit of Central American presidents but the meeting fell apart when half the presidents said they could not or would not attend.

Kissinger's talks with Juan Antonio Tack, former foreign minister of Panama, dealt mainly with the current U.S.-Panamanian Canal negotiations.

"My country is determined to continue these negotiations in good faith to our ultimate objective of a new relationship which respects the national interests of both the United States and Panama," Kissinger said.

Before returning to Washington, Kissinger was scheduled to make a brief stop in Guatemala to get a personal view of the damage caused by the earthquakes that have killed more than 22,000 persons.

Kissinger pledged U.S. assistance for the reconstruction of Guatemala and said that "today our hearts are pained by the terrible calamity which has struck our friends in Guatemala."

Nixon gives Chinese 'campaign trail' greeting

Crowds yell welcome and swarm Nixon

PEKING (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon stumped like a politician on the campaign trail in Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace Square Tuesday, chatting, laughing and shaking hands with crowds of curious Chinese.

Nixon strolled in the square where mass rallies used to be held to cheer party leader Mao Tse-tung and was immediately surrounded by crowds of Chinese shouting "welcome to China!" and grabbing at his hand.

Residents of the capital said it was the first time they could remember such an event.

Earlier Nixon quipped with his Chinese hosts about Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the 1969 Sino-Soviet border clash, a sore subject between the feuding Communist giants.

In the square he told the crowd to come visit the United States and that he would greet them.

He asked one man, holding a young boy in his arms, if he wanted to have more children. "Only one more," the man replied. "We must answer the call of our government to practice birth control."

"What do you want him to be when he grows up?" Nixon asked.

"Whatever our government decides," the father replied. "To answer the call of Chairman Mao."

Nixon stopped to talk with one man who had welcomed him in English and said, "I hope you will come to the United States some day. I will greet you then."

Then, moving his arms in a sweeping movement, he said: "You're all young. You all have time to visit the United States. I'm sure you will some day."

Treaties may override Concorde ban move

International treaties may override a New York state legislative effort to ban the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic transport, Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. said Tuesday. Coleman said New York must admit the SST if no paying passengers are aboard. And he expressed doubt that the state can legally pass and enforce a noise pollution law so strict it would keep the Concorde from landing at John F. Kennedy Airport. The New York legislature Monday passed and sent to Gov. Hugh Carey a bill which would direct the New York-New Jersey Port Authority to issue noise restrictions the Concorde could not possibly meet.

Crews for space shuttle tests announced

The space agency in Houston Tuesday announced the first two astronaut crews for space shuttle approach and landing tests in 1977. Astronauts Fred Haise Jr., who flew on the near-disastrous Apollo 13, and rookies Charles G. Fullerton, Joe H. Engle and Richard H. Truly comprise the two, two-man crews. Haise and Engle will be commanders and Fullerton and Truly are designated pilots. The space shuttle is a reusable craft which will be launched like a rocket and land like an airplane. The approach and landing tests will only use the second stage of the shuttle, called the orbiter.

Agents raid Lockheed's Tokyo office

Hundreds of government agents Tuesday raided Lockheed Aircraft International's Tokyo office and 27 private homes and businesses and seized tons of papers in connection with the Lockheed payoff scandal. Some 380 officials of Tokyo Metropolitan Police, the Tokyo District Public Prosecutor's office and the Tokyo Tax Administration bureau carried out the joint search. Officials said they will examine the papers to investigate the flow of payoffs allegedly made by Lockheed in connection with the sale of its aircraft in Japan.

Brezhnev praises spirit of detente

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev Tuesday praised the spirit of detente with the United States but warned Communists would never "reconcile themselves with capitliast exploitation." Brezhnev, keynoting the 25th Community party congress, also deplored U.S. policies on the arms race and regarding Third World nations and said the Soviet Union had "not the slightest intention of attacking anyone."

He also called for four-power guarantees to secure the borders of Middle East nations and proposed a treaty banning force in solving world disputes.

Doctor views disease control

Hospital incurred infections probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 1.5 million patients spend an extra week in hospitals each year, at a cost of $1 billion, recovering from infections they incurred in the hospital, a top government health official told Congress Tuesday.

"Hospital acquired infections continue to be a major problem," said Dr. David Sencer, director of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The government has begun a major study to determine which hospital infection control procedures are most adequate, Sencer told a House appropriations subcommittee.

Testifying for President Ford's $143.3 billion disease control budget request for fiscal year 1977 — down from an estimated $153.5 million this year — Sencer also said:

- Venereal disease continues to increase "at unacceptable high levels," particularly in California and Florida; gonnorrhea still is the most frequently reported infectious disease in the country; VD rates are rising among men and declining among women.
- Fewer than two-thirds of the nation's preschool children have adequate immunization protection against polio, measles and German measles or rubella.
- Scientists are considering a vaccine against mosquito-borne encephalitis, which reached an all-time high 2,000 cases in the United States last year, with 100 deaths reported. Sencer testified he sees little hope for developing such a vaccine.
- Disease detectives are investigating a cluster of birth defects among infants in the Charleston, W.Va., area. He did not specify the defect or provide other details.

Sencer said influenza scientists "are concerned" about the possibility of a worldwide epidemic caused by a virus similar to one that claimed 20 million lives in the 1918-19 pandemic.

"Do you feel the action being taken now is adequate to protect the country?" asked Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

"Yes sir, this is not only my position but that of the National Institutes of Health and the (Food and Drug Administration's) bureau of biologics," replied Sencer.

Vaccine makers were given a tentative go-ahead by government health agencies last Friday to develop a vaccine against the suspect strain.

Sencer said scientists should know within two or three weeks whether the suspected virus has potential for an pandemic.

Karen Quinlan's bruises go unexplained

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey's attorney general, his mind "not yet at rest," Tuesday closed his investigation into the last conscious days of comatose Karen Quinlan, whose parents want to end her life by turning off her respirator.

He left unanswered questions of possible foul play in the girl's 10-month-long existence as a "vegetable."

In a short, carefully worded statement, Atty. Gen. William F. Hyland said he had virtually reconstructed all of Karen's activities during her last three conscious days but he still could not explain how she received several bruises and "a bump" on her body.

He said he could find no evidence 21-year-old Karen, who has been in a coma since last April, was the victim of a criminal assault.

"The investigation has turned up no evidence of foul play leading to those bruises and the bump, nor any indication that they may have led to the coma," Hyland said.

"There is no witness known to us who can explain when and how the injury was received," he said.

"While my mind is not yet at rest on the issue of whether there was foul play involved in these injuries, we have to conclude for present purposes that further investigation would not be fruitful."

The Quinlan case drew nationwide attention last fall when Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked a Superior Court judge to allow them to halt use of a life-sustaining respirator so their daughter could "die with grace and dignity.

They lost the plea, but an appeal in the case is now before the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Hyland quietly began pursuing his investigation last October after he said he was disturbed about the lack of medical information in the "right to die" trial about the bruises.

House OKs cheap handgun ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee Tuesday for the first time approved a ban on the sale, manufacture and importation of cheap, easily concealable handguns such as "Saturday Night Specials."

The committee, working on legislation to tighten up federal gun control laws, voted 18 to 14 in favor of a provision aimed at cutting down on the quantity and availability of small, inexpensive handguns.

Up until now, the committee has repeatedly defeated proposals to ban handguns. The Rep. Martin Russo amendment was almost identical to one he had offered last week.

The amendment would ban the importation, manufacture and sale of any revolver with a frame of less than 5¾ inches or a barrel of less than 4 inches and any pistol with an overall length of less than 8½ inches.

Scarsdale subdivision to get 'test' street lights

Five streetlights will be installed in the Scarsdale subdivision to test residents's reactions to concrete pole-mounted mercury vapor lamps.

The installation, recommended by the Arlington Heights Village Board's community services committee, will take place as soon as poles and fixtures are available, said Trustee Robert Miller, committee chairman.

The streetlight style is one recommended by the Scarsdale Property Owners Assn.

The residents of the area proposed 175-watt mercury vapor lights mounted on 15-foot concrete poles. The fixtures are affixed on top of the pole rather than on an overhanging arm.

THE LIGHTS, according to the residents' proposal, would be set 220 feet apart, the same spacing used for the incandescent streetlights now in the subdivision.

Raymond Funk, president of the homeowners' group, said the light system also could be used in other parts of the village.

Still unresolved, however, is the question of state funding for the proposed streetlight system.

At the suggested 220-foot spacing, village officials have said they doubt the lights would meet the brightness requirements necessary for the use of state motor fuel tax funds.

Miller said he is uncertain how rigid the standards are for a residential area such as Scarsdale. He said the proposed plan will have to be submitted to the state for a ruling.

RESIDENTS FROM the area have volunteered to help get legislative support for the lighting system to get the motor fuel tax money.

Miller said the test should be completed within 120 days of installation. He said the results will be given to the village plan commission now considering a revised streetlight policy for the entire village.

The resident-proposed light system costs about the same as the sodium vapor system urged by the village. However, operational costs for the mercury vapor lights are higher because mercury vapor bulbs require more electricity to equal the brightness of sodium vapor lights.

Dist. 59 mulls residents' question:

'What is an alternative school?'

by PAM BIGFORD

There's a lot of talk in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 about developing an alternative school, but many district residents have one question: Just what is an alternative school?

Some residents told the board of education this week that many district parents were confused about what an alternative school would offer.

A questionnaire asking parents if they would send their children to an alternative school which stressed basic academic subjects and firm behavior standards was confusing, parents said.

Board members originally intended to make a final decision at their board meeting March 1 on whether an alternative school would be offered this fall, but instead agreed to consider a resolution to hold public hearings to provide the community with more information.

ASSOCIATE SUPT. Robert Brower said he is drawing up a resolution for board consideration which would schedule the public hearings for four nights beginning March 8 throughout the district. Brower said the board could meet March 12 to make the final decision on the school.

Brower said the public hearings would probably involve a formal presentation on what the school would offer and a question-and-answer period.

Brower said alternative schools have been created throughout the country, but most are in the liberal vein. Residents of Dist. 59, however, have expressed a need for a more conservative alternative school "of a competitive academic type," he said.

A broad description of the school that the board and administration have in mind is one which will "emphasize a teaching method which is large group, lecture-oriented and competitive," Brower said.

"IT IS MEANT to be an alternate to our current schools which rely upon a teaching method which is small-group oriented, individually paced and utilizes carefully controlled competitive pressures," Brower said.

Suggestions in the profile are:

- Emphasis would be placed on reading, grammar, spelling, handwriting, composition, foreign language, math, history, geography and science.
- Art, music and physical education would be considered secondary subjects taught only when time permits. Industrial arts and home economics would not be taught.
- The school will eventually be offeed to students in grades 1 to 8.
- Adult standards of behavior will be required, and dress codes will be maintained. There will be punishments for infraction of rules.

A CONTROVERSIAL point at the meeting was whether the school should be offered at one centrally-located school or at as many schools as possible.

Brower said one factor in favor of a central location is money. He estimated that it would cost the district about $10,000 to establish the school in one location, but more locations would require more resources, primarily secretarial.

Brower said the school would be open to all students whose parents and teachers thought they could function better in a more directed school.

Bleak years predicted for Dist. 59 finances

Financial projections for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 for the next several years continue to look bleak, according to figures presented to the board Tuesday night.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services, presented figures Tuesday showing a slowdown in the district's assessed valuation, a steady drop in state aid funding to the district and a continued increase in expenses — all factors that will push the district into spending more money than it will receive in revenue.

The equalized assessed valuation in the district jumped from about $377 million in the 1972-73 school year to about $523 million in 1975-76, a 38 per cent increase. Projection for the 1976-77 school year show an assessed valuation of about $537 million increasing to about $590 million by 1979-80, only a 13 per cent jump.

AT THE SAME time, Perry's figures show state aid to the district peaked in 1973-74, with $3.43 million coming in under the then new state aid formula. Projections show that by the 1978-79 school year the district will only receive $991,308 or about $48 a student.

"State aid is dropping to such a point (for Dist. 59) that no matter what the state does they can't hurt us," Perry said.

Because of the state aid drop the district will have to depend on local money raised through property taxes. The district received a 25 cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase last fall and that money will begin coming in to the district during the 1976-77 school year.

Even with the tax increase, revenue will not meet projected expenses, Perry said.

WITH A 6 per cent increase per year in expenses, brought about by increases in salaries and inflation, expenses will exceed revenue by about $3 million by the 1978-79 school year, the projections show.

"The task before the board is to close that gap as much as possible," Perry said.

Board Pres. Judy Zanca said the district will have to reduce expenditures "this year, next year and each and every year."

The Dist. 59 board is in the midst of studying what effect a balanced budget will have on the current educational program. Perry's report was one of a series of projections board members have requested to determine ways of increasing revenue and cutting expenses.

Funding drain may sink drug unit

The Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an undercover drug enforcement agency faces financial uncertainty, and its director, John Hinchy, says he does not know how much longer it will function.

Hinchy said MEG "couldn't go it" for the full 1976-77 fiscal year on the $175,000 in federal money alloted recently by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. He said he had asked for $350,000 for the year from July 1 to June 30 — about $150,000 less than the agency received the last fiscal year.

John Fahnestock, an ILEC police specialist, said the drug unit should have money to function through Dec. 31, but "beyond Dec. 31, any extra is highly unlikely."

Hinchy questioned ILEC priorities, saying they needed reevalutation.

Fahnestock said the amount of money channeled into the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration system has been cut substantially and there had been many cutbacks, including elimination of programs.

"THAT'S EXACTLY what we're going to do — collapse — unless something drastic happens," Hinchy said.

The funding would not affect manpower. There are 25 Cook County Sheriff's policemen in the agency, along with 20 policemen from the participating suburban communities, including many Northwest suburban towns.

The cuts would affect office and auto leasing, along with "buy" money, office staff and monthly bills. "Money is the name of the narcotics game," Hinchy said. "If we don't have the money to make the buys, we can't arrest anyone."

Although only 10 per cent of the budget goes for buy money, telephone bills run as high as $25,000 a year for the agency, Hinchy said. "We cut costs considerably from last year," he said, noting satellite offices had to be shut down.

HINCHY SAID he will consult with the council of police chiefs that governs the agency to see if money can be found to fund MEG. "Obviously, the county does not have the funds to do it," he said. "And each town is faced with this same predicament."

Since MEG's inception in Dec. 1, 1971, the unit has arrested 2,968 drug dealers, seized $9.5 million worth of drugs and is responsible for funneling information about $2.4 million of unreported dealers' income to the Internal Revenue Service, Hinchy said.

"The need for a MEG unit has increased out here," he said. "We used to find when we made a connection out here, it took us to Chicago for heroin. But now, we make a connection out here, and we don't go to Chicago hardly anymore.

"This will make the dealers very happy," Hinchy added.

Aldrich 'grins and bears it,' Calderwood remains mum

by JOE SWICKARD

"Grin and bear it. You can't argue with the democratic process," Jack Aldrich said with the appropriate facial expression.

Aldrich, the village policeman who retired with honors after more than 20 years on the force to become chief in Barrington Hills, had evolved in just two weeks to that "disgruntled former employe."

With his conscience prompting him, he caused a letter to be delivered to the village board. In it, he said he thought the police department under Chief L. W. Calderwood was mismanaged and was suffering from low morale.

HIS MOTIVATION, this honored yet disgruntled former police captain said, was his desire to get a management study of the department released 11 months after it was called for, and four months after its completion.

The ensuing ruckus swirled around the 72-year-old Calderwood, who maintained his "no comment" position through two hearings of the village board. He sat silently through both sessions, his arms crossed.

He watched closely as two of his former captains were called upon to comment on his command. There was an equal lack of reaction to either Aldrich or Irvin McDougall, who is now chief in Downstate Mendota.

There was no emotional giveaway in either attack or when McDougall said, "Our department was one of the best in the state."

He sat impassively as Robert Gerth, president of the local Fraternal Order of Police, read a statement of confidence in the chief and his administration.

CALDERWOOD HAD A front-row seat to watch Gene Deck say the non-FOP policemen had confidence and good morale, too.

Aldrich sat in the rear, occasionally making notes on his yellow legal pad. He had spoken and now he, too, was sitting quietly.

The audience, a great number of whom were policemen, and their families, took careful note of what was being said. Observers were reminded of their profession when a walkie-talkie crackled briefly with a police call.

Aldrich and Calderwood maintained their silence when a vote of confidence in the chief was called and passed unanimously. Neither moved as Village Pres. James T. Ryan said, "I just feel very proud as a resident" of the job Calderwood has done in 18 years of command in Arlington Heights.

As the meeting ended, the chief's expression changed.

Aldrich was going to have to grin and bear it, but the chief was smiling.

therefore am concerned that we have a good police department. That's all I ask," he said.

THE VILLAGE BOARD rejected a suggestion from Trustees Frank Palmatier and Madeline Schroeder, as well as former Trustee Russell Colvin, that an outside consultant be hired to study the police department.

"It's obvious the time has come to engage a competent professional from the outside to conduct a normal review of our police department," Colvin said. "It is obvious there is a cloud over the department."

Trustee August Bettman disagreed, saying "I don't want to spend the village's money on a consultant if it's just a personality clash of an ex-employe."

BEDRIDDEN WITH a broken ankle, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, announced Tuesday she is appointing a "surrogate" committee to represent her at various events. Mrs. Chapman said the group will include Illinois House Speaker Willian Redmond, D-Bensenville, State Representatives Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine; Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie and Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, and other Democratic officials in the area.

Young's attitude 'suicide': Nimrod

State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, called Tuesday for one of his opponents in the Republican primary race for the 10th Congressional District to withdraw.

Nimrod charged former Congressman Samuel H. Young revealed a "suicidal attitude" in a recent newspaper interview.

Young was quoted in a news story as saying, "I really have no burning desire to serve in Congress."

Young has told The Herald he stands by the quote but insists he is running a serious campaign for Congress.

"Nimrod's comments do not even warrant a reply," Young added.

Nimrod contended, "If this is how Sam (Young) feels about the office he is seeking, then he cannot put on the kind of vigorous campaign the Republican Party needs to defeat Abner Mikva. He has destroyed any ability he might have to win in November.

Young is generally seen as the current frontrunner in the three-man primary race, which includes Daniel Hales of Winnetka.

Young missed getting the Evanston Township Republican Organization's support by a slim margin on Saturday.

The group failed to endorse any candidate. A 60 per cent vote of the membership is needed to get the group's backing, and both Nimrod and Hales finished behind Young.

The Herald honored by press association

Paddock Publications has been cited for typographical excellence in the 37th annual competition sponsored by the Inland Daily Press Assn. and the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University.

The firm's Arlington Heights Herald placed second in typography for newspapers with circulation less than 25,000 printed by the letterpress method.

Accepting the award at Inland's annual convention in Williamsburg, Va., was Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president and publisher.

Illinois newspapers led the field with eight winners in the annual makeup and typography contest. Placing first in The Herald's category was the Kewanee, Ill., Star Courier.

Static Electricity

by Ed Landwehr

That sudden shock you get when you touch the knob of your television set after walking across the living room carpet is caused by static electricity. Your clothing and body pick up the charge from the carpet, and touching an object releases it. Now there are encouraging experiments going on at Columbia University that show this phenomenon can quicken the healing of bone fractures. In some cases it succeeded on fractures that otherwise wouldn't heal.

Sometimes we get calls at Landwehr's TV & Appliances about shocks. Customers think there's a short in their set. You can imagine how many shocks we get in the routine of servicing from day to day. We must have strong bones. At least now you know that this phenomenon might do some good. The way we see it

We support Meadows vote

Rolling Meadows voters finally will be able to decide for themselves what their elected officials have been arguing about for months — how many aldermen should represent the city and whether a strong city manager system of government should be formed.

The people of Rolling Meadows are the best ones to decide how they will be governed, and despite the political infighting between Mayor Roland J. Meyer and several aldermen, the controversy appears to be near resolution.

Meyer and the council fought over the specifics of the referendum with Meyer eventually emerging as the victor. He vetoed an aldermanic-sponsored referendum in favor of one of his own which proposes cutting the size of the council from 10 to five members. He filed petitions calling for a three-pronged referendum in which voters will decide:

- Whether a strong manager form of government should be established. The strong manager system gives the city manager the power to hire and fire his employes and generally strengthens the role of the manager in determining the day-to-day operation of city government.
- Whether aldermen should continue to be elected by wards. There currently are five wards with two aldermen elected from each district.
- Whether the number of aldermen should be reduced from 10 to five.

The court will decide the date of the referendum.

We believe there is a definite need for a strong municipal manager.

We also believe there simply is too much politics being played on all fronts in the city, and that Meyer — for the first time faced with an earnest challenge to his dominance — wants the size of the council reduced for the wrong reasons.

The people of Rolling Meadows must see through the guise and ultimately decide whether having an alderman living down the street is important to them. Meanwhile, the electorate, during the next few months, will be faced with wading through the rhetoric from Meyer and from the aldermen who obviously do not want their jobs weakened or eliminated.

What is encouraging is that a series of public hearings will be held, and in a public referendum the people finally will be able to say how they want things run in Rolling Meadows.

Vote 'yes' on library

If Rolling Meadows residents want to maintain their excellent library, they should vote "yes" on Saturday's tax rate referendum.

Like other institutions, the 12-year-old library is suffering from inflation and the cost squeeze. So, library officials are asking voters to increase taxes to what seems to us to be still a modest level.

Officials are seeking a hike of 14 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; that increase could eventually raise the present rate to 29 cents. However, those officials have promised to levy only 4 cents of that increase next year, or $2.80 per average property owner. When the full increase is used, it would still cost a property owner only $9.80 per year over the present rate.

Unless voters approve the increase, library hours and staff will probably have to be cut back — and for the thousands of Rolling Meadows residents who depend on the library for pleasure reading and research, this would be bad news.

This is a bare-bones increase, for the city council last month rejected an $880,000 expansion plan as part of the vote. Unless Rolling Meadows residents approve this reasonable request on Saturday, they'll be less able to take advantage of the books and worthwhile services provided by the library.

She's concerned by caucus' acts

I can fully understand Pam Bigford's concern in the Feb. 13 Education Today column about what happened at the Dist. 62 School Board Caucus meeting on Feb. 9, especially as it was her first. As chairman of the 62 Caucus I was also concerned.

I was concerned about several things. First of all, I was concerned that only five people, including the incumbent, Mr. Birchfield, showed an interest in running for the two openings on the Dist. 62 school board. I was concerned that of the 51 voting delegates of the caucus, nine did not have enough interest to attend the meeting or even send an alternate which they may do. I was concerned that not even one question was asked of the nominees by the delegates, as in past years, especially with the lack of information from the nominees. (By the way, every year 50 per cent or more of the delegates are new to the caucus). I was concerned that the delegates waited until after the vote was taken to say they did not have enough information concerning the nominees' views. I was concerned that even when they were given an opportunity to ask questions (twice) the delegates voted not to do so.

I am also concerned about what Pam Bigford's interpretation of "democracy at work" is! She claimed that "democracy was shoved aside at Dist. 62 Caucus meeting." I believe the meeting was as democratic as a meeting of this kind can be. The nominees were given the opportunity to speak about anything they wished, the delegates were asked a couple of times after each nominee spoke if they had any questions, the delegates were allowed to speak openly about their concern on the lack of information and twice had the opportunity to have the nominees return for questioning but voted against doing so, (11 delegates voted to have them return, not one-third, as Ms. Bigford stated), suggestions were asked for to improve communication between the member organizations, delegates and the caucus and also to help alleviate the lack of concern in finding good candidates for the school boards. As a result, a motion was passed to have a committee appointed to bring suggestions to the caucus' next meeting in October. I really do not know how much more democratic than this we could have been. If Ms. Bigford knows, I wish she would tell me.

P.S. It will be interesting to see how many concerned citizens vote in the school board election on April 10!

Coroner's views draw fire

We're appreciative of the stories in your newspapers concerning our exciting new family entertainment center, Marriott's Great America. The story written by Tim Moran on Jan. 28 was well done. Unfortunately, it contained one quote from a misguided public official for which a comment is in order.

Lake County Coroner Oscar Lind stated that he has a new employe in training, and that he expects a large case load increase because of deaths at Marriott's Great America. This is clearly the most asinine excuse for empire-building that I have ever seen.

The record at other comparable parks indicates that deaths simply don't occur, though obviously in any crowd the law of averages may single out an individual. But to imply that this park will cause people to keel over regularly is absurd and unfair. Mr. Lind should check his facts more thoroughly, and those who must approve his budgets should certainly require him to substantiate his requests.

I might also note that, contrary to the thoughts of Chief Deputy Corder of the Sheriff's office, we're certain that our park will create no noticeable increase in general crime in the community. We have letters from the police or sheriff's department in every community having a regional park. To the very last one, all state there has been no significant crime increase attributable to the theme park in their areas.

In general, we have found the state, county, and village officials to be both professional and responsible, and we're sure that this one bit of commentary by the coroner was more officious than official.

Her mission: save the wild horses

I have a problem.

My class is studying endangered species, and one is the wild horse. I really love horses, and I take horseback riding lessons. I love horses more than any other animal.

So I want to help save wild horses, so that's why I sent this letter. I might get a horse. And I'm planning on living on a farm.

Paramedics win applause again

The kindness shows in the faces of the men who save lives, the Arlington Heights paramedics. There are no adequate words to express appreciation to them for their efficient, knowledgeable and compassionate efforts. We are deeply grateful to Art Christenson, Bob Lockhart, Bill Dressel and Robert Dumay for the emergency care they gave Frank Hogan on Jan. 15, helping to save his life.

Backs restraint

Every day the news media, TV and radio programs harp on abortion control, birth control, energy control, minority and ethnic controls (i.e., blacks vs. Latinos vs. whites), ecology control, etc., but never do we read or hear one word relating to self-control. It seems to me, judging from the news I read and hear as well as the people I come in contact with from day to day, that what this poor world, especially the good old United States, needs most is kindness and more kindness — less selfishness and more consideration for others. The thing is that so many people are blunt, almost crude in their way; they shove and push and step on other's toes as well as getting on other people's nerves. An attitude of "I got mine how did you make out" is becoming more and more prevalent and the sad thing is that the temptation to make mean remarks, damage another's reputation, shove shopping carts into the sides of other's autos, damage another's property, is almost irresistible in such an emotional state.

Our anger and hatred today will make some lives darker — but chiefly our own life. Our tolerance and kindness each day may affect the outlook and conditions of persons we are hardly aware of, and certainly will affect our own condition incalculably for good. Isn't it time we all practiced self control and most certainly many of the social and other controls that plague us will disappear, thereby giving the courts more time to deliberate on and carry out man-made laws that are for the good of all Americans and not for just a few individuals.

Howlett and Walker exchange low blows

Mudslinging marks Democratic governor's race

by STEVE BROWN

A news analysis

Gov. Daniel Walker and Sec. of State Michael Howlett are not letting interest wane in their campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

In fact, the campaign seems to have become so heated that the pair has put aside, at least temporarily, what they had been calling main issues and picked up new ones.

A few weeks ago, Walker was shouting that his defeat to Howlett would mean an extension of Chicago political bossism throughout the state. And that was the main issue of the campaign.

Howlett hollered the "main issue" was Walker's reckless mismanagement of the state.

That was pretty clear, bossism versus mismanagement. But now after a few days have slipped by, it appears the main issues have changed.

"Walker to reveal 1972 campaign contributors," the headlines blared and a top aide to the governor said Walker will release the long-sought contributors' names "to prevent Daley and Howlett from obscuring a central issue in the campaign — Howlett's personal integrity and honesty in public office."

Howlett bobs, weaves and announces he is quitting his $15,000-a-year side job, because he does not wish to permit the campaign for governor to be diverted from the real issues. He says one of those real issues was Walker's practice of hunting for campaign contributions in the wallets of state contractors.

In the Walker camp, it appears bossism is out as an issue and Howlett's personal integrity is in.

At Howlett headquarters, Walker mismanagement has taken a back seat to Walker's fund-raising techniques.

It's funny how the "main issues" seem to change. Just as the poor guy on the block learns what the "main issues" are, the candidates change it.

The latest flip-flop can be viewed as the mudslinging phase of the campaign. Therefore, voters should not forget the early "main issues" because Daley bossism and Walker mismanagement will pop up later.

Apparently it is too hard for any candidate to stick to the same issues or, for that matter, even the same main issues for the entire campaign.

Hopefully, this phase of the campaign will run its course in a few more days and the candidates will return to the issues.

But then who knows, rolling around in the mud may prove to be such an amusing diversion Howlett and Walker will forget about government altogether. They may keep slinging the mud until the end of the ballot battle.

If that proves to be the case, maybe the ballot should be changed and the two candidates should be vying for election as oven tender at the mud pie factory instead of governor.

Passolt's problem — wrong image

even though we weren't involved," George said. "All you've got to do is have someone who's unhappy and they'll bring it up.

"It's very difficult to control your temper when you've been honest all your life and someone says, 'I think I'd get a different answer if I greased your palm.'

"I NEVER HAD anyone put it quite that way," George said. "But people will say they understand, that they've been reading the newspapers. All our employes are subject to that. It's too bad."

The village board which dismissed Passolt is heavy with members (5-of-7) from the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP). They wanted him gone by Feb. 1.

But then Wheeling could not locate a replacement. Passolt agreed to remain temporarily.

WHIP came into its strongest power after the Stavros scandal, although it had been around in earlier form as the Wheeling Independent Party.

It did not campaign for George Passolt's head on a butcher block during last spring's elections. All WHIP ever said was the village needed to leave behind improper management.

Fur months after his dismissal, George Passolt still chooses not to discuss the ouster. "I've told every paper the same thing," George said. "I'm not commenting on being asked to leave."

HIS LIFE IS quieting down now, or so it seems. Passolt's desk was not cluttered with the trappings of village government the afternoon we visited, except for a few letters.

Some correspondence had arrived from villages or counties where George Passolt seeks his next paycheck. That next job is not certain. It is a long process of writing and waiting.

Mostly, that desk was clean, orderly and awaiting its next village manager. There was a sense that it did not even belong to George Passolt any longer. A sense that he only keeps the chair warm.

The Stavros scandal might have taken place in any town. There would have been other men caught between the vises of justice, the vises of anger, allegation and reprisal.

GEORGE PASSOLT

It just worked out that the scandal occurred in Wheeling. And that a man named George Passolt, who claims to have taken great pride in his work, was village manager.

Had there been no federal investigation exposing Stavros, perhaps Passolt's job never would have fallen into jeopardy. Other problems might have been straightened out with much less fuss.

But that was not the case.

GEORGE PASSOLT said he will leave office with no regrets. "I've learned a lot. I think I've accomplished a lot," he stated.

His record, Passolt says, will speak for itself. He rattles off a new traffic court in Wheeling, expansion of the fire department staff to include fulltimers and improvement in flood control.

The plan commission recently completed updating its general land use map. "It's very essential when you're controlling the growth of a community to have a land usage plan, which our village did not," Passolt said. "Now we do; it's in existence."

It does not stop there. Passolt pointed to new controls on the zoning commission, tax levys which were lower in 1974 than in 1969 and plans to raise new fire department funds.

You do not get the impression that George Passolt agrees he has been a bad village manager.

George likes to think that his actions might have been partially responsible for Stavros and his gang falling under federal investigation.

"I really believe some of my actions might have made people go out of their way to do the things they wanted with me in here," Passolt said.

"That might have had some effect on them getting caught. I don't know for sure," he said. "I'd like to think so."

THE JOB WAS never easy for George Passolt. It won't be easy for the next man. George did not look at the work as a vendetta being run against him.

"Sure, I had some problems," he said. "I didn't see them from the standpoint of people trying to get rid of me."

And today, with his days in Wheeling government nearly completed, Passolt insists he never once considered running away.

"I don't operate that way. I'm a longtime resident of this community. I wanted to do my best," Passolt said.

"Besides, you see progress, too. As long as you can hold out hope for improvement, you want to stick it out," Passolt said. "You don't want to be here during just the bad times."

Four-year auto loans available; interest rates higher

by LEA TONKIN

The four-year auto loan, billed as a means for relieving the strain on consumers' monthly budgets, has a toehold in the Northwest suburbs.

A survey of 21 area banks shows only four will consider auto loans for terms longer than 36 months. Before a buyer signs on the dotted line for credit, a check of interest rates and the added cost of longer-term loans should be consideed, the lenders said. The tab for interest on a 48-month loan can amount to hundreds of dollars more than 36-month financing.

Buyer acceptance of 42 month and 48 month terms, newly offered by the First Arlington National Bank in Arlington Heights, "hasn't caught on like we thought it would," said Robert Lawler, executive vice president. The extended term offers consumers "a way of adjusting to the price of a car, to meet the payment," he said.

Jack Horowitz, a loan officer at the bank, said customers can compare rates to cut costs. "The sad thing is that they can save money on the car, then blow it on financing," he said.

"QUITE A FEW people" are using the 42 and 48 month financing terms offered through Ford Motor Credit Co., said John Rutkowski, credit manager at the Schmerler Ford dealership in Elk Grove Village. He declined to offer interest rate information. Preferred rates are given to buyers who have good credit standings, he said.

Rising new car costs prompt consumers to look for 48-month financing to cut monthly payments, said Dick Fowler of the United Airlines Employes Credit Union, Elk Grove Township. The credit union charges a 10.5 annual percentage rate for auto loans, regardless of the collateral. Fowler said he encourages auto buyers to compare loan terms. "Money is a commodity. You should shop as carefully for a new loan as a suit or dress," he said.

The Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heightis is "just starting to offer 42 month loans," said Dan Quinn, loan officer. The annual percentage rate for a three year loan is 9.76 per cent compared to the 9.72 per cent rate for a 42 month contract. The bank considers an applicant's credit record before it grants the auto loans. "On the 42 month applications we're a little more selective," Quinn said.

Hannah Harner, an employe of the AAEC Credit Union in Arlington Heights, said the four year loans are "disservice. If you finance a car for 48 months and it falls apart in two years, you're stuck for two more years," she said.

An increasing demand for 42 and 48 month car loans is reported by a General Motors Acceptence Corp. spokesman, Arlington Heights. "We don't encourage the longer term loan because you don't build up an equity until much later," he said.

AUTO BUYERS decide to seek 48 month financing when they can't afford an extra $10 to $20 a month for shorter term loans, said Joel Wiesneske, business manager at the Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth Sales, Inc., Des Plaines. He cautions that consumers will shell out additional money for interest payments on long term loans. "If it was my money, I wouldn't recommend it," he said.

A sampling of loan rates for new 1976 cars, based on Feb. 24 telephone inquiries, shows the following rates. The rates may vary according to credit standing, preference given to bank customers and other factors. The annual percentage rate and maximum loan period are listed. Several area banks were not included in the Herald list because spokesmen did not want to quote loan rates by telephone or because loan officers were busy.

- Bank of Elk Grove, 10.2 per cent, maximum 36 months.
- Bank of Palatine, 10.2 per cent, maximum 36 months.
- Bank of Rolling Meadows, 11.08 per cent, maximum 36 months. The rate for a 1975 new car is 12 per cent for 30 months.
- Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, 9.76 per cent up to 36 months, selective 42 month loans.
- Buffalo Grove National Bank, 10.2 per cent for customers, 11.08 per cent for noncustomers, maximum 36 months.
- Countryside Bank, Mount Prospect, 10.2 per cent for 36 months, some financing for 48 months at 10.11 per cent.
- Des Plaines National Bank, 10.2 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- First Arlington National Bank, Arlington Heights, 9.75 per cent for 36 months, 10.2 per cent for 42 months, and 10.54 for 48 months.
- First Bank and Trust Co., Palatine, has 9.31 per cent financing for a maximum 36 months.
- First National Bank of Des Plaines, 9.76 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- First National Bank of Mount Prospect, 10.2 per cent, up to 36 months. There are some exceptions to the percentage rate, the bank official said.
- Mount Prospect State Bank, 9.76 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- North Point State Bank, Arington Heights, 9.31 per cent for a maximum three years.
- Northwest Trust and Savings Bak, Arlington Heights, 9.75 per cent up to 36 months.
- Palwaukee Bank, Wheeling, 10.2 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- Plum Grove Bank, Rolling Meadows, 10.2 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- Schaumburg State Bank, 10.2 per cent for up to 36 months. The borrower must have a checking account at the bank.
- Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove, 10.6 per cent for 36 months, although some longer term loans may be granted.
- Suburban National Bank of Palatine, 11.08 per cent for a maximum 36 months.
- Suburban National Bank of Woodfield, Schaumburg, 11.08 per cent for a maximum 36 months.

Dow closes at 993.55

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rose to their highest level in three years Tuesday in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange in a rally sparked by Chrysler's strong fourth quarter showing.

The Dow Jones industrials, a 2.52 — point loser Monday, climbed 8.27 points to 993.55, the best finish since it closed at 996.76 on Feb. 13, 1973. It had been ahead nearly 11 points to around 996 before profit taking became a factor.

The last time the Dow closed over 1,000 was Jan. 26, 1973, when it finished at 1,003.54. Many analysts believe the blue-chip average of 30 industrial stocks will top that soon and then challenge its all-time high of 1,051.70 set Jen. 11, 1973 later in the year.

THE BROAD-BASED rally saw Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gain 0.42 to 102.03, the NYSE common stock index 0.23 to 54.62 and the average price of an NYSE common share 15 cents.

Advances topped declines, 961 to 580, among the 1,911 issues crossing the tape. The 370 unchanged issues showed there was some investor uncertainty.

Volume swelled to 34,380,000 shares from the 31,460,000 traded Monday. The NYSE high-speed transaction tape ran six minutes late at the outset.

Prices closed higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by seven cents. Volume totaled 6,360,000 shares, compared with 5,940,000 traded Monday.

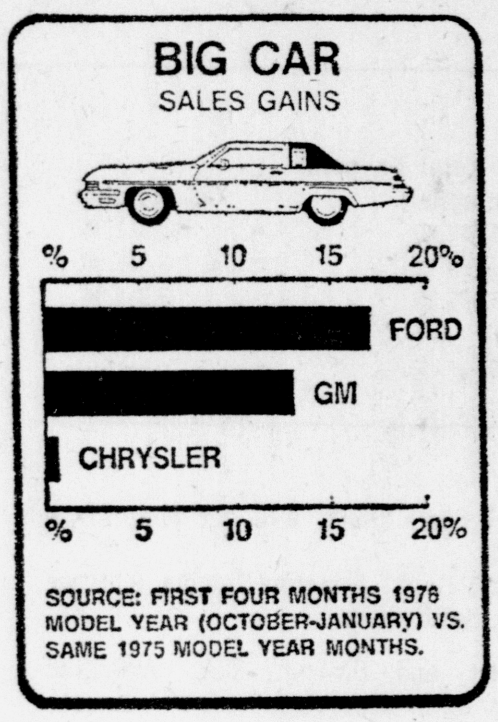
Chrysler tells $27.7 million loss



SOURCE: FIRST FOUR MONTHS 1976 MODEL YEAR (OCTOBER-JANUARY) VS. SAME 1975 MODEL YEAR MONTHS.

Chrysler Corp. Tuesday reported a record $27.7 million loss during the fourth quarter of 1975, but mid-February new car sales reported by the "Big Three" auto manufacturers increased 11 to 30 per cent from year-earlier levels.

The No. 3 auto firm, hardest hit by an industrywide two-year slump, said it lost a record $259.5 million in 1975 and $341 million in the past 18 months.

But top executives said stringent cost-cutting measures, including the sale of money-losing operations and massive layoffs, would return the 50-year-old auto firm to the black this year.

IN SHARP CONTRAST to Chrysler's losses, General Motors reported earlier this month that a fourth quarter profit of $618 million was the second highest for the period in history. Ford's $170 million profit ed $11.6 billion, compared with $10.9 billion in 1974.

While Chrysler sold fewer than 1 million cars last year, off 17 per cent from anemic 1974 levels, its sales so far this year are up 20 per cent. Along with its 1975 annual financial report, Chrysler said its mid-February new car sales jumped 14 per cent.

Chrysler would have been able to report a $35 million profit in the October-December quarter, but it took a $55 million loss on the sale of its nonautomotive Airtemp Divison operations to the Fedders Corp. In the final quarter of 1974, Chrysler lost a record $73.5 million.

CHRYSLER SALES in the quarter totaled $3.2 billion, a 28 per cent jump from last year but still $200 million below record 1973 levels. Its 1975 sales totaled $11.6 biolion, compred with $10.9 billion in 1974.

The $259.5 million loss compares with a $52 million deficit in 1974 and a $255 million profit in 1973 just as the Arab oil embargo was triggering the industry depression. In its best year, 1968, Chrysler turned in a $303 million profit.

Domestic automakers reported that mid-February crumbled under the weight of the recession.

It was the 14th consecutive 10-day period in which sales have topped a year-earlier period.

FOLLOWING THE pattern of the last month, gains were recorded in the mid-size and large car segments while small car sales continued to slump after last year's big spurts.

General Motors recorded the strongest gain — 30 per cent — and accounted for a higher-than-normal 55 per cent share of the market. Chrysler jumped 14 per cent and Ford was up 11 per cent. American Motors, hit hard by a slowdown in small car sales, topped last year's mid-February by just 14 cars.

Sales of the full-sized Ford were up 49 per cent while the big Chevrolet jumped 30 per cent. On the other hand, the subcompact Pinto slipped 41 per cent from a year ago and the small Chevrolet Vega was off 67 per cent.

Preventive medicine one reason

Top execs found in good health

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's executives are smoking less, drinking less and are generally healthier than their predecessors, says Dr. Donald C. Kent, medical director of Life Extension Institute.

Top executives are healthier than lower echelon executives and much healthier than the general run of workers, he said.

Life Extension Institute was founded in 1913 by William Howard Taft soon after he left the White House. Now owned by Dun & Bradstreet Inc., the institute provides for 1,300 corporate and professional clients regular physical checkup, medical screening and some therapeutic services.

Its goal, and that of several similar regional groups, is to whittle down some of the estimated $15 billion-a-year sick pay burden borne by industry.

THE INSTITUTE believes the Gross National Product could be boosted $10 billion a year if the average employe's sick leave could be cut by only one day from the present 5.8 days a year.

More than half the nation's businessmen will die from heart disease—many between 45 and 54 when they're most valuable to their companies. One out of every four men will get cancer, one out of 14 will be crippled by emphysema. One out of 10 already suffers some mental or emotional problem. Alcoholism will affect over 3 million men this year and cost industry $4 billion in lost time and poor work, according to institute figures.

When considering the better health of executives, the question of course is: Are they healthier because they're executives or are they executives because they're healthier?

Kent concedes, "You could answer it either way. Men and women in good condition with stamina move to the top. But the top executive does enjoy a higher standard of living, he is less inclined to bad diet and undue dissipation than underlings and, above all, his company has so much invested in him that it insists on regular checkups and adherence to preventive medicine." Most Americans, according to the institute, spend more on car upkeep than their personal health.

CUTTING DOWN on smoking, Kent said, is not as universal among today's executives — more than half still smoke — as the noticeable reduction in drinking. He said about 90 per cent of upper executives no longer have cocktails regularly at lunch.

A big factor in the comparative good health of top executives, he said, is that 75 per cent of them say they like their work and the demands it makes on them. In contrast with many ordinary folk, they have fewer anxieties, don't worry about their health, sleep well and get plenty of exercise. They agree they neither work nor live under conditions favorable to excessive tension.

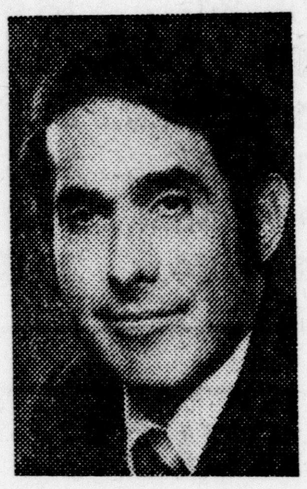
THE INSTITUTE studies confirm traditional views that some types of executives experience much more tension than others, and these tensions create health problems.

"We found that 22 per cent of advertising executives and technicians experienced constant tension and only 7 per cent of research workers," he said. "Lawyers, personnel and financial executives also experience constant tension and, contrary to what you might expect, sales promotion people experience hardly any more tension than research workers."

However, from the replies of executives who reported constant tension, the institute concluded tension seems not caused by age, occupation or job demands, but is clearly identified with the personality of the individual and stems from within the individual rather than from the outer forces of his living or working environment.

Setting public straight

Businessmen not afraid to speak out: survey



Herbert Rozoff

Chicago area business leaders are aware of the need to speak out on public issues, said Herbert Rozoff, president of the Herbert H. Rozoff Associates, Inc., a public relations firm.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the Arlington Heights Kiwanis Club, Rozoff discussed the results of his firm's survey of area business leaders.

Given a choice of 12 alternative actions to counter public misunderstanding of business, the executives rated, "speaking out," in the top third of priorities for 78 per cent of the responses.

The executives' second choice was "taking the lead in introducing changes to business practices that are subject to valid criticism before consumer groups or government agencies force the issues."

The "America, love it or leave it" attitude was shown in only 5 per cent of the responses, Rozoff said. Attempting to discredit as unAmerican the individuals who oppose the free enterprise system also was low in the ratings.

"THERE IS no question that there still are a very few chief executives lurking around with 19th century mentalities," he said. "But the fact that these two choices were ranked in the top one-third of alternatives only 5 and 7 percent of the time, respectively, would seem to indicate that such views are quite unpopular with today's chief executive."

The survey response shows that business executives realize they must take the initiative to bring about change in public attitudes, Roszoff said. The creation of consumer education programs, lobbies to require public education on the free enterprise system and support of public office holders who understand the system rated high in the survey results.

A new era in home climate control begins

About forty-five years ago, scientists began developing a revolutionary heating device that uses the heat of the earth's atmosphere. They called it a heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of fuel oil and gas.

How the heat pump works.
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. Using electricity to run the device, it extracts heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat. And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity—like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. The heat pump produces more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system.

It's ready.
It's ideal for new homes because it won't be obsolete in ten years. It's not dependent on the fossil fuels that may not be available in the future. To the homeowner, that means significant long-term savings on heating costs.

The heat pump is a big step in the conservation of scarce fuels. And here in northern Illinois, the electricity you would use to capture the heat comes mainly from coal and nuclear energy, rather than scarce oil and gas.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer (Westinghouse Distrs.), (312) 374-4411, or General Electric Co., (312) 496-6356. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to our marketing engineer.

A BIG HUG for Aunt Ok Ja from Sonya Jo, 2, as uncles, from left, Tag Kyu, Hyung Kyu and Richard U. wait their turn. The Jo brothers and Hyung's wife are four of the Korean immigrants who entered the U.S. in 1975. Sonya's father, Hong Kyu Jo, an American citizen, has helped each of them adapt to his new life, so different from that in the town of Ulsan, South Korea.

More Asians among newcomers

by ELEANOR RIVES
(Third of four parts)

Of all immigrants who came to the United States during the first half of the 20th century, only four per cent came from Asian countries. Just a decade ago, seven per cent came from Asia.

In 1974, a full one-third of all immigrants to this country were Asians.

"In 1965, the Philippines didn't even make 15th in the list of countries sending the highest number of immigrants," said John P. Wentling, deputy district director of the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "In 1974, it was second only to Mexico."

Korea was third with 28,028 of its people entering the United States for permanent residence.

HONG KYU JO of Des Plaines made his contribution to the Korean total for 1975. He brought all three of his brothers here, under the "Fifth Preference" (brothers and sisters of a U. S. citizen) of the Eastern Hemisphere numerical limitation.

But let's backtrack to his own admission to this country 10 years ago.

Hong Kyu Jo began learning English in Korea in seventh grade. His first American friends were Pen Pal correspondents. When he was a college student, he decided to continue his education in America, so he entered the U. S. as a student.

After attaining his bachelor's degree at Washington State University, he decided to stay permanently. He earned his master's degree at Illinois Institute of Technology and now works as a chemical engineer for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

HONG BECAME A citizen. He married a Korean girl who was here as an exchange nurse, and who recently completed training in anesthesiology. They have a 2-year-old daughter, Sonya, and, maternal grandmother included, all live happily in their suburban home where the vibrant gold carpeting has never been sullied by the soles of shoes. Shoes stay at the door.

Hong spends a good deal of his time helping newcomers from Korea get adjusted to life in the U. S. His brother, Hyung Kyu Jo, with his wife, Ok Ja Jo, arrived early in 1975. Tag Kyu Jo arrived five months ago, and Richard U. Jo, the youngest ("He has an American name," they giggled), has been here two months.

Hong also helps another Korean family, unrelated, simply because they are new to this land.

WHAT ARE their problems?

First, language. Laubach English classes at the Des Plaines Public Library have helped. Tag also takes English for New Americans at Maine West High School two nights a week. Richard, who has adapted in record time, attends Forest View High School, where, aside from mathematics, most of his time is spent studying English. He has made many friends.

Another problem was finding a place to live. The newcomers now share an older type condominium unit in Des Plaines.

Finding a job was no easy task. But with brother Hong along on the interview, employers found it hard to say no. "Koreans are capable people, eager to work," he said. "Even without speaking the language, they catch on to routine work very easily. I convince the employer that he should give them a chance. All are reluctant to give them jobs — but I strongly push them."

TAG IS NOW an electroplater, Hyung makes transformer coils, and his wife works nights wiring and soldering. "She is the best worker there," says Hong. "Language is not everything. Ability is important."

Transportation is still another baffling problem for newcomers. There is very little local bus service in the suburbs; it is a necessity to learn to drive. And the "Rules of the Road" are not written in Korean ("only in California," says Hong).

So one by one, Hong patiently prepares his relatives for their driving test, and until they get licenses, he chauffeurs them to and from work.

"They settled in this area because I live here," said Hong. "I orient them, I help them get started. Once they are on their own, they can move any place they like. For now, they just stay near me."

MEMBERS OF another Asian family in Des Plaines had no relative waiting to facilitate their absorption into American life. Yet their anxiety to get here was intense, for they were eight of the 130,000 Vietnamese refugees evacuated last spring.

"We were willing to accept anything America had to offer," said Huyen Vu, patriarch of the family, whose smooth skin and proud carriage belie his almost 60 years. "We would have walked here if necessary."

The Vus — father, mother, three grown sons, one with his wife and their two boys, age 6 and 8 — had much trouble getting out of Vietnam. The family originally lived in Hanoi, but after the Geneva Treaty moved to

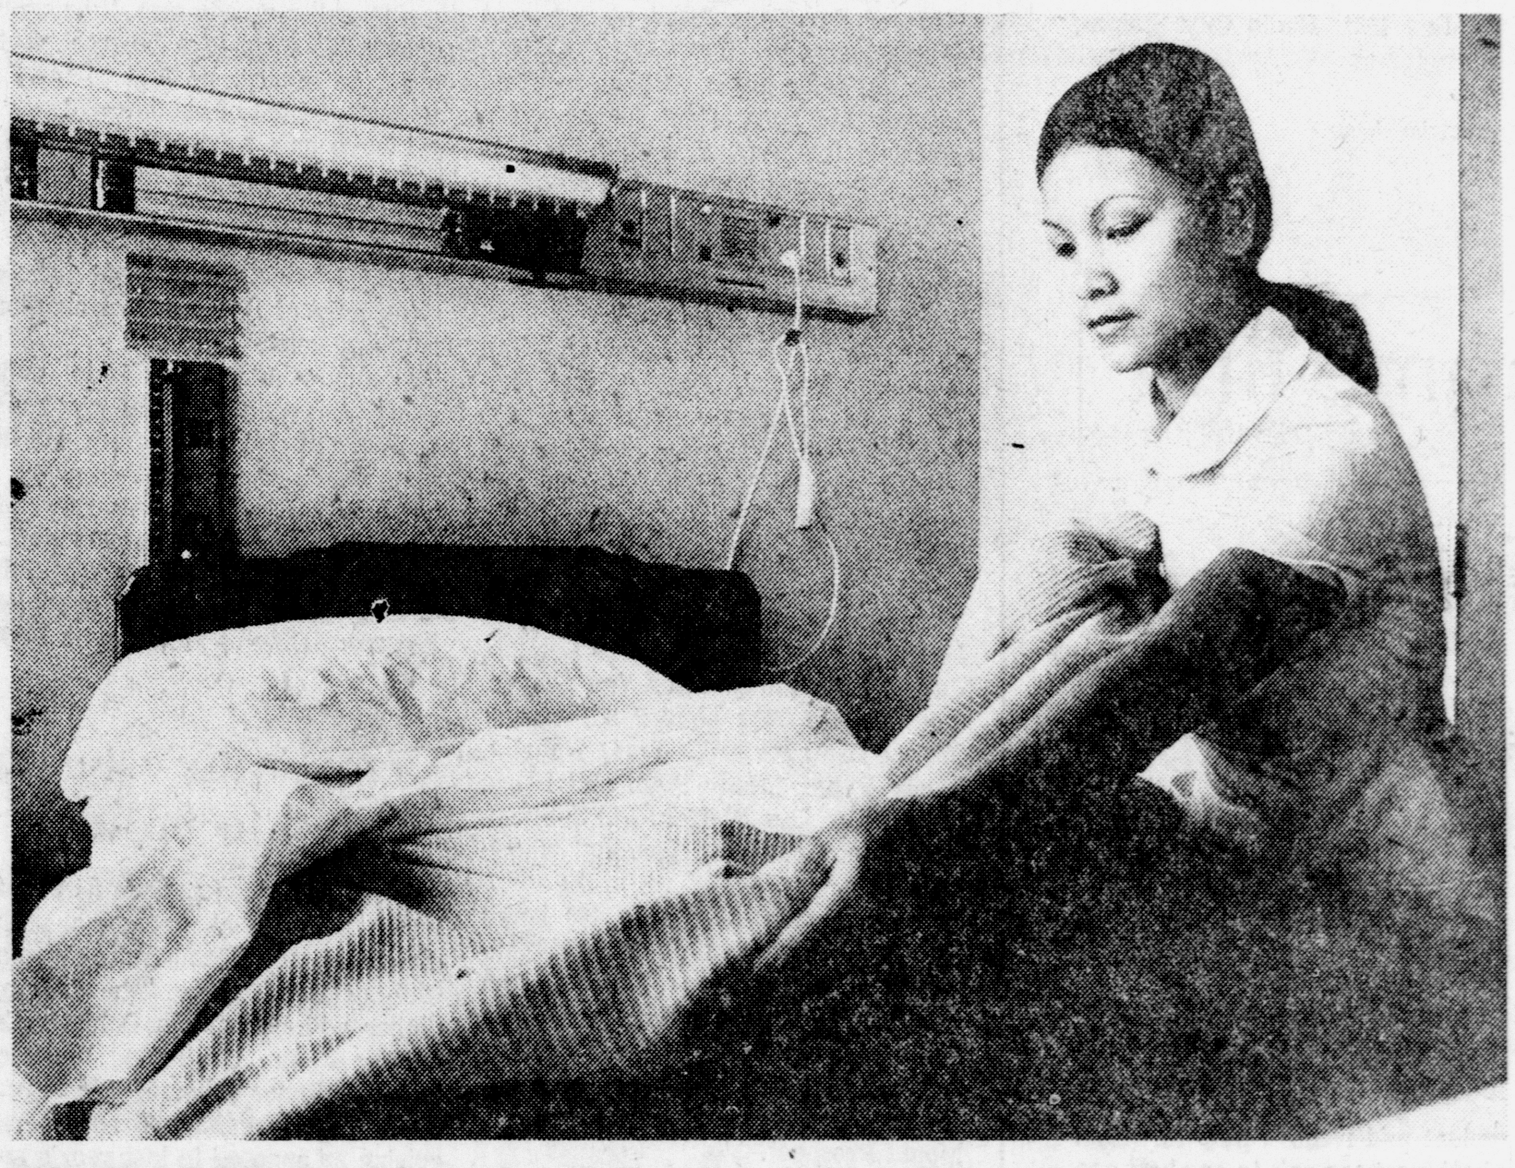
Destination U.S.A.



ONE OF 130,000 Vietnamese refugees, Khue Vu, mother of two boys, landed a job in the housekeeping department of Holy Family Hospital. Khue learned basic English in Laubach Literacy classes at the Des Plaines Library and recently passed grade school tests in English, mathematics and the Constitution. She plans to enter beauty culture school soon.

Why and who are minors?

Q. Why are those under legal age referred to as "minors"? Where did the word come from and why, if there is a reason? Why do we always have to be in a kind of "protective custody?" — Seventeen.

A. I take it, Seventeen, that the word offends you. If "minor" is offensive, how do you feel about a 17-year-old being referred to as an "infant" in legal documents and statutes?

Both terms were used in the English common law where they had their beginning about 150 years ago and are still used in this country. (U.S. follows common law, statutes and judicial decisions.)

The general dictionary meaning of the word "minor" is "lesser, as in size, extent or importance, or being the lesser of two."

A person has only to study what has happened to those with under-age status through the years to determine how well the definition fits.

BUT THE REASONING behind the use of the term, while amusing, contains a great deal of truth. It was said that when a child enters the world, he is immediately subject to "imbecility and inexperience" and for that reason the legislature must protect him by providing "disabilities" as well as "privileges" for a given period of time.

The legislative body may have gone a little overboard in insulting the public with its appraisal, but it certainly was warranted when you stop to think of the plight of children through the ages.

In England, young children worked in factories and mines under hazardous and appalling conditions.

AT ONE TIME, they were hired to crawl through mining tunnels to dig for coal. Since the passages were small, tiny children, often under 10, were subjected to the rigors of the occupation to say nothing of the dreadful conditions. Some of them never saw the light of day, having to work from sun-up to sunset, and were plagued with weak eyes and bodies wracked with disease.

In this country, too, children were unprotected by the law in many areas, particularly in the labor market. Exploitation was the rule rather than the exception. Here again, children under 10 were permitted to work in factories for as many as 12 hours with no effective regulations to protect them.

Before compulsory education laws were passed, millions of children 9 and under worked on farms and did not attend schools.

AS LATE AS World War II, again millions of children between the ages of 14-17 were working in factories, many under conditions that were less than ideal.

It wasn't until 1950 that Federal regulations were passed specifying the minimum age of 16 for certain types of work.

Each state, by the way, has the right to determine the status of persons within its confines, and thus the legal age may differ.

Legislatures throughout the country are aware that changes must be made regarding the age of majority, since when, for instance, they pass one law

Tricks to perform when the party's a bore

Speaking of...

by Kay Marsh

How do you tell a person's age?

Simple. Have him (or her) write down the number of the month he was born in (1 for January, 2 for February, etc.). Then ask him to multiply that number by 2, add 5, then multiply by 50, then add his age. He now subtracts 365 from that total and afterwards adds 115.

When you see the answer, the two figures to the left will be the birthday month. The two figures to the right will be the person's age. Thus if the answer is 1239 you know the person was born in December and is 39 years old.

PERSONS 39, 99 or 9 enjoy a bit of parlor trickery. And this old tell-your-age trick is included in a book that appeals to gradesters everywhere: Bell's "Magic Book," "full of fun and surprises . . . a bag full of tricks for everyone."

While the emphasis is primarily on magic, there are also simple tricks in it, plus some horribly corny jokes to tell when a trick doesn't work. And that, alas, can happen to us all.

A book I like even better is "Sneaky Feats" by Tom Ferrell and Lee Eisenberg.

As the authors ask somewhat rhetorically, "When the party's a bore, when no one's paying attention to you, when friends no longer call, what do you do?"

Their suggestion is that you "add a bit of elan to your otherwise wilted personality" with a trick from this book. Subtitled "The art of showing off and 53 ways to do it," "Sneaky Feats" contains an amazing collection of attention grabbers, ranging from simple stunts to complicated tricks.

THIS BOOK, I might add, is the current favorite of our 10-year-old. He has practically memorized it, and he and his fellow Webelos have tried most of the 53 stunts.

Some of the tricks, unfortunately, take a bit of practice — such as rolling a coin across your knuckles. Others I can't manage at all. But some of the grabbers are simple enough for all of us.

Part one is called "Playing With Your Food" and describes tricks you can manage at or near the table.

A real grabber here is the "all-wet, insulting tip," which consists of a nickle tip left underneath an inverted glass of water. Yes, it really works! But try it on the kitchen counter so you can scoop water and all into the sink when you're ready to retrieve your wet nickel.

PART TWO, entitled "High, Wide and Handy," provides suggestions for everyone with hands, while "Arts and Crafty" features simple items you can make. The final section, "So You Want to Be a Stuntman," provides an assortment of feats.

Unlike most puzzle and stunt books, this volume cuts across all lines. There are tricks involving cards and coins, but the book isn't limited to these standard favorites. Others require bottles, calculators and other varied props.

Some of the items aren't really stunts per se. But it's nice to have easy instructions on how to eat with chopsticks, whistle with two fingers, whistle through grass, blow smoke rings or play the Jew's harp.

OTHER TRICKS are a bit more dramatic — such as growing a carrot upside down; stepping through a small piece of paper; or crushing a beer can with your bare hand.

But then it doesn't really matter what book you use or which trick you prefer. The important thing is to master a simple parlor trick or two for moments of need. You may not exactly be the life of the party, but as Ferrell and Eisenberg summarize it, "They will come in handy the next time a party reaches the boring stage, i.e. when nobody is listening to what you are saying."

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Elephantiasis rare in this country

I have a problem for you to solve. What is elephantiasis and where does it originate? Is there any cure for it or any specialists? What type of doctor would I have to see for results? I need help badly.

You have come up with a rare one in this country. The term elephantiasis refers to swelling and enlargement of the legs to resemble the legs of an elephant. Classically, the condition is caused by an infestation with a thread-like worm. The disease is also called filariasis. The tiny adult worm is from 2 to 4 inches long and tends to invade and block the lymphatics. The inguinal region around the hip and inner aspect of the thigh are commonly involved.

The worms cause inflammation and blockage of the lymphatic system. The blocked lymphatic channels lead to the marked swelling. In men, the lymphatics to the scrotum are often involved. The blockage causes progressive and enormous swelling of the scrotum. In fact, the scrotum may be so large that it hangs below the knees and is equally large in all diameters. Its size may be so huge that the man may have trouble with normal physical activity.

This disease is seen primarily in Africa, tropical coastal areas of Asia and in the northern countries of South America. The disease is spread by mosquitos, and man is the only known intermediate host.

At night the young smaller worms are in the blood stream. A mosquito bites the infected person and draws in the filariae and they remain in the mouth for a couple of weeks. When the mosquito bites the next victim it inoculates him with the microworm.

THE LYMPHATICS become inflamed from the invasion and the process begins. Initially the limb involved may be shiny and swollen, but eventually the skin becomes scaly and cracked and the skin is thickened.

The worms can be killed by various medicines and the enlarged scrotum can be surgically removed. Incidentally, this can be done without damaging the testicles. Similar swollen enlarged tissues can be removed from the legs or even the breast when it is involved. There are medicines for prevention of infestation available to those traveling to areas where the disease is common.

The term elephantiasis has also been applied to any type of swelling that causes marked enlargements similar to those I have mentioned. I suspect that must be the situation in your case.

What kind of doctor should you see? A good place to start would be with hour family doctor. He can refer you to a specialist in internal medicine if you need that if he is not a specialist in that area himself. If you need surgery he can also arrange that.

Eggplant dish contains butter cracker crumbs

Dear Dorothy: Some time ago I tasted an eggplant casserole that had crumbs in it — almost like dressing. Have looked in many cookbooks but can't find one that sounds like this dish. Would you have one like it? — Mrs. Erwin Smutz

One served by the Old Stone Inn at Simpsonville, Ky., is a creation which uses butter cracker crumbs. It might be just what you're looking for.

Slice off one side of a large eggplant and remove pulp to within one-half inch of the skin. Add one-half teaspoon salt to one-half cup water and let come to a boil; then add the eggplant pulp. Cook until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain thoroughly.

Saute one-quarter cup chopped onion in one tablespoon butter or margarine until tender, but not brown. Add eggplant pulp, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one 10¼-ounce can of cream of mushroom soup, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and one cup very fine butter cracker crumbs, reserving two tablespoons of crumbs for the topping. Fill the eggplant shell with mixture and place in a baking dish.

Dot with one more tablespoon butter and sprinkle remaining crumbs over the top. Carefully pour one cup water into the bottom of the dish and bake in a 375-degree oven for one hour or until heated through. Serves four to six.

Dear Dorothy: I can't get the black out of my son's wool athletic socks. I'm embarrassed to take them out of the washer. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. G. H. C.

Soak them in the popular liquid laundry detergent or in one of the oxygen bleaches.

Tip to young mothers: If you've got a little one ready to crawl about and full of curiosity, cover all exposed electrical outlets with safety caps. They are easily removed when you need to use the outlet.

Saigon and lived there 20 years. Huyen was assistant general manager of a Saigon bank.

THEY WERE airlifted to the Philippines, then to Guam, then to Camp Chaffee, Ark., where they lived in tents and barracks. They came then to Park Ridge, where a sponsor had been procured, and the sponsoring family helped them find their present apartment in Des Plaines — small, immaculately clean, spartanly furnished.

"Of necessity, the Vietnamese people must solve the problem of adjusting very quickly," said Huyen. "Nobody wants to be a burden. We don't want to accept assistance, if at all possible. We want to support ourselves and live independently."

Huyen stays home with his wife, taking care of their two grandchildren, partly because she needs him to translate in the simple events of the day, even more so in an emergency. He stays home also because despite his banking experience, his mastery of English and French, his excellent French education with a French degree (majoring in philosophy), he has been unable to find even the most routine job as an inventory clerk, a biller, a filing clerk.

THE CHILDREN ARE in school, making friends and getting along fine. Their father, Khoi, works as an electronics technician. Their mother, Khue, without help, found work in the housekeeping department of Holy Family Hospital. Soon she will enter beauty culture school. Another brother is a chiropractor.

"The Vietnamese are a family-oriented people in the broadest sense," said Huyen. "Yet we desire friendship and understanding. Mostly we are left alone. In Vietnam when you move into a neighborhood, the first thing you do is meet all your neighbors."

"TWO YEARS FROM now, will the Vus obtain their permanent visa and be counted in the Asian immigrant total for 1977? Will they go on to apply for citizenship a few years later? Or do they long to return to their native country?

Huyen Vu pondered this question.

"If we could go back quietly, with no fear of revenge — for us or for our relatives still living there — then yes," he said. "That is the feeling of the older generation. My wife misses her other sons and grandchildren.

"Everything is good here," he added quickly. "The government and the American people are truly an assistance to the refugees. But Americans understand the Vietnamese only superficially.

"Primarily, the Vietnamese people are a people in search of freedom."

Next: The process of citizenship.

pertaining to the age at which one may marry, they might not have covered another area, such as the age at which a person may take public office.

CHANGES ARE being made, however, and in time, there will be uniformity.

An interesting incident that points up the incongruity occurred in Alaska in 1966. At that time, its legislative council discovered that the law permitted a person of 21 to legally qualify for a borough assemblyman, or city councilman. He could even make a will, sell property and, if he wished, donate his eyes to a hospital. But in order to marry, he had to have the written consent of his parents!

I have only touched on the subject of the need for protecting underage persons. Yet wouldn't you say that you have read enough to forget the use of a word you do not like, and think only of how much protection it is giving you?

Democratic women invited to potluck

Great American recipes will be featured Thursday at the annual potluck dinner of the Democratic Woman's Club of Des Plaines. The 6:30 p.m. dinner will be held in Oehler's Community Room. Continuing the Bicentennial dinner theme, this year's menu will highlight modern American cuisine as opposed to last year's menu of early American dishes.

The club's annual Candidate night will be held after the dinner. Among those who will attend are state representatives Ted Leverenz and Jack Williams; Tom Paul, Democratic candidate for state senator, 5th District; Bob Nebgen and Doris Wilson, candidates for delegate to the Democratic National Convention; Roland Burris, candidate for comptroller; and Thomas O'Brien, judicial candidate.

The public is invited to the forum which will begin at 8.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Greene

Barbara Anne Hempel — Stephen B. Greene

St. Paul United Church of Christ in Palatine was the setting for the 6 p.m. wedding Jan. 17 uniting Barbara Anne Hempel, daughter of the Rudolf Martin Hempels of Palatine, and Stephen Brian Greene, son of the Roy M. Greenes of Easton, Pa.

A candlelight dinner reception followed at The Barn of Barrington, after which the couple had a short honeymoon at Chateau Louise.

Barbara chose her sister, Mary Margaret Theile of Ewa Beach, Hawaii, as her only attendant. Michael Levine, New York City, was best man, with David Hempel, the bride's brother, and Stephen Klumpp, Rochester, N.Y., as ushers.

A '71 graduate of Fremd High School, the bride is completing her final semester at Illinois Institute of Technology's Institute of Design where her husband graduated. He now works for Communica International in LaGrange Park.

The couple are living in Oak Park.

Ellen Meierhoff — A. Erick Lindblad

Mr. and Mrs. A. Erick Lindblad

A houseboat moored in Newfound Harbor at Big Pine Key, Fla., is the first home of recent newlyweds, Ellen Louise and A. Erick Lindblad. Both are marine biologists at Newfound Harbor Marine Institute.

The groom, son of the Albin E. Lindblads of Arlington Heights, designed and built the 15x32-foot boat when he and Ellen decided this type of living could be intriguing. They admit, however, these arrangements may not be long-range.

Their Jan. 31 wedding took place in St. James Church of Highwood, Ill., where the bride's parents, the Fred Meierhoffs, reside. A buffet luncheon followed for 115 guests at Ft. Sheridan Officers Club.

Ellen chose an ivory georgette crepe wedding gown trimmed in Alencon lace, and instead of a veil she wore a wreath of daisies over her hair. Her bouquet was of miniature roses, daisies and baby's breath.

MARY KACEN of New York City was her maid of honor and JoAnne DeBarr, Richmond, Ky., sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Both girls wore coral velveteen jumpers with floral blouses and carried nosegays of peach carnations, daisies, roses and baby's breath.

Richard Pelland, Fox River Grove, was best man and Michael Dybitz, Glenview, and Michael Meierhoff, the bride's brother, ushered.

After a short honeymoon in Wisconsin the newlyweds returned to Big Pine Key.

Ellen is a graduate of Southern Illinois University and Erick of Millikin University. He graduated from Arlington High School in 1970.

Frances West — Harold L. Calvert

Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Calvert

Winter shades of red and green were worn by the bridal attendants at the Jan. 31 wedding of Frances West of Buffalo Grove and Harold L. Calvert of Streamwood. The evening rites were performed by candlelight in Kingswood United Methodist Church.

Frances is the daughter of the Lewis A. Wests, Buffalo Grove, and Harold the son of the Clarence Havenstrides of Moscow, Pa.

Frances' three attendants were gowned alike in green velvet skirts and blazers with scotch plaid blouses for contrast. Each carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. R. J. Garvin, Mount Prospect, was matron of honor, with Janet Whitaker, Hoffman Estates, and Mrs. William Lester, Burlington, Iowa, as bridesmaids.

HAROLD'S BROTHER, Rick Calvert, was his best man. Groomsmen were Robert Lockhart, Mount Prospect, and William Dressel, Arlington Heights.

The bride chose an antique ivory gown with lace accents and a full-length veil attached to a matching headpiece. She wore her great-grandmother's pin at the neckline of the dress and carried orchids, roses and ivy in her bouquet.

A reception followed for 150 guests at Brookside Clubhouse in Streamwood. The newlyweds then left for a week of skiing at Powderhorn Mountain, Michigan. They are living in Streamwood.

Frances works at Northwest Community Hospital, and Harold is with the Arlington Heights Fire Department.

Title time tonight for Mid-Suburban

North champion Buffalo Grove...

by ART MUGALIAN

The team of the future is here.

Buffalo Grove's basketball fortunes have followed a skyrocket's path to the stratosphere, stopping briefly just once or twice as coach Paul Grady checked to see if maybe the rise to the top was too swift.

It wasn't.

The Bison had the potential, everyone said, two years ago — and now that potential has been reached.

Coach Grady's Buffalo Grove cagers are the champions of the Mid-Suburban North with a 9-1 record, and tonight at 7:30 they host Conant for the MSL title in what is only the Bison's third full year of varsity basketball.

Leading Buffalo Grove into action tonight is Brian Allsmiller, the 6-foot-8 junior center with all the moves, all the shots, and a good chance for All-State recognition.

Allsmiller is the core of this squad and Grady knows it. But he stops short of calling his Bison a one-man team.

"Anyone who plays us like we're a one-man gang will pay the price," the Bison coach has said.

And he's right.

There is such a wealth of talent at Buffalo Grove that Grady hadn't made up his mind on a starting lineup as of Tuesday morning.

For much of the season Grady has started a pair of seniors, 6-6 forward Tim Stonerook and 5-11 defensive specialist George Bastable. Tonight Grady may go with 5-11 junior Scott Groot, a deadly outside threat, and 6-3 sophomore Mike Marshall.

The Bison could very well start four juniors and a sophomore in the title game!

Paul Grady

Sure to start, barring late unforeseen developments, are Allsmiller and juniors Fred Heesch and Mike Ledna.

"We'll do whatever it takes to win,'' said Grady, who experimented with several lineups and a number of defensive configurations in the Bison's final league game Friday at Wheeling.

"I was pleased with the way we played Friday," the coach noted. "Marshall started and he looked good. They all played well."

Buffalo Grove opened the Wheeling game in a man-to-man defense, then switched to a zone and eventually slapped on a press. Grady may show Conant a little of everything tonight, perhaps with the hope of bringing the Cougars out of their deliberate style of play.

Complete coverage by Herald staff

The Herald sports department plans complete coverage tonight of the Mid-Suburban title game at Buffalo Grove. Art Mugalian will write the game story, Keith Reinhard will cover the Buffalo Grove locker room, and Charlie Dickinson will work the Conant locker room. Mike Seeling of the photo department will take action pictures. Watch for this in depth coverage in Thursday's Herald.

"The tempo of this game will be important,'' the coach said. "Whoever controls the pace will go a long way toward winning it. We have to play with patience and wait for our shots.

"The key will be rebounding," Grady added. "Conant does such a good job of boarding out of that zone. We'll really have to go to those offensive boards."

The Bison have lost only twice since Christmas — including a 60-54 crossover loss to Schaumburg in January. Since the defeat at Schaumburg, the Bison have won seven of eight games, losing only to Hersey in a highly emotional game near the end of the season. Their record is 18-4.

"The loss to Schaumburg did the kids a lot of good," Grady said. "It shook them up."

The Bison coach won't have any trouble getting his kids ready for Conant, a school that boasts a 91-47 mark over the past six years. Conant was playing in the Supersectionals when Buffalo Grove High School was just a glimmer in some administrator's eye.

"We're going to have to play well to beat them," Grady said matter-of-factly. "Dick (Redlinger) does a super job of getting his kids to play the kind of game he wants.

"This (Pete) Scaffidi is a good shooter and I'm impressed with (Ron) Sulaski," continued Grady. "He's a complete player and an excellent defensive ballplayer."

So for Grady and his Bison, the future is now. Tomorrow has come — today.

...hosts South champion Conant

by ART MUGALIAN

Conant coach Dick Redlinger leaned back in his office chair and smiled.

What he was going to say might surprise some people, he knew. After all, he and his Cougar basketball team have already pulled off some mild shockers this season.

Not too many cage observers figured Conant would win the Mid-Suburban League South title, for instance.

It was a long road but the Cougars made it. And tonight at 7:30 they meet the North champion Bison at Buffalo Grove for the big trophy.

So Redlinger smiled and said: "This is going to be a close game, I think — a good game. Some people don't think so, but I do."

By now, very few people doubt Redlinger. Least of all his team, which finished with a 10-2 mark in the South (14-7 over-all), including six straight wins in the past month.

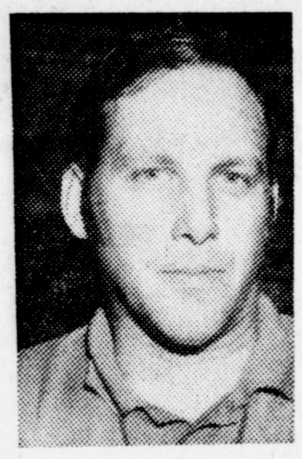
"These kids really battled," said the coach. "And we overcame a lot of injuries and illness."

The next test for the Cougars is Buffalo Grove, a team with a bigger front line, a better record (18-4), and 6-foot-8 Brian Allsmiller, one of the best players in the area with a 25-point scoring average.

"It's not a question of how we are going to defend Brian," said Redlinger, "but rather how he's going to score against our zone.

"If he can't get his points inside he'll go outside and if he hits from the outside we'll bring in (Ed) MacDonald and put (Ron) Sulaski and (Brian) O'Donnell on the wings of a 1-3-1 zone," the coach added. "We'll start in the 2-3."

The defensive realignment was what made the difference last week when Conant stopped Schaumburg 51-49 to take over first place in the division. Redlinger replaced 6-1½ forward Mike Frisch with MacDonald, a 6-4 sophomore who doesn't give up a height advantage. With the 6-5 Sulaski and 6-4 O'Donnell, the Cougars aren't quite as small as some people think.



Dick Redlinger

Redlinger's zone not only has to shut down Allsmiller, it must also take away two other Buffalo Grove scoring threats, 6-4 junior Fred Heesch and 6-6 senior Tim Stonerook.

When Schaumburg beat the Bison 60-54 in January, the Saxons shut off everybody but Allsmiller by playing a tight man-to-man defense.

Radio coverage

WWMM-FM (92.7) will broadcast live the championship basketball game tonight between Buffalo Grove and Conant high schools.

Bob Houghton of WWMM and Bob Frisk of The Herald will be at the microphones for the Mid-Suburban title clash with a pre-game show at 7:25 p.m.

"They put (John) Chmiel on Allsmiller and let him get his 30, then cut off the rest of the guys," said Redlinger. "We can't play man-to-man because we tend to make stupid fouls, and we can't afford to get in foul trouble."

Redlinger hopes to be able to get the big Bison star in foul trouble at the other end of the court.

"Allsmiller has fouled out of several games this year and we're going to take it to him inside," said the Cougar coach. "O'Donnell and Sulaski both have good inside moves so we're not going to shy away."

But Conant's success or failure may ride on the play of its two guards, Pete Scaffidi and junior Rob Totten. Both were instrumental all season for the Cougars, but especially in the last two victories when Scaffidi was uncanny from the perimeters and Totten stood out on defense.

"Totten has improved 500 per cent this year," said Redlinger. "He doesn't shoot much from outside, but as far as handling the ball and taking it to the basket I think he's the best guard in the league.

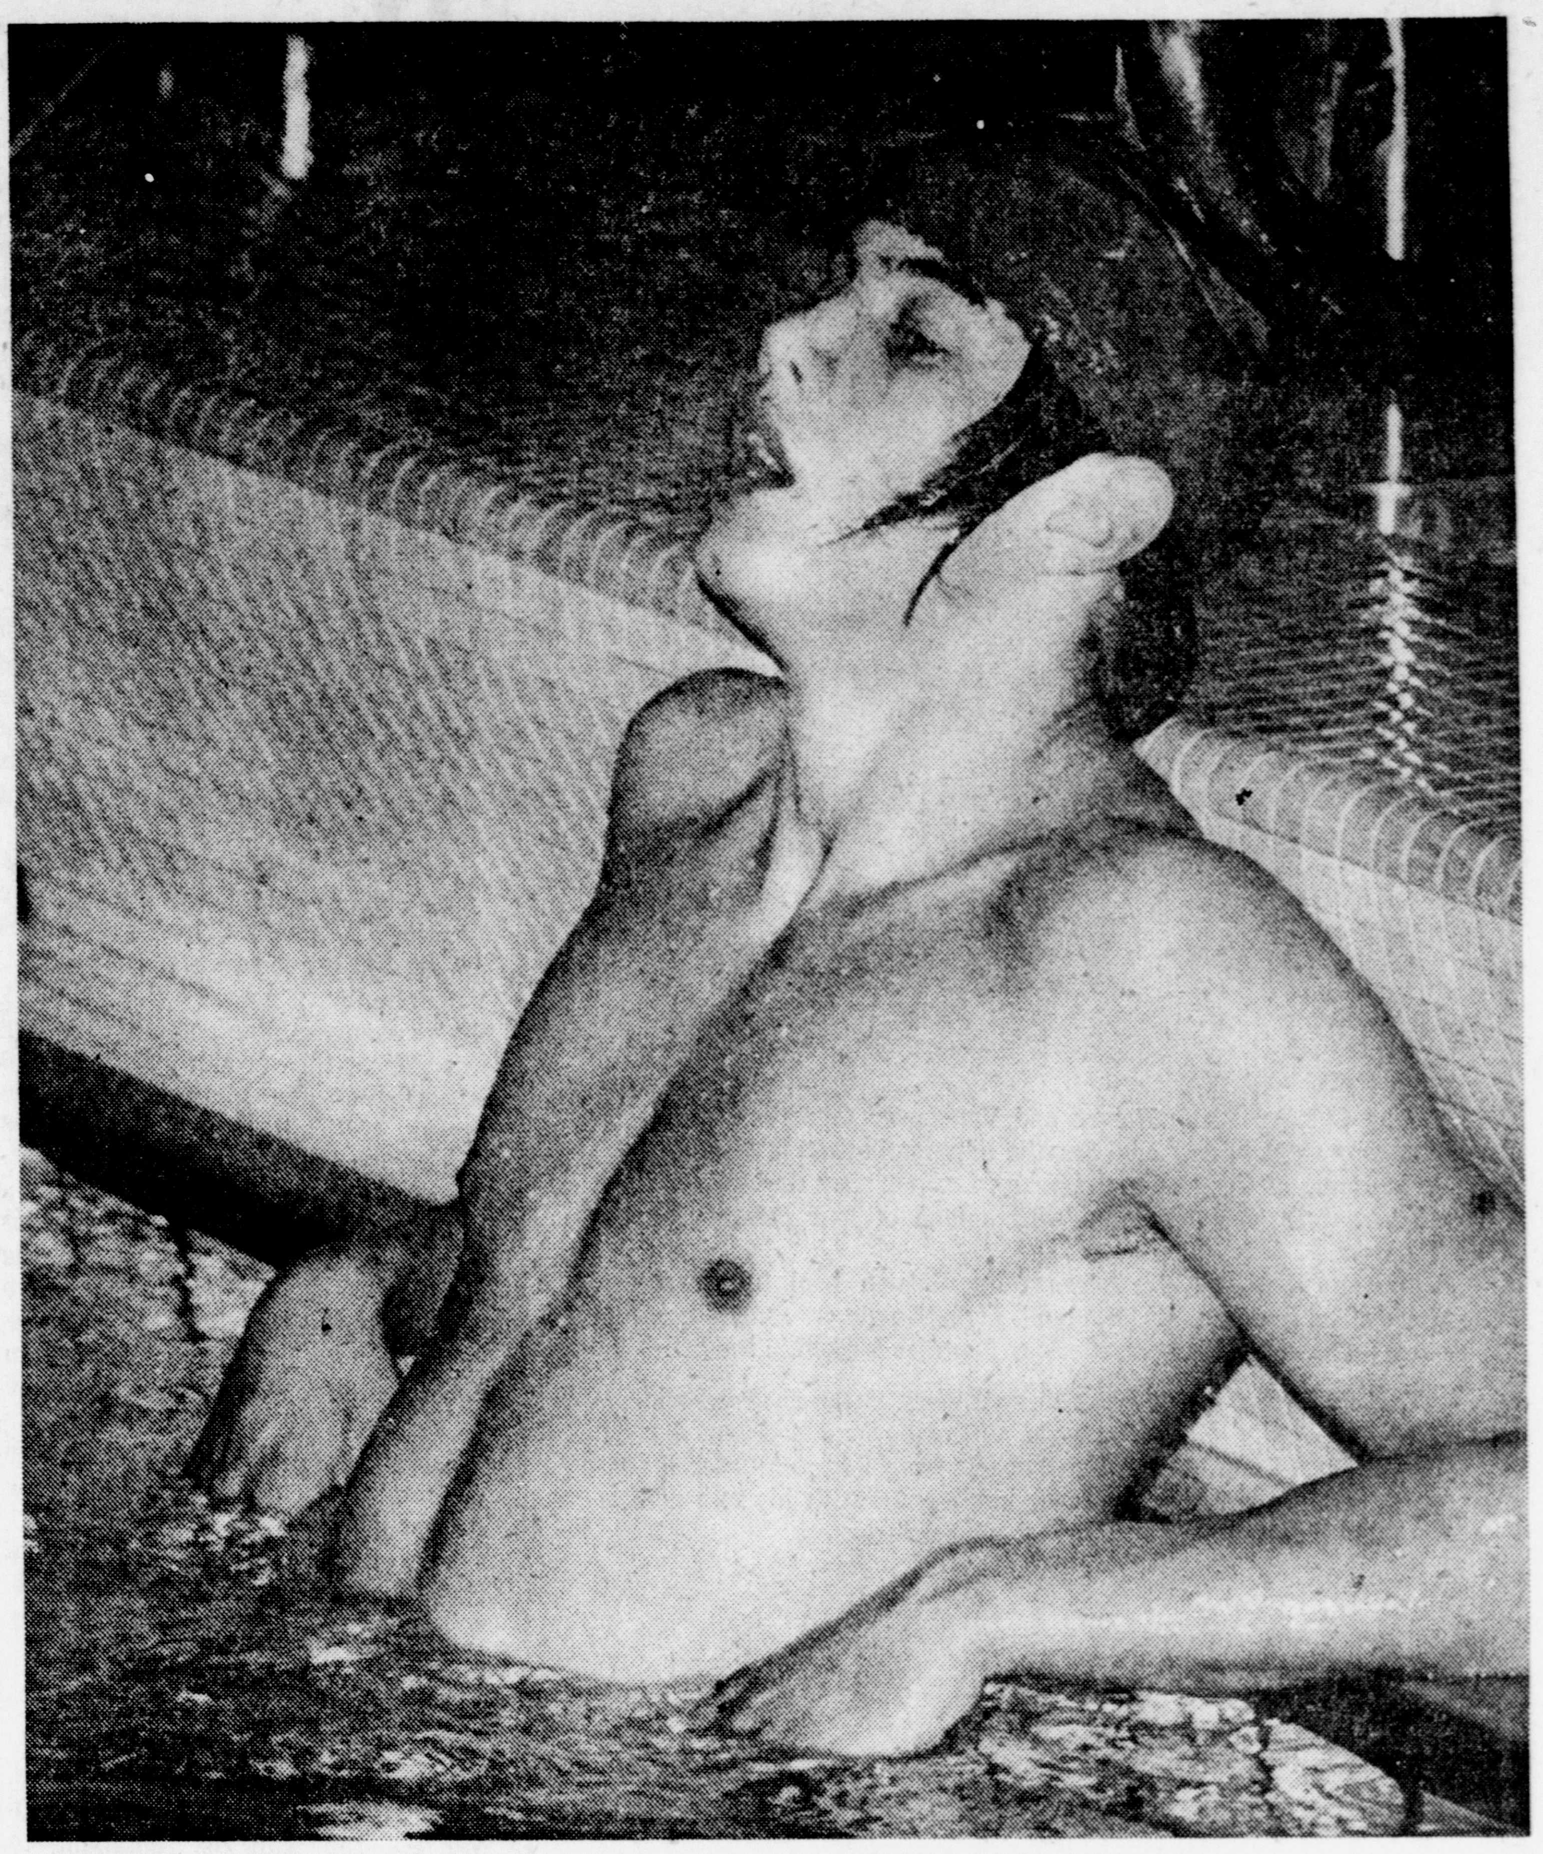
"And with Allsmiller, Heesch, and Stonerook in the middle, we're going to have to take some good shots," the coach continued. "If Pete is hitting we'll be able to loosen it up inside."

Redlinger was reminded of his 1973-74 team that beat Arlington by a point in the title game — a team that was bigger, perhaps better, than this year's Cougars.

But this year's team is scrappier.

"I think we'll match up pretty well with Buffalo Grove," said the Cougar coach.

No one doubts him.



A COOL WINNER. St. Viator's Steve Rogers looks mighty calm following his winning performance in the 200-yard individual medley in the Arlington District Saturday. He had just set a new Arlington District record in the process, turning in a time of 2:07.488, which qualified him for Friday's state meet. Rogers also took second in the breaststroke, in 1:05.978, missing the state qualifying time by .001 of a second.

Ben Crenshaw is straight from a Christmas pageant

Jim Murray

Ben Crenshaw has the biggest feet, the babiest face, and the longest swing ever seen on a golfer 5 feet 9 inches tall. He looks like he should be just learning to ride two-wheelers, not winning golf tournaments. For the rest of golf, it's a little like getting shot at from a baby carriage.

Most golfers' swings are 380 degrees. Ben's is at least 580. It starts somewhere between his knees and navel on the backswing and goes around three or four times before it hits the ball. Sometimes Ben himself seems to spin around twice, like a propeller. When he hits the ball, it goes screaming out of there almost into orbit and comes down glowing. The power of the swing is such that Ben has to screw himself into the ground like a posthole digger to keep himself from flying after the ball. If he ever misses, he won't come down for five minutes.

He looks as if he came direct from a Christmas pageant. The face — cherubic, blue-eyed, pink-cheeked, looks out of place without a halo over it or wings behind. The tour is used to blond hair, but Ben's looks as if it still might have cradlecap. He's 24 years old but looks like someone who just got a new bike for Christmas. But he's already won three tournaments which is, for instance, three more than Arnold Palmer had won at that age and two more than Johnny Miller

Crenshaw takes a crack at the ball the way Dempsey would hit a chin or Larry Csonka a line. They'd call him Belting Ben if they were still into nicknames. Sometimes, of course, the ball curves foul. And when it does, you need two men and a dog to find it. Not since another Ben — Hogan — has anyone 5-9 driven a ball so far.

Despite the fact he looks like someone you'd like to take to a parade and buy a balloon, Ben came into golf under more pressure to succeed than anyone since Jack Nicklaus — or St. Nicholas. So much was expected of him, you'd think he was found under a burning bush. He had absolutely scattered collegiate golf, winning the NCAA title three years in a row. They spoke of him in Texas as if he changed water into wine on the side.

When people saw where his drives landed, they hung around expecting to see King Kong emerging from the woods. Ben won the first pro tournaments he entered. He got his pro card by beating the qualifying school field by 12 strokes.

The way old-timers in Texas talked about him, it seemed unfair to have him wait to go to the Hall of Fame, and unfair to the rest of golf not to have him give shots. Most guys can sort of "feel" their way into the tour. Ben came in on a sedan chair to the sound of trumpets. But the crown came down over his eyes at first.

Ben played golf as if it came wrapped in tinsel. He could have won half-a-dozen tournaments, but he never hit a commercial shot in his life. He went to the flag, the horizon, first place, not the cut or the top 60. He threw roundhouse rights at the course, never clinched with it. Naturally, a few shots got away in this kind of toe-to-toe exchange, but little Ben shrugged, teed up another ball — and hit it just as hard.

He walked up on a green as if he intended to arrest it. Hands on hips, a confident, almost swaggering rolling gait of a Texas Ranger on his size 11½ shoes out roping rustlers.

Ben Crenshaw never crept through a round of golf in his life. He shot an 82 or a 62 with the same boyish enthusiasm. He never ran around tinkering with his swing, or begging for an explanation for a bad round. When the course knocked him down, he got up swinging like Dempsey. He'd come home all beat up — but so would the course.

Ben is the newest rising star of golf. What Palmer was in '55, what Mickey Mantle was in '51, what Dempsey was at Toledo, or O. J. Simpson at his first Rose Bowl, Johnny Bench in his first World Series, Crenshaw is — the hope of an entire sport.

He didn't win his third tournament at the Glen Campbell-L.A. Open. But when someone observed "that kid's got a great future if he keeps his feet on the ground," the answer came back, "With that swing, he's got to keep his feet on the ground. If he ever doesn't, he'll look like the world's biggest divot. And when they say, 'Crenshaw just landed in a trap,' they'll mean it literally."

Palatine parents to meet Thursday

Palatine High School VIP (Very Interested Parents) Club's regular monthly meeting will be held Thursday at 8:00 p.m. in the Palatine High School Cafeteria.

The PHS Variety Club will entertain at this meeting.

You just need a broom for this new sport

If you own a broom or can sneak off with your mother's, there's a new sport in the Northwest suburbs you might like to try.

It's called broom hockey. In order to play, you have to be 18 years or older, have a broom with the bristles taped and be free to play on Tuesday nights from 10:30 until midnight.

Some 40 guys are doing just that every week at the Woodfield Hockey Center. So far there's just one large team that breaks up into groups each night. But Gary Deaton, who's acting as commissioner of the future league, is hoping that enough people will be interested so that a six or eight-team league might be formed.

The sport is big in Canada, but is just catching on in the United States. Hockey rules are played but the players wear tennis shoes instead of skates. A rubber ball, about the size of a 16-inch softball, is used instead of a puck. Old clothes are recommended.

Deaton, whose group is sponsored by Deaton Bros. Landscaping, is hoping that the turnout will be such that playoffs can be established with trophies going to the winners.

For more information, call Deaton at 543-3303.

Black Hawks hike lead with win over Vancouver

The Chicago Black Hawks and Vancouver Canucks battled late Tuesday night in a crucial Smythe Division battale in the Campbell conference of the National Hockey League. The first place Black Hawks went into the game with a lead of four points over the Canucks.

Chicago won, 4-1, to increase its division lead to six points. Darcy Rota scored at 16:11 and Alain Daigle at 12:09 for insurance goals in the final period. Tony Esposito worked in the net.

Bulls fall to Washington

Phil Chenier scored 20 second half points on his way to a 32 point performance Tuesday night in leading the Washington Bullets to a 92-83 victory over the Chicago Bulls.

Chicago took a 42-41 lead at halftime as Mickey Johnson scored 14 straight points to put him within one point of the NBA record for consecutive points, held by Wilt Chamberlain.

Chenier went to work in the third quarter with nine points and reserve Len Robinson tallied eight in 3:47 to give the Bullets a 70-61 lead. The Bullets proceeded to build a 13 point lead in the fading minutes of the game and Chicago never threatened in the final quarter.

Hayes had 20 points and Dave Bing 19 for Washington while Bob Love had 21 points for Chicago.

The win was the Bullets' sixth in the last seven games and pulled them within a half a game of Central Division leader Cleveland. It was the Bulls' second straight defeat.

League approves sale of Giants

The National League Tuesday approved the sale of the San Francisco Giants to a group including Robert Lurie and Bob Short subject to conditions which league peesident Chub Feeney believed would be met easily.

"I don't think there's any doubt they can meet these conditions," Feeney said following a league meeting that lasted four hours and 15 minutes.

The owners stipulated the conditions must be "fulfilled by the end of business, Pacific time, March 1."

Feeney said the conditions were "just a matter of things to be written down," and that there were no financial problems or conditions.

He said the group in which Lurie holds a 50 per cent interest and Short and M.E.I. Corp., hold 25 per cent each would present their papers to show they have met their conditions to him in the league's San Francisco office.

Lorn Brown to assist Harry Caray

Lorn Brown, 37, is Harry Caray's new partner in broadcasting the Chicago White Sox games on radio and television, it was announced Tuesday.

Brown and Caray will each broadcast half of a game.

A 15-year broadcasting veteran, Brown currently does the Chicago Bulls' games for Channel 44.

Ed Morris, general manager of Channel 44 who made the announcement, said Sox owner Bill Veeck plans to bring in guest announcers to add to the color. "We'll have guys like Maury Wills and Sachel Paige," Morris said.

Brown was born in Chicago and attended Mount Carmel High School. He broadcast 145 games for the Iowa Oaks last season. He also broadcast Bradley, Drake and Illinois State basketball games over the years.

He was a substitute for Jack Buck, a St. Louis Cardinal broadcaster who succeeded Caray with that club.

North sweeps five playoff games; Hersey whips Schaumburg, 71-64

Hersey guards Tom Frye and Joe Pusatera came off the bench in the second half and helped spark a 30-point fourth quarter as the host Huskies knocked off Schaumburg, 71-64, in the Mid-Suburban League's runnerup game between the second-place teams in the North and South Tuesday.

The Hersey victory, which gives the Huskies a 17-7 mark going into the regionals, was one of five wins for the North division in a sweep of the basketball playoffs.

Frye and Pusatera, the smallest men on a court of giants, combined for 14 points in the final period as Hersey broke open a deadlock. Most of their baskets came on fast breaks or resulted from the Huskies' efficient full-court press.

Hersey's leading scorer, though, was 6-foot-5 senior Tom Burzak, who tossed in 17 points. Clyde Glass had 16 points and 10 rebounds for Hersey.

Schaumburg, now 19-5, trailed early by as many as nine points, but closed the gap in the second quarter on the shooting of Jon McIlraith and Dan Breen. McIlraith then added 1 of his game-high 29 points in the third quarter as the Saxons took a 41-39 lead.

But little 5-8 Pusatera got inside for a pair of rebound baskets and the Huskies were back on top 43-41. Frye popped a 12-footer, Glass hit a jumper from the lane, and Frye scored from the baseline to boost the Hersey lead to 49-41.

Breen scored six of his 15 points in the final moments, but the closest the Saxons got was 57-51.

Frye finished with 12 points and Pusatera had eight for the Huskies, who also got six each from Jay McDermott and Scott Topczewski.

CARDS WIN THRILLER

Jim Zobel, a late-game substitute, dialed the right combination on a 20-foot set shot with :02 remaining to crack Elk Grove's zone and propel Arlington to a heartstopping 45-44 triumph Tuesday night.

Zobel, who entered the teeter-totter contest midway through the final period for his defensive ability, rippled the cords from his right wing slot as Arlington failed to penetrate Elk Grove's rigid zone.

"He's probably our best stationary shooter," Card coach Don Drain admitted while checking Zobel's 22-for-47 success from the floor on the year. "He's tough against a zone defense and I didn't discourage him from shooting, even though it was his first shot of the game."

Zobel's heroics stole the thunder from Elk Grove's rugged 6-5 forward Mark Smith who owned the baselines at both ends of the floor and accounted for nearly one-half his team's total with 20 points on 10 buckets.

The low-scoring affair was a credit to both teams' tenacious defenses. The lead changed hands on no less than 19 different occasions and the biggest margin of the throbber was Arlington's 10-4 cushion in the opening minutes.

The Cardinals relied on balanced scoring as Greg Kloiber paced the attack with 15, Frank DeSimone added 11 and Tom North contributed 10.

Elk Grove, deprived of its 20th triumph of the season and owning a 19-6 mark, got support for Smith's 20 with Dave Hornacek pumping in 11.

LARSON ASSISTS WHEELING

Sparked by the floor play of Dan Larson, Wheeling charged ahead to stay in the third quarter and turned back visiting Rolling Meadows 66-54.

Larson, in addition to bagging a dozen points, tied a school record by serving up 13 assists and helped his Wildcats break open a tight contest early after intermission. The Mustangs trailed by only one at midgame, 30-29.

"Danny was just one of several bright spots for us tonight," smiled 'Cat coach Ted Ecker afterwards. "We had our lowest turnover rate of the season tonight —10 — and did a pretty decent job on the boards against a good physical team . . . I think we may be coming together now as a unit."

Wheeling, keyed by Larson and Doc Schultz, broke away for the first time in the opening stanza. They reeled off a dozen straight points to go from an 8-4 deficit to an eight-point command.

But Meadows charged right back into contention in the second period, led by Bill Wissen, Terry Moran and Dave Bell. A four-point play, capped by Bell's two gratis pitches, pulled the guests into a temporary lead at 25-24.

Wheeling hit for five straight afield in period three with Keith Schildt leading the way and the hosts were only mildly threatened afterwards in upping their over-all record to 11-13. Schildt finished with 15 to lead both sides in scoring while sophomore Larson's assist mark equaled a club record set by Mike Hallstrom last season.

Wissen had 11 for the Mustangs and Moran and Jerry McGill supplied 10 points apiece.

VIKINGS TIP KNIGHTS

The Prospect Knights put on one of the most furious fourth quarter rallies of the year, coming back from a 14-point deficit, but then fell short as the Fremd Vikings escaped with a 68-67 victory Tuesday night.

Down 14 at the onset of the final period, the Knights demolished the Vikings' defense, outshooting Fremd 18-4 in the first six minutes of the quarter to tie the score at 64.

The Knights took their first lead of the night on Tim Kubicki's 15-footer with 22 seconds left, putting Prospect in the lead, 67-66.

But Fremd came right back. Rick Kolze drove down the baseline with just 10 seconds left on the clock to give the Vikings the lead for good, 68-67.

Prospect had one final shot at the basket but missed, as the Vikings' Craig Rawlins pulled down the final rebound.

After bursting out to a 60-44 lead after three periods, the Vikings were limited to just four buckets in the final period. Several times, they had a chance to put the game away from the free throw line, but missed.

Fremd missed six free throws, including two bonus attempts, in the last 1½ minutes of play.

The Vikings built a 44-34 halftime lead, thanks to the sharpshooting of Dale Hallberg woo tossed in 14 first half points. Hallberg cooled down as did the rest of the Vikings in the second half, finishing with 21 for the night to take scoring honors for the host North division club.

Kubicki took scoring honors for Prospect with 21 points.

The win puts Fremd's final season mark at 8-15 over-all. Prospect, meanwhile, falls to 8-17 over-all.

PALATINE VICTORIOUS

The Palatine Pirates erupted for 22 points in the final quarter to defeat the visiting Hoffman Estates Hawks, 64-57.

Thanks to high scoring Kevin McKenna, the Pirates held the lead for three quarters. But the 33-point output by the MSL's leading scorer was overshadowed somewhat in the final period as two little guys and a big guy took over.

Leading 42-40, Palatine jumped out to a 56-44 advantage. Tom Iuorio (5-foot-7), who was scoreless for three quarters, scored seven. His backcourt teammate, Al Knotek (5-11), had two jumpers from outside during that flurry. And underneath, 6-4, 200-pound Ken Reid drove the baseline for four of his 13 points as the Pirates put away only their seventh win in 22 games.

"They know they can shoot the basketball," said Ron Finfrock, Palatine's coach, of his guards. "We just told them to take it to the basket more."

Hoffman Estates, now 10-14, tried to rally as it had done twice earlier to tie the game, but it was too late. Pirate free throw shooting held off the Hawks.

"They showed some composure late in the game," praised Finfrock for his team.

Joe Tully starred for Hoffman, scoring a season high 23 points. John Staback was next with nine.

Finfrock was especially pleased with Reid. He said the strong senior has "been playing a little bit better the last few games."

Jamshed Riaz is the new associate professional at The Right Club in Schaumburg.

Riaz has taught at several suburban clubs, including the Woodfield Racquet Club.

The 25-year-old Pakistani pro enjoyed a lot of success in his playing career. He was a member of the Junior Davis Cup in Pakistan (1971-72), was ranked No. 3 among his country's junior players ('71-'72) and was ranked No. 1 among juniors in Punjab State.

Riaz is very enthusiastic about his advanced league on Thursday nights. It's geared for good players seeking to become even better. Those interested in joining can contact Riaz at 397-3300.

Duncan girls set swim mark

The quartet of Chris Takata and Sue Cripe from Arlington Heights, Linda Walkowiak of Mount Prospect and Sharon Ratcliffe established a new national age group swimming record while participating for the Camp Duncan Swimming Team.

The four girls chopped one-half second off the year-old record in the 200-yard freestyle event. Swimming two seconds faster than their previous best, the girls combined for a blistering 143.9 clocking to shatter the 1:44.4 set last year by Indian Boundary.

Tague 'once in a lifetime swimmer

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

Hersey High School swimming star Chris Tague had but a few words about his performance in Saturday's district swimming meet at Arlington High School.

"I'm discouraged," he said simply.

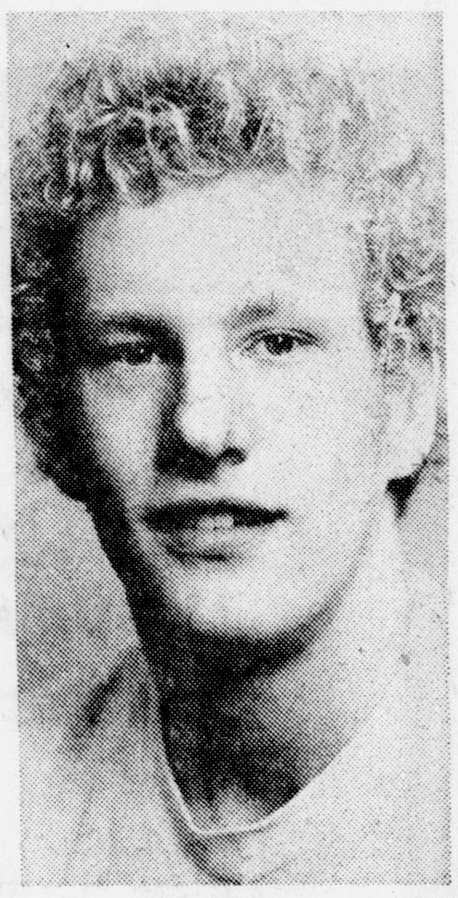
Now a closer look at this performances might make you wonder why, considering Tague had just: (a) qualified for the state meet this Friday in both the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events, (b) won both district titles in those events and (c) set two new district marks in the process.

But those feats are no accurate guages to performance as far as Chris Tague is concerned, for the young man has so far surpassed area competition that he's on his own plan toward possibly two state titles when the state swimming tournament begins Friday afternoon at Hinsdale South.

"I'd hoped to do better," Tague said of his performance Saturday. "In the 500, I just died."

Tague is a state leader right now in both of his events. In the 500, he has a whopping five second lead over his nearest challenger, George Tidmarsh of Hinsdale Central. But Tague still worries.

"A lot of coaches don't send in their times to be listed so swimmers come out of the woodwork at the state meet," said Tague.



Chris Tague

Tague's accomplishments are legion. A swimming magazine has him ranked nationally in three events, seventh in the 100-, ninth in the 200-and sixth in the 500 yard freestyle.

Locally, he's dominated swimming honor rolls and at one time was ranked first in three out of four freestyle events statewide.

For all his natural ability, Tague still works at his swimming with an unbelievable fervor. For 10 to 11 months a year he swims up to 9,000 yards a day, often seven days a week. That's over five miles per day.

Knowing what it takes to be a champion, Tague swims daily before school at a local YMCA, in addition to his after school practices with the Hersey team.

He's in the water so much he carries around a special oil to keep his skin from peeling. Even so, cuts and scratches won't heal completely until he takes his annual month off in the spring.

"Nobody works harder than Chris Tague," said Hersey swimming coach Herb Parsons. "He's a once in a lifetime swimmer for a coach."

Though he's nearing the end of his high school swimming career, Tague says he plans to continue swimming in college, perhaps at Southern Illinois where his brother attends and where teammate and diving standout, Bill Cashmore, plans to go next year.

Right now he's concentrating on the state meet, sticking to a special diet and trying to get enough sleep, something he says is getting harder, as he swims his race over and over in his mind before falling off to sleep.

Other than that he'll be resting up, doing much shorter workouts, as Tague puts it, "no hard stuff.

"Just 6,000 yards a day."

Got a minute, Yankee?

John C. Morrissey, American heavyweight champion and later a New York state senator, defeated Yankee Sullivan in 1853 at the end of three dozen rounds in their bare knuckle battle.

Sullivan, who was actually from England, failed to answer the bell at the start of the 37th round because he spent the 30 second rest period outside the ring. Sullivan had jumped through the ropes to beat up on a group of Morrissey fans who had been harassing him the entire fightl

Fish gills pull oxygen from water

HOW DO FISH SEPARATE OXYGEN FROM WATER?

Fish, like all other creatures, need oxygen to live. If we were to change places with them, we would soon appreciate the special way they obtain this precious gas. Our lungs are just right for us; but if fish had to depend on lungs like ours, the surface of the ocean would be a mighty busy place with fish crowding each other to get a gulp of air.

The watery world of fish provides plenty of bubbly oxygen dissolved in the water he swims in. But in order to use this precious gas he has the ticklish task of separating it from the water. And wouldn't you know, with a flick of his tail and a flap of his fin, he just does it?

To perform his underwater magic he uses a pair of special organs called gills, which are located on each side of his body. If you look inside the throat of a fish you can see four or more slits that open to the outside. These slits are called gill openings. As the fish swims along, he opens his mouth and takes in a gulp of water. Special valves in his mouth then close to prevent the water fom flowing back out. The water passes into a gill chamber and circulates over his gills.

Each gill has a number of parts. And the part that does the job is the gill filament. These filaments look like rows of tiny feathers. As the water passes over the gill filaments an exchange occurs — oxygen that has dissolved in the water is absorbed into the fish bloodstream and carbon dioxide passes out of the bloodstream into the water. Carbon dioxide, as we know, is a waste product produced by the body.

This is the way most fish go about the process of breathing underwater. But, as is often the case, there are a number of exceptions. The torpedo batfish, for example, is a flat fellow. His gill openings are located behind his pectoral fins and look like a pair of exhaust pipes. As he expels the water, he gets a jet-propelled effect.

Some fish can rise to the surface, take a bubble of air and hold it in a special chamber which works somewhat like our lungs. A mudskipper is so adept at this he can even leave the water temporarily, scooting along the land, using his strong pectoral fins.

Most fish take their oxygen directly from the water using their gills. Some fish, however, can come to the surface and grab a gulp of air like any landblubber. Only a few fish, however, can live on atmospheric oxygen for any length of time.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Linda Neth, 12, of Wichita, Kan., for her question:

WHAT IS A CATACOMB?

A catacomb is an intricate system of underground passages used long ago as burial places. Built as far back as the 1st century A. D., these elaborate tunnels form long, twisting passageways extending for many miles. In most places they are about 30 to 40 feet below street level. Inside, the dimly lit corridors are three to four feet wide, with ceilings from 10 to 15 feet high. Narrow shafts to the ground's surface allow barely enough air and light to penetrate into the dark, cavernous halls.

Catacombs were built in many countries, such as Italy, Egypt, North Africa and Palestine. But the most famous ones are in Rome, and thousands of tourists visit them each year. The early Christians built these hidden tombs by cutting through soft volcanic rock. Carved into the walls are tiers of tombs sealed with bricks or marble slabs, Some catacombs contained large chambers which served as family burial vaults as well as places of worship. Decorating the walls and ceilings of many catacombs in Rome are beautiful examples of early christian art.

Pardon still sought for Tokyo Rose

by ROBERT MACKAY

"You're about 30 years too late," the burly Japanese-American said as he dropped the reporter's copy to the floor and walked away.

It's the customary reception given reporters seeking Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, better known during World War II as Tokyo Rose, one of a dozen women who broadcast Japanese propaganda to Allied troops in the South Pacific.

Mrs. D'Aquino has worked at her father's import shop in Chicago since her release from the Women's Reformatory at Anderson, W. Va., in 1956, after serving 6½ years of a 10-year sentence for treason.

She has refused to talk to reporters for 20 years.

THE 30,000-MEMBER Japanese-American Citizens League says she was a victim of "postwar prejudice" and is circulating petitions urging President Ford to grant her a full and unconditional pardon.

"If he is still pardon-shy because of Nixon, we will wait a while before we file a formal request," said Dr. Clifford Uyeda, chairman of the National Committee for Iva Toguri.

Two former presidents have refused to pardon Mrs. D'Aquino.

Mrs. D'Aquino, born in Los Angeles July 4, 1916, went to Japan to care for a sick aunt in 1941 and was told her citizenship was in doubt when she tried to return to the United States.

THEN THE JAPANESE bombed Pearl Harbor and she was stranded in Japan, where she held part-time typing jobs with the Danish Embassy and Tokyo Radio.

Mrs. D'Aquino admitted during her treason trial she was a disc jockey dubbed "Tokyo Rose" by American troops, but said she was a loyal American.

Mrs. D'Aquino said the most damaging Tokyo Rose comments were broadcast by other Roses.

Veterans of the South Pacific campaign still have mixed feelings about the effect of the Tokyo Rose broadcasts.

"Hell, we used to enjoy listening to her," one Chicago veteran said. "She never lowered our morale."

"Don't let anybody kid you, it scares you," said Ross Rumore, another Chicago veteran. "We laughed at the broadcasts too, but it scared the you-know-what out of us."

Freakish new deck slam

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The chances are that almost every one who has played rubber bridge has run across today's extremely freakish hand. The reason is that if you take a new deck of cards, cut it as often as you wish, give it one absolutely perfect shuffle, cut it some more and then deal it out you will produce this monstrosity.

If the dealer happens to hold the spade suit and he and his partner are using the grand slam force, the bidding is likely to proceed along the lines shown in the box.

Then, anything can happen with freak hands. We can imagine tens of thousands of bidding sequences. Some people may even stop short of a slam. Others will double their opponents somewhere along the way.

The one thing we can be certain of is that irrespective of who gets to bid first the side with the spades is likely to wind up playing the hand and if they get pushed into seven they are likely to be doubled.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Cigarette Market Bombshell.

New 'Enriched Flavor'™ discovery for 9 mg. tar MERIT achieves taste of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

"Low tar, good taste."

Others have made the claim.

Philip Morris just made the cigarette.

MERIT. Only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Yet MERIT delivers astonishing flavor. Flavor verified by smokers all across the country.

If you're looking to become a low tar smoker, or don't particularly enjoy the taste of the low tar brand you smoke now—you'll be interested.

New 'Enriched Flavor' Discovery

By isolating certain "key" flavor ingredients of tobacco in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have developed a way to pack extra flavor into tobacco without the usual increase in tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.'

It's extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through.

We packed 'Enriched Flavor' into MERIT. And began a series of extensive taste tests. The results were amazing.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, all tested at home.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

MERIT. Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar. From Philip Morris.
